Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—The senate repudiated Henry Wallace today.

In a crushing rebuke to President Roosevelt, who nominated Wallace for secretary of commerce, the senate voted 74 to 12 to separate the Reconstruction Finance corporation from the commerce department.

The possibility of an even greater blow to Mr. Roosevelt's prestige—rejection of Wallace as secretary—was warded off by Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.], hastily summoned from a hospital with a black patch still over his eye.

Pleading that the President be spared this humiliation on the eve of the forthcoming conference with Dictator Stalin of Russia and Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain, Barkley persuaded the senate to defer action on Wallace's confirmation until March 1.

Surrenders in RFC Fight.

Between the two votes, Barkley disclosed with dramatic suddenness that Mr. Roosevelt has surrendered in his fight to make Wallace the nation's lending czar. Barkley read the senators a letter from Samuel I. Rosenman, confidential White House adviser, in which Rosenman said the President had agreed to approve the bill removing the RFC from commerce department control.

The Rosenman letter arrived while the senate was still pondering the eventuality that Mr. Roosevelt might veto the RFC separation bill, which has been promised immediate action in the house, where passage is predicted.

The President's surrender was the most spectacular event of a day of almost incredible excitement—a day of standing room crowds that overflowed into the corridors and down the stairways and brought such hissing from the galleries that Vice President Truman threatened to clear them.

Get Money's Worth.

The crowds got their money's worth, for Sen. Taft [R., O.] nailed administration Democrats to the senate wall when they sought to shield Wallace from some of the fury that members of Mr. Roosevelt's own party had turned loose.

Barkley, a somber figure in black who apologized for "looking like Dead Eye Dick," joined with Democrats who sought to show that forbidding Wallace the vast RFC lending powers was more a logical legislative action than a repudiation of Wallace and that for which he stands.

But Taft crammed the Democrats' words down their throats.

"The only possible reason for this bill," he shouted, "is that the senate has no confidence in Henry Wallace because it does not believe in his philosophy, and it thinks that by taking this power from him it can in some way limit him!"

Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] added to the Democratic discomfiture by re-

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—The house, rejecting all proposed amendments, late today passed the New Deal's "work or jail" labor draft bill giving federal authorities full job placement powers over the more than 18 million men aged 18 thru 44.

The vote on the bill, which was demanded by President Roosevelt, was 246-165, with most Democrats supporting it and a majority of Republicans in opposition.

The measure now goes to the senate, where Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] of the military affairs committee announced tonight his group will meet tomorrow to consider it for possible revisions. Sen. Thomas predicted the committee will act speedily to get the proposed law to the senate floor, but congressional leaders declined to predict what the senate will do with it.

Fight for Revision Fails.

Final house passage, climaxing a four day debate, came after opponents of the drastic measure tried vainly to obtain adoption of alternate proposals which would have substituted less stringent methods for meeting alleged man power shortages in war industry.

Under the bill as adopted, men 18-44 could not leave essential jobs without permission from their draft boards, and all men in that age group would be required to shift to designated work, if ordered to by local boards. Violators would be subject to maximums of $10,000 fine and five years in prison if unfit for military service or to army induction if they are fit.

House opponents of the bill, led by Rep. Short [R., Mo.], a ranking member of the military committee, charged it is a "Fascist" and "slave labor" step which will cut, rather than boost, war output by demoralizing America's working men. They cited the united opposition of labor unions and industry to the proposal, and contended these groups are better qualified to meet production problems than army and navy chiefs supporting the bill.

Need for Bill Denied.

To this, administration members, led by Chairman May [D., Ky.] of the military committee, replied that the commander in chief and military leaders, including Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, sought the bill in the interest of the war and that congress should not question their judgment.

In the floor skirmishing that preceded final passage, the house failed by only 10 votes of rejecting the work-or-jail measure completely and substituting a largely voluntary program of filling man power gaps thru voluntary appeals.

Reds at Oder 30-40 Mi. from Berlin—Nazis

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—A report from Stockholm, unsubstantiated elsewhere, quoted travelers arriving in Sweden tonight as saying that a Russian patrol had penetrated to the outskirts of Berlin today and withdrew after reconnoitering.

(Map on page 6.)

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—Russian troops toppled the northern Polish stronghold of Torun and encircled the German Pomeranian bastion of Schneidemuehl today as Berlin said that other soviet forces had reached the ice-packed Oder river 30 to 40 miles northeast of the German capital.

Officially, Moscow placed the nearest Russian troops 59 miles northeast of Berlin with the capture of Duringshof, 18 miles from Kustrin, one of the last strongholds barring the way to the reich capital.

German broadcasts said that the Russians had broken thru to the Oder northwest of Kustrin, but did not say where. The Oder in its winding course northwest of the city flows to within 30 miles of Berlin. The Germans said that the Russians crashed into the eastern side of Kustrin and then were thrown out by reenforcements hurried to the front from central Germany, the western front, and Stettin.

Push Nearer Frankfurt.

Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army apparently was meeting stiffening German resistance both on the approaches to Kustrin and Frankfurt, another Oder river stronghold 16 miles to the south. With the capture of Gleissen, soviet central columns had pushed to within 29 miles northeast of Frankfurt.

In a new crossing into Germany from Poland west of Leszno the Russians penetrated to within six miles of Glogau, stronghold on the middle Oder river 117 miles southeast of Berlin.

The Russians farther downstream smashed to within 10 miles of Crossen, 68 miles southeast of Berlin, and in this area and near Kustrin apparently were preparing to cross the Oder in a big pincers movement on the capital, by-passing Frankfurt and Kustrin.

Drive to Trap More Nazis.

During the day the Russians captured 150 more localities in four to 14 mile advances on Berlin and far to the northwest toppled Ratzebuhr, 26 miles north of Schneidemuehl in Pomerania, and 58 miles from the Baltic. This drive was aimed at cutting off another big segment of German forces between those trapped in East Prussia and the Stettin area north of Berlin. The Germans said Russian troops were 37 miles from Stettin.

Torun, big Vistula river port city of 63,000, fell after a siege begun last Saturday when the Russians encircled the Nazi stronghold. It is 80 miles northeast of surrounded Poznan, last big Polish city in German hands.

Koenigsberg Totters.

In the northeastern battle areas, Moscow dispatches said panic has seized Koenigsberg, East Prussian capital of 370,000, overcrowded with 150,000 refugees.

Altho Koenigsberg was tottering, the Russians apparently were faced with the task of battling from house to house. Storm groups moved up for that purpose.

Below Koenigsberg the Germans were carrying out a wholesale evacuation of Elbing, on the Gulf of Danzig, where Russian forces had cut off the remainder of East Prussia.

Several more blocks were captured in the western part of Budapest, the soviet bulletin said.

SUB MADE FAMOUS BY 'TAKE HER DOWN' COMMAND IS LOST

The submarine Growler, which was saved three years ago in the Pacific by Comdr. Howard W. Gilmore's famous command, "Take her down!" as he lay wounded on deck under the guns of a Japanese destroyer, is overdue and presumed lost, the navy announced yesterday.

Comdr. Gilmore's order, by which he elected his own death to save his ship and crew, was printed for several weeks in the upper right hand corner of page one of THE TRIBUNE, starting last Dec. 10. The memorable words have become part of the navy's anthology of heroism.

The action in which Comdr. Gilmore gave his order, for which he was awarded the medal of honor posthumously, occurred between October, 1942, and February, 1943. Normal complement of a submarine of the Growler type is about 65 officers and men. Comdr. Thomas B. Oakley Jr., Los Angeles, Cal., commanded the ship on the patrol on which it is overdue.

Allies' Terms for Nazis OK'd by Big 3 Aids

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—Disclosure that a fully fashioned "instrument of surrender" awaits only final big three approval was interpreted in London tonight as heralding a major psychological as well as military drive to bring about Germany's capitulation.

An authoritative source announced that the specific terms to be handed the Germans after their surrender had been initialed by representatives of the United States, Britain, and soviet Russia, respectively United States Ambassador John G. Winant, William Strang, British undersecretary of state, and soviet Ambassador Fyodor Gusev.

Plan Four Power Ruhr Rule.

Simultaneously came word that Prime Minister Churchill was taking to the conference with President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin — a meeting perhaps now underway—a concrete British plan for four power rule over the Rhineland and the Ruhr believed to imply creation of a separate political and economic entity. France would share in this measure with Britain, Russia, and the United States.

There was no specific assurance that the "instrument of surrender" would be the basis for a new call to the Germans to overthrow Hitler, but it appeared an obvious possibility.

The terms, formulated by leaders of the European advisory commission, are so secret it is understood that only a few of the highest allied officials know the contents.

Leaflets Explain Terms.

British and American planes have been showering Germans several days with leaflets explaining "unconditional surrender."

This activity followed Churchill's "surrender now" appeal in commons' last week, which explained that the Germans would not be annihilated if they overthrew Hitler. British radios beamed excerpts of the prime minister's speech to the continent in German.

Allied zones of occupation also are on the big three agenda. President Roosevelt is understood to propose that American troops, in addition to occupying northwest Germany, should share with British and Russian forces in the occupation of Austria.

France also is understood to have asked permission to share in the Austrian occupation. The informant said it was believed Roosevelt, Stalin, and Churchill agreed to this.

France is understood further to have requested that the Rhineland be exclusively a French zone of occupation prior to the assumption of control by a four power consortium.

New Invasion Force Landed Without Loss

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, Feb. 2 [Friday]—(AP).—A new landing southwest of Manila—the third invasion of Luzon Island—has forced the jaws of a trap north and south of the Philippines capital, with some Yank columns reported today 20 air miles away.

Virtually sealing off the possibility of Nipponese troops south of Manila joining those to the north, 11th division troops of the 8th army landed at Nasugbu on the west coast of Batangas province, 32 miles southwest of Cavite naval base.

The first wave under Maj. Gen. J. M. Swing hit five miles of Batangas beach from Rear Adm. Fechtler's landing ships Wednesday morning without firing a shot and speared quickly inland thru Nasugbu without serious opposition.

Filipinos Serve Coffee.

After the Yanks had been pouring ashore for half an hour, Japanese in caves off the northern flank brought machine guns and 77 mm. fire to bear. Mobile artillery and naval gunfire quickly silenced the enemy.

Lt. Gen. Eichelberger, originally planned the foray as a reconnaissance in force, with orders to pull out if the opposition proved too tough. But after the landing he changed it to a full scale invasion.

Most Filipino homes held "open house." Senora Adela Alberto had hot coffee ready for the grinning Americans. Other families offered the Yanks wine or rum.

Yanks of the 5th army pressed south from Calumpit down Bulacan province to the Angat river, the closest approach to Manila. These Yanks have covered approximately 100 miles since their Jan. 9 landing at Lingayen gulf.

Lay Trap on Bataan.

Eighth army elements which landed Monday northwest of Manila and quickly secured Subic bay as a base for the 7th fleet were reported today to be moving east against light enemy resistance across the base of Bataan peninsula toward a juncture with 6th army columns driving southwest from Lubao.

Gen. MacArthur's bulletin said:

"Again the enemy was caught off balance and we landed without loss. This operation places the 8th army on the south side of Manila, which is now the center of the converging columns of the 6th and 8th armies. It largely seals off the possibility of the enemy troops south of Manila joining those to the north, and definitely outflanks the enemy's defense lines in Bulacan province. Patrols continue to operate freely in the corps' zone of action.

Jap Column Destroyed.

"In the 1st corps sector our forces in the upper Agno river area seized San Nicolas, six miles beyond San Manuel, and pushed four miles east of Tayug. An enemy column caught between our forces on the Balingao-Umingan road, was completely destroyed with heavy losses."

Heavy bombing of Manila bay defenses was announced. In successive days heavy bombers dropped more than 152 tons of bombs on Corregidor, the fortress guarding the entrance to the harbor, and the Cavite naval base.

RANGERS KILL 523 JAPS; TAKE CAMP IN HALF HOUR

FIRST STORY OF MAYWOOD MEN TOLD TO TRIBUNE

[This is the first of a series of dispatches telling for the first time the story of the Maywood tank battalion which was captured on Bataan; also personal stories of the death march and life in Jap prison camps. Two Chicago Yanks freed in the Ranger raid on Camp Cabanatuan Tuesday tell the story—Pvt. Charles Jensen, 6528 S. Hermitage av., a medic with the Maywood B company, 192d tank battalion, and Pvt. Norman J. Lev, 5023 N. Lawndale av., a medic with the 15th bomber group.]

BY PVTS. CHARLES JENSEN AND NORMAN J. LEV.
[As Told to Arthur Veysey.]

WITH THE RANGERS ON LUZON, P. I., Feb. 1.—This is a story of hell; of the last days on Bataan and Corregidor, of the march of death, of almost three years in Jap prisons.

It is a story of horror such as could only be written in blood and filth by a weird oriental race. We are alive today only because of hope. Those who gave up hope lie in the graveyard of Camp O'Donnell and Camp Cabanatuan and in the hundreds of unmarked graves along the roads, farms, and air fields we traveled.

Hope and a few angels—angels like Mrs. Yu and the general public who smuggled us food and messages and money—angels like the Red Cross which battered down all sorts of obstacles to get us trickles of medicine.

The horror began when four of our men were caught in knocked out tanks. The Japs poured dirt in the turrets, burying them alive.

Put Guns in Hospitals.

The Japs set up guns amid our hospitals in an effort to halt the Corregidor artillery. We thought the horror reached a peak on the march of Bataan. Many times the story has been told of how men who fell to the ground were bayoneted or shot.

We began early to learn how strange the Japs are. A Jap would jerk a man out of the line and pull him into the woods and give him a biscuit or a drink, and the next one would jerk him out to beat him.

Literally dying of thirst, we had to walk thru streams of water running across the road from pumps and wells. No one was allowed to drink. Those who did paid with their lives.

The Japs took our watches and pants and clothes. If our shoes fit they took them.

Jump on Man's Hands.

One day Jensen was passing a hole filled with waste when the Japs threw a Filipino into it. As the Filipino tried to pull himself out the Japs would jump on his hands with their hob-nailed shoes. Others joined in the fun. In time they tired of this and beat the Filipino to

LIST OF RESCUED.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE RANGERS ON LUZON, P. I., Feb. 1.—The first night of freedom in almost three years! It was a strange night last night, 511 men, who until 24 hours earlier were Japanese prisoners, kept telling each other.

It was just a dream, and at any moment Japanese guards would come storming in kicking them into wakefulness; their pajamas would vanish into rags, their cots, blankets, and sheets would return to bamboo slats, their stomachs would be crying for food instead of from too much food.

But when the men awoke this morning the dream was true.

Tuesday night guns had blazed outside the Cabanatuan prison camp near Cabu, 25 miles behind the Japanese lines, and the prisoners feared the firing meant their liquidation by the Japanese had started.

"The Yanks Are Here."

The men dodged to the floor, waiting. Then 121 American Rangers and 286 Filipino guerrillas burst into the barbed wire inclosed barracks with the words:

"Take it easy, fellows, the Yanks are here. We got this place, pals."

Freed were 486 Americans, 23 British, some of whom had defended Singapore; three Dutchmen, and one Norwegian. Two of the men died on the march back to safety, their failing hearts unable to withstand the ordeal.

They were all that were left at the Cabanatuan camp, which once held 10,000 captives. Hundreds had died from disease, malnutrition, or mistreatment. Others had been removed to work camps in Japan.

On the way back the Japanese struck the column in persistent, tank led attacks, but the Americans and Filipinos were not to be denied their prizes.

Fighting took 523 Japanese lives, better than one for every rescued man, and cost the enemy 12 tanks. Three hundred additional Japs who were on guard at the camp had been killed previously.

Story of the Battle.

The story of the fight 25 miles behind Jap lines and the surprise night attack on the Jap guards reads like something dreamed up for the story books. Rescuing 511 prisoners and bringing them safely thru Jap lines in all of a night's march is more than was expected. All feared there would be some casualties.

Rangers under Lt. Col. Henry Mucci and Alamo Scouts under Lt. Jack Dove were called into 6th army headquarters last Saturday. Hours later the scouts headed for Cabanatuan. At that time our advance lines were outside Guimba, 15 miles by air but 25 by trail. The scouts were to make a quick patrol and set up a watching station outside the prisoners' camp.

Mucci said the guerrilla force, whose leader is a quiet, harmless looking man named Juan Pajota, probably killed 300 of the Japs. The guerrilla force under Pajota was under command of Maj. Robert Lapham, Davenport, Ia.

Carry Water Along.

Late Sunday the Rangers started. Trucks carried them to lines where they began to hike. Each man carried a Garand rifle, two pistols with which to arm the prisoners during the march back, two cans of C rations and a canteen of water, with instructions not to touch the water. It was for the prisoners.

The men hiked all night and at dawn they were within four miles

Something 'Screwy' on Western Front

BY WES GALLAGHER.

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, Feb. 1 (AP).—There is something screwy on the western front. There are large sections where the Germans have suddenly fled. Allied patrols have failed to contact the enemy, which means there is considerable territory unoccupied by the allies or Germans.

For three days there has been no German artillery fire on American troops attacking eastward along a line from St. Vith to Monschau forest, something virtually without precedent since the allies first reached the Westwall [Siegfried line].

Many Nazis Giving Up.

In comparatively small and not too violent local actions, considerable numbers of Germans are giving up. In the Ardennes area, troops of the 82d air borne division are finding road blocks and temporary defenses unmanned.

In the last 10 days the 102d division at Brachelen, northeast of Aachen, captured 97 pillboxes intact without a fight. Six weeks ago it might have taken weeks to do this.

Along the whole Westwall contact has been made recently with only one German armored division.

German Divisions Disappear.

A great many German divisions have disappeared entirely. There are few first class troops to be found on the western front, at least where the fighting is.

The present allied attack, which is concentrated in the Ardennes, engages only a fraction of the available allied forces. Whether this is due to high strategy or material shortages has not been disclosed.

of the Cabanatuan camp. The men went into hiding except for small patrols led by two guerrillas, Ernest Degusman, a Bataan veteran, and Carlos Tomba, which crawled thru underbrush and grass to join the scouts within sight of the camp.

The plan was to attack at dusk Monday, striking by surprise from their hiding place. The Rangers met sore disappointment. In the first place the grass around the camp was cut close and guards in the tower at the corner of the camp could see any one approaching for several hundred yards, but most important was the string of Jap tanks parked in an adjoining field.

200 Japs in Camp.

The guerrillas reported that instead of a normal garrison of about 50 more than 200 Japs were in the prison camp and many of these, seeking safety from air raids, were sleeping with the prisoners.

As dusk fell columns of Japs began moving into the camp and on up the road. By the time of the contemplated attack several hundred were in the camp area. Mucci decided to wait.

On a portable radio Ranger Sgt. Norton Most, Haley, Minn., tapped out this message: "New developments, 24 hour delay."

Capt. Harold Jacobs, 1933 Wellington av., Chicago, and others gathered around a radio truck at headquarters and pondered what had happened. Then at 11:06 p. m. on Tuesday came a message that made Sgt. James Irvine, Detroit, Mich., radio truck operator, shout. It said, "Mission accomplished."

Jap Garrison Numbers 90.

Word spread rapidly at the hospital. Lt. Dan Darton, Springfield, Ill., rounded up ambulances and trucks to start at dawn for the rendezvous. Every one wondered what had happened. This is what had taken place.

Just before dawn on Tuesday Jap tanks and troops pulled out of the camp and started north. Guerrillas, strolling past the fences, reported the garrison was about 90, almost double the normal strength. Mucci's Rangers hoped that would be all.

At 4 p. m. the Rangers began the final advance on the camp, which is a group of 30 frame buildings enclosed by three barbed wire fences in a plot 400 yards wide and 600 yards long. Another branch ran down a mile of area separating the American prisoners on the left from the Japs on the right. The main gate entering the Japs' section divided the front. A tower rose from the left front corner. Under it was a pillbox. The main Jap garrison was located in a building at the extreme rear.

Rangers Divided Up.

The Rangers, divided into four groups. Lt. John Murphy was to take one group to the left rear corner and from there crawl across the open area in the American half and then into the Jap barracks. That group included Sgt. Charles Brown, 1642 Thorndale av., Chicago.

Lt. William O'Connel, Boston, Mass., was to lead a second group to smash the gate and spray bullets into the Jap half of the camp. From the front Lt. Melville R. Schmidt, New Orleans, La., and his third group was to follow O'Connel's thru the gate, cut the wires into the American half, and round up the prisoners. The fourth detail under Sgt. Jim Mullican, Glendale, Ga., was to knock out the pillbox under the guard tower.

Since the rear group would take the longest to reach its position, his first shot would signal the start of the attack.

It was beautifully dark and a light rain was falling. Night fighters flew back and forth, low overhead, to drown out any noise. The men crept forward for half an hour.

Challenged by Sentry.

The plan almost fell thru. A sentry in the tower called a challenge. Mucci's men were tempted to fire, but they held off and lay flat. Mucci's men again advanced, leaving Sgt. Cletus Norton, Greensboro, N. C.; Melvin Gilbert, Portland, Ore., and Dick Moore, Los Angeles, Cal., to care for the guard.

It was exactly 12 minutes to 8 when Mucci started the attack, throwing a sheet of fire into the barracks a few inches from the floor to catch the resting Nips.

Sgt. T. R. Richardson, a big Texan from Dallas, had the job of breaking the gate. He jumped forward and brought his carbine down on the padlock that held the chain, but the chain was too strong. Richardson drew his pistol to shoot off the lock, but a Jap guard fired, and his lucky shot knocked the pistol from Richardson's grip.

Richardson picked up his gun, shot off the lock, and then shot the Jap. O'Connel's men rushed thru, Schmidt's following closely. O'Connel's turned to the right. Harold Guillory of San Antonio, Tex., laid a bazooka rocket into the sheds and barracks.

Find Yanks Hugging Floor.

Another Jap ran from the door, tommy-guns cutting him in half. Seven who tried to climb over the barricades all fell dead.

Schmidt cut the wires into the American enclosure. His men found the Americans hugging the floor. They were afraid. They thought almost to a man that the Japs had decided to massacre them and then flee for good.

"It's Americans!" a Ranger shouted. "Get the hell out of here."

The prisoners ran for the gate, only a few waiting to put their shoes or clothing on. A couple with presence of mind grabbed the sacks they had prepared for an attempted break should the Japs try a massacre.

Meanwhile Norton, Gilbert, and Moore, left behind to care for the tower guards, virtually shot the top off the tower and started. Mullican and his men, assigned to the pillbox, threw grenades into it. Sgt. Youngblood of Evans City, Pa., rushed the pillbox and sprayed it with gunfire. He saw three Jap bodies.

Japs Fire Wildly.

The surprised Japs fired wildly. They hit one man. From some place they fired two mortar shells, which landed near the front gate, injuring an officer. This was about the end of the Jap effort to stop the prison break.

About 20 minutes after the attack began 25 Japs broke out on the road between the camp and Cabanatuan. Pajota and his guerrillas had established road blocks. The Japs in the village were attempting to send in reënforcements to the other side of the prison, where Edouard Josan had another group of guerrillas. Suddenly all went quiet.

The Rangers went thru all the barracks to see they were clear of Yank prisoners. Twenty-eight minutes after the attack started, Capt. Robert Krent, Seattle, Wash., directly in charge of the attack, signalled that the path was clear with a red flare.

The Rangers fell back, forming a guard behind the prisoners, who were crashing thru the underbrush toward a creek a mile away. In another 15 minutes the men were a thousand yards from the camp, and Krent fired a second flare as a signal for the guerrillas to fall back. Pajota's men broke off the engagement.

Mucci admitted the timing had gone pretty good. He had allowed 30 minutes; instead 28 minutes were actually used.

Long columns of hobbling men and 30 caribao drawn carts in which the sick and weak lay on straw beds came winding down the back trails into our lines at 9 a. m.

Our lines had suddenly jumped forward 10 miles to rendezvous with the prisoners. Trucks, ambulances, and jeeps brought them the rest of the way to specially set up hospitals.

Establish Road Blocks.

On the road more guerrillas waited with oxcarts. The sick or weak were loaded in them and the long trek back began. Some Rangers and Pajota's men formed a rear guard, but the Japs failed to follow.

In the village the officer and other men wounded at the gate and Rangers shot in another group were laid in a shack. One Ranger soon died. The medics operated on the other two.

The column of prisoners moved on. A full moon came up and made the going easier. At 11 o'clock they came to a highway. On the way in four Jap trucks rolled along it. The guerrillas now established two more road blocks.

Mucci hoped the Japs would stay off the road. They did. As the column advanced Mucci became jolly. He let them rest. He let them eat the eggs, candy, and fruit the Filipinos handed them as they passed.

The men stumbled on and the guerrillas and Rangers guarded them.

Too Excited to Sleep.

They were tired and weak as on that death march long ago. But this was no death march. Freedom lay hours ahead—freedom as the Filipinos called all the way: "Victor-ee!"

Back in American lines, many didn't go to sleep until just before dawn. They kept gathering in knots and talking. They were too excited, too bewildered.

About 10 p. m. one man, who had fallen asleep from exhaustion, arose from his cot and hobbled from the hospital tent. The ward nurse walked after him, stopped him, and asked him where he was going.

This American, crippled from months of malnutrition, shook off the orderly's hand and muttered, "Going on guard, of course."

"Wake up," said the orderly. The prisoner became exasperated. "I am awake," he said. Then he stared hard at the orderly, at the tent and the cot. "What's all this?" he said. It was minutes before he recovered and went back to bed. His buddies explained that for months he had stood guard from 9 p. m. to midnight.

Food Makes Them Ill.

For supper last night the hospital served the not too tasty but substantial dinner of beets, peas, beans, crackers, and hot chocolate. Men who hadn't eaten all day except for hamburger sandwiches provided when the Rangers brought them out of their prison camp ate fast, trying hard not to see if the man next in line got more than they.

That comes from months of near starvation. Only a few thought of asking for seconds. That comes from months under Jap rule.

Many became ill during the evening. That comes from years of eating rice plus spoonfuls of potato, greens, pork fat or dry ground fish, that before the war was used for fertilizer.

For breakfast this morning there were pancakes, oatmeal, canned milk, sugar, and coffee. Word that seconds were available got around; they fell in for seconds and thirds.

This morning the camp was full of rumors that they were flying home; they were taking the first ship, they were being kept in the hospital. Nobody knew what was going to happen to them, but for years they had been thriving on rumors, and habits are hard to break.

The story book rescue of the 511 prisoners succeeded beyond the wildest dreams of even the Rangers themselves, Col. Mucci said today, but all is not jubilation.

A Ranger officer still lives in a native shack seriously wounded, the victim of a fragment of mortar shell which burst as he was helping prisoners from the camp; another Ranger is with him, wounded in the leg from the same mortar burst.

Medics patched their wounds with crude implements. Guerrillas and Rangers stayed with the two men and their attendants as guards. One Ranger is dead. He was shot while covering some others who broke into the camp. He died in the shack where the officer today fights for his life.

100 Hold Off 600 Japs.

Thirty-two Filipino guerrillas are missing and believed dead. They were part of a force of less than 100 who held off an estimated 600 Japs and three tanks attempting to reach the camp from the town of Cabanatuan, two miles away. This force of ragged men with little military training mopped up all three tanks and stopped the Japs until the camp was cleared.

The stories the men tell are almost unbelievable. They themselves don't expect you to believe them. They say they can hardly believe the stories themselves. But these horror tales of three years of beating, starvation, filth and disease brought about by a strange, oriental people who do the most weird things, are all true.

One look at the crooked legs, the sunken eyes, the shuffling walk, tells you they must be true.

Sees His Brother Killed.

One man saw his brother killed, and he wants revenge. Another lost three cousins in the hell hole of Camp O'Donnell, and he wants, he says, "to even up his scores." Many have families whom they left in the Philippines three years ago. They want to find them or at least learn their fate.

Late yesterday one long time Philippine resident saw a little boy peering thru the hospital slats. He shouted, "Son!" and ran to the fence and pulled the boy over. His Filipino wife was near-by.

The first thing this morning a pretty girl in a blue flowered dress inquired for her father. She had heard the men from Cabanatuan had been freed, and had traveled most of the night to reach him. When she learned he was here she cried like few people I've seen.

The men are making plans. A Colorado boy wants to buy a farm with his accumulated pay. Another says he is going to get married—he hopes.

Had a Hidden Radio.

These men over whom the Japs kept a close watch are better informed on world events than most of us. They told their rescuers that the Russians were 65 miles from Berlin. They knew about the German drive in Belgium. They knew about our columns 30 miles from Manila.

How? Radio! For a year they have had a radio.

Two men built it into a water canteen. The Japs brought radios to them to be repaired, and each time the men said they needed more parts than were necessary. They kept the extra parts so that in time they had enough for a complete set.

They took the bottom out of a canteen and built a radio into it, then sealed the bottom again. An engineer assigned to the pump house supplied electricity from the pump generators. For the last three weeks they had a real radio—a big one which the Japs left with the rest of their stuff in their hurried retreat Jan. 7, the day of the opening bombardment preceding the Lingayen gulf landing.

Japs Set Them Free.

The Japs told them they were free Americans, but warned them if they left the camp they would be treated as combatants. The camp itself would be treated as neutral. Then the Jap guard fled.

Immediately the Americans moved into the Jap warehouses. They found 24,000 cans of canned milk captured by the Japs at Corregidor.

Almost every man got a pair of shoes and shirts which the Japs had withheld. There was Red Cross medicine galore.

The men butchered five steers, killed 97 ducks and nine pigs, and too many chickens to count. And they had a feed—their first in 37 months.

Those three weeks helped to make the break Tuesday night possible. On the average the men gained 15 pounds each and some gained as much as 30 pounds. They stuffed themselves until their stomachs stuck out like a baby's and they gained strength.

A new group of Jap guards began moving in, but they didn't seem to know what the score was, and did not know the stores of food in the prison camp had been stolen from the guards, so they gratefully accepted handouts from the Americans.

'Never Tells Much'

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 1 (AP).—The family of Lt. Col. Henry Mucci, prison camp rescue hero, complained today that "he never tells much about his exploits."

The 33 year old son of Mrs. Elizabeth Mucci entered West Point as a Connecticut National Guard candidate on his second attempt; the first time, he fell short of physical requirements.

After his graduation from West Point in 1936, he served at Randolph field, Tex., and Fort Francis Warren, Wyo., before being sent to Hawaii where he married the former Miss Marion Fountain of Denver, Colo. They have one child. He had been in Hawaii more than three years at the time of the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor.

Lt. Col. Mucci "hardly tells us anything," said his brother John, and mother when apprised of his latest feat. John, who received a medical discharge from the army a month ago, said:

"Harry was back home on furlough in September while I was here in a hospital before my discharge. The colonel said he had been in "a few battles" but refused to talk about it."

FIRST STORY OF MAYWOOD MEN TOLD TO TRIBUNE

death with rifle butts. Jensen saw that with his own eyes.

Survivors of the death march were left on the ground or on the rough board floor of the sheds at Camp O'Donnell. Some had eaten only one meal in 17 days. Nearly every one was sick.

Dysentery was the big killer. One of our hospital wards was known as the Zero room. In it went the dying men. When it became full the worst cases were laid on the ground under the floor. Even before death, maggots crawled in their mouths, ears, and bodies.

Each man got half a canteen of water daily to drink, keep clean and wash his clothes. The camp became indescribably filthy. The stench could be smelled for miles.

Many Strange Diseases.

We had no medicine. One man got gangrene in a leg. It was so bad you could see the bone and tendons.

"I am going to save you, medicine or no medicine," a Jap told him. He went to a white sheet, gathered a handful of maggots and wrapped them inside the bandage.

That man came out with the Rangers. Miracles go hand in hand with the horrors.

We had many strange diseases. One sailor became so bloated he actually cracked open.

The Japs did nothing about the disease except to erect a fence around the dysentery ward. They thought that would protect themselves.

The Americans began to arrive at Camp O'Donnell in mid-April. The Japs began moving them to Cabanatuan and other camps. In June conditions were no better. Seven thousand arrived by June and in July 385 died, 48 on July 12. Burial details could not bury them fast enough.

5,000 "Dead" Escaped.

At O'Donnell, where the Filipinos were kept, deaths were even higher. On May 25 a total of 56,000 was reported in the various prison camps. Official figures say more than 30,000 died at O'Donnell.

Here is something very few know:

Of those listed as dead, about 5,000 are still alive. They were members of burial details. The Japs just counted those going to grave yards and those returning. Always the returning figure was less than that which had left. Our officers explained that those missing had died and had been buried. Actually they escaped.

The horrors of death and disease were equaled by those imposed by the Japs. They did anything to torture us, from asking us to go barefooted to beating us. The worst treatment was the water cure. The Japs would force a garden hose down a man's throat and pour in water until some time it would burst the eardrums and come out of the ears. It was frequently used on Filipinos.

Nazis Protest Vatican's Ejection of Fugitives

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 1 (AP).—The German ambassador to the Holy See was reported today to have lodged a formal protest with the state secretariat on the alleged ejection by Swiss guards of two escaped German prisoners of war who sought refuge in Vatican City. The Rome newspaper Corriere del Mattino said allied military police arrested the two Germans after Swiss guards forced them to reënter Italian territory.

LONDON POLISH GROUP BREAKS RELATIONS WITH CZECH REGIME

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—The Polish government in exile broke relations with the Czecho-Slovakian government in London tonight and charged the Czech regime headed by President Eduard Benes was "not independent in making its decisions"—a reference which was interpreted as suggesting Russian pressure.

The break followed Czech recognition of the Moscow backed Lublin government as Poland's provisional government.

An official Polish announcement said the severance of diplomatic relations "does not in any way change our attitude toward the Czech and Slovak peoples and we will not give up efforts made so far to establish close collaboration and lasting union between the Polish nation and the Czech and Slovak nations."

FINLAND PAYS ON ITS U. S. DEBT AND BOND INTEREST

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—The United States finally has permitted Finland to pay the Dec. 15 instalment—$235,445—on its World War I. debt. In addition, the treasury issued licenses for the resumption of interest payments to American holders of Finnish government bonds.

The payments—both to the government and to the bondholders—will come out of Finland's frozen funds in this country.

VOICES OF YANKS SAVED AT LUZON HEARD ON W-G-N

Tell How Japs Made Every One Work.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The voices of American fighting men rescued by the 6th Rangers and Philippine guerrillas after imprisonment of almost three years by the Japanese on Luzon were brought to their families and homes in the United States yesterday thru army short wave facilities and rebroadcast by the Mutual Broadcasting system. W-G-N carried the dramatic story of the rescue at 12:45 p. m. yesterday with Royal Arch Gunnison, Mutual correspondent, who was himself a prisoner of the Japs for almost two years, interviewing the newly freed Yanks.

Col. J. W. Duckworth, 1101 Cervantes blvd., San Francisco, medical officer who was in command at the prison camp, told Gunnison: "Glorious is no word for the feeling of being free." He predicted that with the possible exception of one or two men all of the rescued would make it home.

Carts Bring Up Weak Men.

The broadcast was made from a shed in the midst of a rice field. Gunnison described the scene. Ox-carts were bringing up those too weak to walk. They were being transferred by medical corpsmen to American trucks and taken back to security behind American lines and their first full meals and shelter. Col. Duckworth reported that little of the food and supplies sent from home by the American Red Cross reached them—once two boxes for the camp, later four boxes.

Gunnison, who was in the Philippines at the time of Pearl Harbor, said there were many in the group who had marched thru Manila after Corregidor.

"But they are only shadows and husks of what they were then," he said. They still proudly wore their tattered American uniforms, he added, and here and there was an identification of the units with which they served. The men "were astonished at the magnificent equipment the troops now have in comparison with what they had in 1941," Gunnison said.

All Forced to Work.

Lt. Col. Donald W. Sawtelle, Corpus Christi, Tex., reported that all men, whether able or not, were forced to work. If they declined, privileges were withdrawn—they were put on half rations and were not permitted to see movies.

When they attended movies, they were forced to bow and scrape until Japanese guards and officers were properly seated. The pictures were mainly newsreels and American features made prior to the beginning of the war, he said.

Asked whether the prisoners were accorded proper treatment, Col. Sawtelle said that was a hard question, indicating that the Japs did so "only when they so desired."

Col. Sawtelle concluded by asking his young son to look after his mother until he could return. Mutual announced that arrangements had been made for the families of the two officers to hear the broadcasts.

MAYWOOD HOPEFULLY AWAITS TIDINGS OF ITS SONS ON BATAAN

In Maywood and other western suburbs that sent 88 men to fight in the Philippines with the 192d tank battalion on Bataan, anxious relatives waited all day yesterday for word that their boys may have been among the prisoners rescued from the Japanese prison camp.

The list of names, transmitted early in alphabetical order from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, had not mentioned a single Maywood boy.

"We are very thankful that so many men were rescued," said A. C. McArthur of Villa Park, president of the American Bataan clan, "and we are hoping for more good news, but we fear that many prisoners were moved from the Philippines to camps in Japan and China when the American invasion of the islands began."

McArthur's son, Tech. Sgt. Albert C. McArthur, was reported to have died in a prison camp in June, 1943.

LOSS OF MORE U. S. AIR BASES IN CHINA IMMINENT

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 1 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Wedemeyer said tonight that loss of some United States 14th air force bases east of the China-Indo-China corridor was imminent, but declared himself "enthusiastic and confident about operations in our theater."

Wedemeyer said enemy operations indicated that the Japanese expected American landings on the China coast, "and I assure you we won't disappoint him in his expectations." He said he was happy the fields were not lost earlier, when their use had "helped operations in the Philippines archipelago a great deal."

Mayor Names Feb. 12-22 as Americanism Period

An Americanism period from Feb. 12 to Feb. 22, Lincoln's birthday to Washington's birthday, was proclaimed yesterday by Mayor Kelly. He urged Chicagoans to consider their privileges and duties as Americans during this period and to purchase war bonds and donate their blood to the Red Cross blood bank.

'HE'S RESCUED?' IT'S LIKE DREAM TO HIS MOTHER

A Tribune reporter and photographer were the first to bring word to Mrs. Jenny Jensen of 6528 S. Hermitage av. that her son, Pvt. Charles C. Jensen, was safe in American hands after nearly three years as a Japanese prisoner of war.

"I can't believe it!" the small, graying woman exclaimed again and again. "This is the best news I've had in three years."

Even after the reporter had shown her a copy of a cable from Luzon signed by Arthur Veysey, Tribune correspondent, promising a series of articles by Jensen and another rescued Chicago soldier, Pvt. Norman J. Lev, she was still dazed and incredulous. "I think this is all a dream," she said sadly.

Lets Herself Believe It.

Assured that it was not, she finally let herself believe, and happiness lighted her face. Then her daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Larson, who lives with her, entered.

"It's been so long!" Mrs. Larson exclaimed, when she was told the news. She burst into tears and rushed from the room. Her mother followed her. Soon the two returned, perfectly composed, and finished giving the reporter the information he sought.

Pvt. Jensen is 25. He attended Harper High school and Wilson Junior college and worked for Swift & Co. before entering the army in April, 1941. He was sent to the Philippines in the fall of that year as a medical corpsman with the 192d tank battalion. Soon after the fall of Corregidor the war department notified his mother that he was missing. About a year and one-half later word came that he was a prisoner of war.

Messages Received.

Then the laconic messages which prisoners are allowed to send out began to arrive. There were five or six in all. Last November the news came that a person purporting to be Pvt. Jensen had broadcast a message to his mother from a Japanese radio station.

Lillian, Jensen's other sister, was away on an errand when the news was brought to the family.

The Tribune men then brought the news of Pvt. Jensen's rescue to the girl to whom he was to have become formally engaged at Christmas time, 1941. She is Emily E. Pope, 22, of 5604 S. Sacramento av.

"I Can Hardly Talk."

Pvt. Lev's wife, Jewel, who lives with her parents at 3251 Olive st., heard the news of the rescue raid from a friend and called THE TRIBUNE to learn if her husband was listed. Informed that he was, she screamed.

"I'm so excited I can hardly talk," she said. "Another shock like this and, boy, you'd just find the body. I hope when Norman gets back we can get started on a home and family right away."

Pvt. Lev, 29, and his wife were married in September, 1941, a few weeks before he went overseas as a member of the army medical corps. Lev's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lev, live at 5023 N. Lawndale av.

GEN. MacARTHUR CALLS ON 90 OF RESCUED HEROES

U. S. EVACUATION HOSPITAL, Luzon, Philippines, Feb. 1 (AP).—Gen. MacArthur soberly greeted 90 friends of Bataan and Corregidor on a visit today to American prisoners of war rescued from a Japanese prison camp.

The general strolled thru the hospital wards and saw the officers who still remained here for treatment and rest. The able bodied prisoners had left a short time previously for a transient camp.

Some Come to Attention.

Those able to do so came to attention as the five-starred general entered the room. He slowly circled the lines of cots, searching for familiar faces.

The hallway was lined with the former captives, now neat in newly issued uniforms on which they proudly wore shiny new insigne of rank.

MacArthur chatted several minutes with Col. James Duckworth, medical corps ranking officer in the group.

Colonel's Arm Broken.

Duckworth suffered a broken arm in a fall during his escape from the prison camp with the rescuing Rangers and Filipino guerrillas, but he assured the general he "felt fine."

MacArthur and Duckworth last met during the general's inspection of a hospital on Bataan, in January, 1942.

As MacArthur left the room, Capt. Denie King, Austin, Tex., saluted and asked permission to lead a patrol to Corregidor. The general assured him he would get a chance to land again on the fortress island.

King was captured at Fort Drum, a small fortified island near Corregidor in Manila bay. He was an officer with the 59th coast artillery.

JAPS STIFFEN REAR GUARDS AS BRITISH APPROACH MANDALAY

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 1 (AP).—Japanese troops, after yielding hundreds of square miles to the allies, appeared to be stiffening their rearguard forces and violent close-quarter fighting broke out on three battlefronts in Burma today.

Sagaing, directly across the Irrawaddy river from Mandalay, was being steadily reduced by allied air and ground forces. The Mars task force northeast of Mandalay was breaking up concentrations of Japanese attempting to hold along the Burma road to Lashio.

Headquarters announced the capture yesterday of Kangaw, an important town dominating the Taungup road near Akyab, but said the Japanese were counter attacking fiercely. Farther north, west African troops neared Monywa, 40 miles northwest of Mandalay.

BULGAR COURT METES DEATH TO PRINCE CYRIL

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Prince Cyril, brother of late King Boris of Bulgaria, and three former Bulgarian premiers were among the nine ex-government officials sentenced to death today by the Bulgarian people's court on charges of treason, the Sofia radio said tonight.

The broadcast, reported by the federal communications commission, said that former Premier Bogdan Philov and Lt. Gen. Nikola Mikhov were condemned to die with Cyril. The three men had served as regents just before a new Bulgarian government broke previous axis ties with Germany and got out of the war.

The broadcast said death sentences also were meted out to former Premiers Dobri Bozhilov and Ivan Bogrianov; former Foreign Ministers Dimiter Shishmanov and Parvan Draganov, and two former ministers of the interior. The Moscow radio said 100 others, many of whom held high government posts, were also sentenced to death.

MANY MEXICAN PILGRIMS FEARED DEAD IN WRECK

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1 (AP).—More than 100 persons were believed killed and about 150 injured in the wreck of a religious pilgrims' train 100 miles north of here early today. The National Railways said 96 were known to be dead and 67 badly hurt, but rescue workers said the figures were higher.

The wreck occurred near the village of Cazadero when a freight train ran into the rear of the nine-coach special.

The pilgrims, men, women and children, left Mexico City yesterday for San Juan de Los Lagos on a visit to the shrine of the virgin.

'THANK GOD!' CRY CHICAGO KIN OF RESCUED YANKS

Parents, Wives Sob with Joy at Luzon News.

Parents and wives of Chicagoland prisoners of war sobbed with joy yesterday when they heard the news that their loved ones had been rescued from a Japanese prison camp on Luzon.

"Thank God!" was the first expression of nearly every one.

Mrs. James Laycock of Hickory street, Fox Lake, whose son, Pvt. Marvin Laycock, 30, was among those rescued, wept and laughed by turns.

"I'm so thrilled I want to sing and dance," she said. "And that's silly, you know, because I'm 65. But that's the way I feel. You know how it is when you are forced to hold your breath for a long time and all of a sudden you can let go and breathe again. That's the way I feel."

"We Prayed a Lot."

Mrs. Laycock and her husband have cared for their son's daughter, Janet, 8, who last saw her father on her fourth birthday, Dec. 15, 1940, shortly before he left for the Philippines as a member of a coast artillery anti-aircraft unit.

"Janet prayed every night," Mrs. Laycock said. "She always said, 'Please, God, take care of all the boys in the war and please bring my daddy home safely.' We all prayed. We prayed a lot."

Another of the rescued prisoners was Pvt. Edward Johnson, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Johnson of 5214 Kimball av. A Tribune photographer brought the good news to his parents. When she heard it, Mrs. Johnson gasped with astonishment and was silent for several seconds. Then she whispered, "Well, my prayer has come true."

Three Brothers in Service.

Edward Johnson is the youngest of four brothers in the army and navy. Victor is a quartermaster in the navy, William is with the army medical corps in France, and Lt. Raymond is with the army air forces in the Aleutians.

Edward entered the army medical corps in April, 1941, and left for the Philippines in the following September. His family has received four postcards from him. The latest arrived two weeks ago, but it was dated May 6, 1944. The card said his health was excellent.

Neighbors came to the home of Mrs. Winifred Memmler, a widow, 1523 Long av., and told her that her son, Pvt. Harold Memmler, 27, was among the men saved.

"This is the best news I've heard in many years," she said. "It's worth a million dollars just to know he's safe."

Receives Four Cards.

Pvt. Memmler enlisted in the infantry in June, 1941, and went overseas in the following September. He was taken prisoner on Corregidor. His mother was notified by the war department that he was seriously wounded in March, 1942, but later she received four postcards saying he was getting along "all right."

At the home of Pvt. James M. Hildebrandt, his father, August, a Chicago Surface Lines operator, said he was holding "a little family reunion." Pvt. Hildebrandt is 24, and enlisted in the army Aug. 20, 1941, just after his 21st birthday. He was a member of the 16th bombardment suadron and landed in Manila on Nov. 23, 1941.

For 14 months after the fall of Corregidor, Hildebrandt received no word of his son, then a postcard came saying he was a Japanese prisoner.

Pvt. Hildebrandt graduated from Parker High school in 1939 and worked as an electrical helper for the Republic Steel company before his enlistment. He has two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Kuhr, 8020 Crandon av., and Mrs. Ruth Martin, 908 W. 68th st.

Saved for Second Time.

Another Chicagoan saved from the prison camp was 1st Lt. Walter E. Stone, 39, son of George Stone, a retired carpenter, of 8854 Michigan av. Lt. Stone's rescue by the Rangers was the second great escape of his life, according to his father, who said Walter was one of 750 persons saved several years before the war when the liner President Hoover sank in the Pacific. Lt. Stone entered the army in 1939, and was sent to the Philippines in 1941 with an engineer corps unit. After the fall of Corregidor his father heard nothing from him until he received a card from a prison camp early last year.

Pvt. John H. Bailey, 28, 502 N. Paulina st., was another Chicagoan who was rescued. A Tribune reporter who called at the family home was greeted by the soldier's son, John H. Bailey Jr., 6, who pointed proudly to a large picture surrounded by an American flag.

"That's my daddy," said the boy. But he has not seen his daddy since April, 1941, when Pvt. Bailey entered the army. His wife died in February, 1941, and John Jr. has been cared for by the soldier's mother, Mrs. Frank Sokol.

Sister a War Widow.

Pvt. Bailey's sister, Mrs. Mary Perlake, and her infant daughter also live with Mr. and Mrs. Sokol. Mrs. Perlake's husband, 2d Lt. Rudolph Perlake, was killed in action recently in Germany.

Also on the rescue list was Capt. Charles Joseph Katz, 33, a medical officer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Katz of 133 N. Scoville av., Oak Park. Capt. Katz served as a psychiatrist at the Elgin State hospital for three years prior to 1941, when he entered the army and was sent to the Philippines. He was assigned to a hospital in Manila when the war began and was captured on Corregidor.

The oldest of the Chicagoans to be rescued was Corp. Patrick Byrne, 50, who has been in the regular army since 1916, a year after he came to the United States from his native Ireland. His nearest of kin in the United States is his first cousin, Mrs. Harry C. Drayson, 5505 Adams st. Mrs. Drayson received a prison camp postcard from him in September, 1943.

Another Chicagoan on the rescue list was Staff Sgt. Floyd Barnhardt, whose address was given as 3346 Seminary av., but he was not known by the present occupants of that residence.

Pvt. Henry W. Peontek of Springfield was another Illinoisan who was rescued. He entered the army four years ago and was taken prisoner on Bataan. His sister, Mrs. Johanna Cox of Springfield, said he was the youngest of 12 children, so he had four brothers and seven sisters praying for him.

Another household joyfully overwhelmed was that of Pvt. Louis C. Zelis, 31, of 3137 W. 42d pl., member of the 192d tank battalion. "Thank God for that good news," his mother, Mrs. Mary Zelis, a widow, said to a Tribune photographer. His wife, May, lives at 4842 S. Springfield av. The last word they had from him was a card, dated May 6, 1944, delivered Jan. 15, which said he was "feeling fine."

"I'm shaking like a leaf," Mrs. Foster McMurray, 7353 S. Green st., reported last night on hearing that her brother, Pvt. John J. Gordon, 42, was among those rescued. Gordon joined the army 21 years ago and was captured at Clark field. He is unmarried. Two other sisters live in Chicago. They are Mrs. Irving Schmeegas, 5801 S. Carpenter st., and Mrs. Ellen Walinski, 237 W. 47th st. They too, were overjoyed.

One of the Iowa men who were reported rescued is Mason Blair, 33, a civilian employe of the war department, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Blair, live at Onawa. He enlisted in the army when he was 18 and had served two enlistments in the Philippines.

"My husband has been an invalid for seven years, and he cried as if his heart would break when he heard the news," Mrs. Blair said. "Dad thought he only had a short time to live and he wanted to see Mason. After he heard the news he was so much better that he sat up almost at once."

U. S. Flag Sends Prisoners to Dizzy Peak of Happiness

LUZON, P. I., Jan. 31 [Delayed] —(AP).—The sight of the American flag—freedom after almost three years in a Japanese prison camp hell—and food and more food—these were the things that stirred the hearts, revived the cloudy memories and put new life into 511 American and allied prisoners who were rescued last night.

Some were hysterical with happiness at the time of rescue and others gave way to long pentup emotions later—one when he saw the flag on passing thru the American lines.

"It cut right thru me—the flag," cried Staff Sgt. Clinton Goodbla, of Longview, Wash. "Being free cut thru me. And the cigarets and chow."

Kisses a Rescuer.

One gaunt young prisoner flung his arms around Pvt. Thomas Grace Jr. of New Orleans of the rescuing Rangers, embraced and kissed him.

"I got so damned flustered," said Grace, "that I almost forgot to do my job."

The happiness of the released prisoners was infectious. Rescuing Rangers and Filipino guerrillas were in a celebrating mood when the column arrived at the American lines.

Most of the prisoners brought out were eager for American food.

A one armed young soldier [he lost the limb at Bataan] ate six eggs, a large helping of meat, seven biscuits with jam and a can of grapefruit. He washed it down with five cups of coffee.

Bread Delights Britisher.

"White bread!" exclaimed a British soldier, Signalman Thomas Potter of Harrow, Middlesex, England. "Blimey, this is better than I got in peacetime!" He was captured at Singapore.

Sgt. Laverne Ritchie, of Trenton, Ill., spoke of the death march from Bataan. "On the first day of that march, they gave us no water," he recalled. "We drank from mud puddles and even then they threatened us for lagging."

Pvt. Fred Vinton of Jackson, Mich., was made a power plant engineer.

"I had a piece of luck," Vinton explained. "One guard there liked me. He hated Jap officers so thoroly that he practically became pro-American. He came around and tipped us to 'listen to your radios' at the time of the invasion of Leyte."

BIG SINGAPORE DRYDOCK SUNK BY SUPER FORTS

20TH BOMBER COMMAND HDQ., India, Feb. 1 (AP).—Super Fortresses of the 20th bomber command dealt the Japanese navy a devastating blow in an attack today upon Singapore. It destroyed a huge floating dry dock that could have handled the largest warship in the world.

Lt. Edwin Zaidlics.

Reconnaissance photos proved the dock was sunk. A 460-foot merchant ship that had been in the dock was seen to be burning.

It was one of the greatest air attacks in strength ever flown by B-29s.

Returning crews reported they saw bombs explode solidly aboard the 855 foot dry dock, whose 172 foot width gave it capacity to handle 50,000 ton vessels.

Penang Harbor Fired.

Installations bordering Georgetown harbor on Penang Island also were hit and set ablaze by a sizable diversionary force. Pilots who flew over Penang said flames covered the Georgetown waterfront area. Penang is one of the most important Japanese submarine bases and supply ports in the Asiatic theater.

[A bulletin from 20th air force headquarters in Washington, D. C., said none of the Super Fortresses was lost to enemy action. Gunners reported two enemy interceptors definitely downed, six probables, and eight more damaged. The Washington report called opposition in the air weak and anti-aircraft fire moderate. Possibly upward of 150 of the giant bombers took part in the strike. The bulletin called the force "large."]

Third Singapore Raid.

The B-29s attacked Singapore for the third time. The first mission, on Nov. 6, smashed the gates of another naval dry dock. The round trip to Singapore is roughly 3,800 miles from the Super Forts' India base.

Col. J. V. Edmundson, a group commander, flew the mission as copilot in the lead ship. He said the dry dock belched great clouds of smoke as his group went in. A previous squadron had laid 1,000 pound high explosives on the target.

Edmundson reported the bombs from his group, dropped in salvo on the signal of Lt. Edwin [Moose] Zaidlicz, Chicago, formed a perfect pattern tightly around the dry dock. Smoke from the previous hits prevented accurate estimate of damage done by the second wave.

TOKYO REPORTS RAIDS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Unconfirmed Tokyo broadcasts yesterday reported three single Super Fortress sorties over the home islands of Japan on Wednesday night.

Trans-Atlantic V-Bomb Story Exposed as Fake

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 1 (AP). —Reports given by a German fugitive who originally was described as a scientist acquainted with Hitler's V-4 now "seem to be more or less fantastic," the Swedish foreign office announced today. The German was a military deserter, a bulletin said.

[While posing as a scientist, the fugitive said the Germans were ready to begin V-4 fire across the Atlantic.]

JAP BOMBS HELP A CHICAGOAN'S LCT OFF REEF

ABOARD AN LCT SOMEWHERE IN THE WESTERN PACIFIC (AP).—Landing craft tank No. 174 is called Pistol Packin' Mama. She has breasted the front wave of island hopping victories northward from Woodlark, New Guinea, to Ulithi, an atoll south of Japan. Her skipper is Ensign E. L. Kurek, 3716 McLean st., Chicago.

LCT 174 was shipped from San Francisco in sections and the crew put her together in Brisbane, Australia. She saw her first combat action in Morobe bay, New Guinea. She wears the bronze stars of two major naval battles, the battle of New Guinea and of the Bismarck archipelago. She has had more than 100 alerts and has shot down four Japanese planes without losing a man.

Once when she was stuck on a reef off Aitape, New Guinea, Japanese bombers attacked her. The exploding bombs pushed her into the air, and she scooted away unscathed.

Belgium's War Casualties Since 1940 Exceed 65,000

JANUARY'S AIRPORT BURDEN REPORTED 45% OVER THAT IN '44

Plane traffic in January swamped terminal facilities at Chicago airport, it was reported yesterday by Public Works Commissioner Hewitt, who currently is negotiating with the air lines for speedy construction of a new passenger building.

Airplane arrivals and departures last month were 45.1 per cent higher and passenger traffic 29.8 per cent higher than in January, 1944. Comparative statistics for the last three years in principal categories:

	1945.	1944.	1943.
Scheduled [airline] planes	5,341	3,680	2,913
Passengers	74,803	57,625	36,875
Priv and military planes	2,624	3,242	5,292
Airmail, lbs.	1,702,160	1,270,421	864,049

The transport lines have agreed to underwrite the cost of the new terminal, Hewitt said, and will get their money back in monthly instalments over a 10 year period by remission of landing fees. The air lines are expected to report within a few days on acceptability of the city's terminal building plans.

GERMANS PAINT GRIM PICTURE OF REFUGEE PLIGHT

Relatives Being Cared For, Troops Told.

New York, Feb. 1 [Special].—A grim picture of the millions of German refugees fleeing a "gruesome fate" in the east was painted today in a Berlin wireless dispatch transmitted for publication in German army newspapers. The dispatch, reported by the federal communications commission, attempted to reassure soldiers with relatives among the throngs of homeless by saying that "everything humanly possible" would be done by Nazi welfare agencies and that news of individuals would come "as quickly as possible."

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Tidningen, meanwhile, said that "Berlin today looks like a city in the front line itself." The dispatch, quoted by the British radio in a broadcast recorded by the office of war information, estimated the total of German refugees from the east at 4,500,000. Dispatches to neutral capitals said the rumble of heavy guns could be heard in Berlin. The German radio also reported that double deck buses were helping to evacuate refugees from Danzig and West Prussia.

Tells of Suffering.

"Thousands of our comrades at the front will wonder, 'Where is my wife?' or 'What has become of my children, my parents?" said the Nazi dispatch directed to the German army papers. Quoting an eyewitness account, it added:

"Much snow has fallen on the roads of migration and suffering. The low farmhouses in which we throw ourselves upon straw remain but ephemeral pictures for us. Behind us are tears, which were shed on the doorsteps of small and large farm yards in the Warthegau, and the red, glowing skies of the night which caused these peasant tears.

"Our ears still ring from the hard knocks at windows and doors in the middle of the night, 'Pack your belongings, put horses into harness, a pack of soviet tanks is approaching the village.'"

Thousands Stream to Country.

Describing the reception centers for the refugees, the dispatch added:

"Tens of thousands are streaming into the country every day. When the trains arrive in the stations party assistants and their units are ready to look after everyone; the National Socialist welfare scheme distributes food; the Hitler boys carry luggage; political party officials give advice and information.

"In Berlin alone, in one of the big assembly centers, tens of thousands pass daily thru the transit camps. If they are unable to find accommodation with relatives and have no definite destination points of their own, they leave from here in collective transports for areas in the rear.

"From the moment they reach the borders of the reception areas, the columns are led from place to place by political leaders and members of the SA and police officers. In villages and at bridges and road junctions, in inns and schools, the National Socialist welfare scheme has set up feeding centers which, as it were, are milestones of the long, difficult march."

Threatened Berlin's defensive shield of anti-aircraft artillery is being stripped to rush guns to the crumbling eastern front, the Stockholm Aftonbladet said in a dispatch reported to the office of war information.

BERLIN AND NAZI RAILWAY HUBS BOMBED BY R.A.F.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—More than 1,000 R. A. F. bombers poured down tons of explosives tonight on German railway centers supplying the crumbling eastern front and blasted refugee jammed Berlin. The night raids by the British heavies followed daylight attacks by American and British bombers on Rhine supply points for the western front.

The R. A. F. said the raids were to prevent the Germans sending large bodies of troops and equipment to the eastern front. Railway centers heavily attacked were Mainz, Ludwigshafen and Siegen.

Ludwigshafen was hit during the day by four waves of more than 700 United States Fortresses, escorted by 300 Mustang fighters, which also blasted other freight yards at Mannheim and rail and highway bridges at Wesel. R. A. F. Lancasters during the day bombed the rail junction at Munchen-Gladbach in an attempt to block German troop movements. Liberators and Fortresses from the 15th air forces in Italy slashed at Austria for the second straight day.

Report Reds Kill German Gen. Block in Skirmish

REDS TOLD WHY ALLIES QUESTION MOSCOW CLAIMS

We're Not Children, Says British Press.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—The Tribune, British left wing magazine, accusing Moscow commentators of oversensitiveness to British and American skepticism toward soviet military claims, said today that "only one degree less furious than Zhukov's attack on Berlin is that of the Moscow press against its colleagues in the west."

"The gravamen of Pravda and Izvestia commentators," the paper said, "is briefly this: The Germans have been routed in the east; there are no substantial German forces anywhere else; any one who suggests that Von Rundstedt's offensive upset the allied timetable in the west is playing Goebbels' game; to speculate whether there was any withdrawal at all in the east is akin to heresy."

We're Not Children, Reds Told.

The Tribune said the Russians "must realize that we are not all school children in the west."

"If we are at times skeptical of Russian figures and reports, it is not necessarily due to ill will, but to the somewhat extravagant conception of numerical accuracy in soviet military reports. For example, if one adds up Russia's official figures of German losses, they reach a staggering total of more than 9,000,000 killed and taken prisoner and 20,000,000 wounded. Our only defense against such inflation is constant skepticism. Moscow might note that."

Claims Allies Delaying Drive.

MOSCOW, Feb. 1 (AP).—Konstantine Hoffman, a writer in Red Star, said today "it becomes difficult to explain further delays" in the allied drive from the west on Germany.

He quoted the London Daily Express to the effect that the Nazi high command had moved its best troops from the western to the eastern front and quoted a correspondent as saying meanwhile "Montgomery is showing no hurry."

CERMAK NEPHEW IS AWARDED DSC FOR ST. LO ACTION

PARIS, Feb. 1 (AP).—A nephew of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, who was killed by an assassin in Miami 12 years ago, has been awarded the distinguished service cross for heroism in the St. Lo breakthru last summer.

He is Staff Sgt. James J. Cermak, 32, Westmont, Ill. As a member of the 41st armored infantry regiment, Cermak single handedly turned back a German column at Pont Brocade, enabling his unit to continue its advance without interruption.

While the rest of his squad withdrew under Nazi fire, Cermak fired 15 rounds with a submachine gun, then 15 more with a 57 millimeter weapon. The Germans turned back after losing two half tracks, seven motorcycles, a number of bicycles, machiens guns, rocket launchers, rifles and ammunition.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PATROLS PROBE NAZI LINES ALONG FRONT IN NORTHERN ITALY

ROME, Feb. 1 (AP).—Daring allied patrols, moving thru some of the most difficult fighting country in Europe, again carried the burden of war in Italy today as both sides prodded ceaselessly at long dormant lines all along the front.

The Germans were extremely sensitive to these probing expeditions and all along the front they stepped up their mortar and machine gun fire. Thirteen miles southeast of Bologna, one 5th army party ran into a field of German "shoe" mines—small wooden boxes loaded with explosive—and suffered casualties.

Despite adverse weather, the tactical air force roamed over the Po valley and the Brenner pass areas, concentrating on German lines of communications and supply bases. Ammunition dumps southeast of Modena and at Crevalcore were hit, railyards were damaged and bridges blocked. A number of railroad cars and motor vehicles were destroyed.

Reveal New Type V-Bomb Used on Western Front

PARIS, Feb. 1 (AP).—A dispatch from the United States 9th army front revealed for the first time today that the latest German V weapon, which has been bombarding rear areas for some time, was a five foot rocket carrying about the same explosive charge as a 170 mm. [6.69 inches] shell. It was described as a little brother of the 14 ton V-2 rocket bomb, and the dispatch said it could be used in the manner of an artillery gun to bombard cities at long range.

GERMANS CALL BIG THREE PLAN 'WILSON FARCE'

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The German radio transmitted yesterday the following dispatch which was recorded by the Associated Press listening post in New York:

"Information is on hand in the German foreign office that at the meeting of Stalin, Roosevelt, and Churchill political action is to be carried thru similar to the one started by former United States President Wilson with his 14 points in 1918.

See Terms Modified.

"This time it is intended to achieve the same aim by modifying the demand for unconditional surrender. This has been agreed upon after it had been ascertained that the German command and the German people are determined to offer extreme resistance and after it has been recognized that Germany cannot be conquered either from the west or from the east.

"Well informed circles of the Wilhelmstrasse today called this plan of the governments partaking in the three power conference a 'Wilson farce' and pointed out that such action was already planned at the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting in Cairo.

Say Germans Immune.

"In a political respect such action is parallel to the action in the first World war when the allies tried to make the German war command surrender by speaking only of the removal of the kaiser and militarism, whereas it is now intended to hoodwink the German nation into believing that it is only a case of removing the Fuehrer and national socialism.

"The German nation, however, Wilhelmstrasse circles continue, is as the Fuehrer stressed in his speech, immune against enticing arts of this kind, due to the spirit of the national socialist movement. For this reason no one in Germany will fall for this planned maneuver."

U. S. VETERINARY HELPS TO SAVE PRIZE CATTLE

SOMEWHERE IN HOLLAND, Feb. 1 (AP).—Maj. Harry Gorman of Denver, Colo., veterinary in chief of the allied supreme headquarters military mission, played a prominent role in evacuating prize cattle in Holland after dikes and dams were blasted by allied and enemy bombings.

The veterinary helped farmers move out as much of their live stock as possible when water rushed over the rich farmlands of Walcheren Island. Many famous herds were lost, but much of the live stock was saved as a nucleus for new blue blooded herds.

Only horses and cows could be saved, Gorman said. They were evacuated in barges and the smaller animals, such as pigs and chickens, perished in the flood waters.

HILTON DEALS TO BUY STEVENS FOR 7.5 MILLIONS

Chicagoans to Share Hotel Ownership.

Sale of the Stevens hotel to a syndicate headed by Cornelius N. Hilton, New York, for approximately $7,500,000 was reported to be near yesterday. Attorneys representing the principals said that no contract has been signed, but negotiations are in progress.

Hilton, president of Hilton Hotels, returned to New York after a conference with S. A. Healy, contractor, chairman of the board of the Avenue Hotel corporation, owner of the property. Daniel M. Healy, vice president and general counsel of the corporation, represented the owners and William J. Friedman of Gottlieb & Schwartz is attorney for Hilton.

Chicago Interests Involved.

The Hilton syndicate includes Chicago as well as eastern interests, it was learned. Hilton's Chicago banking connection is with the American National Bank and Trust company, of which Lawrence F. Stern is president.

The 3,000 room Stevens, originally representing a reported $28,000,000 investment, is known as the world's largest hotel. In the early days of the war the army took it over from the owners for $6,000,000, of which it got back $443,268 thru the sale of furnishings. The Avenue Hotel corporation bought it from the army at auction for $5,251,000 in September, 1943.

Kirkeby Sells Stock.

Arnold S. Kirkeby, Chicago hotel operator, negotiated the purchase of the Stevens from the army and for a time was president of the owning corporation. Later he sold his 15 per cent stock interest in the corporation to S. H. Healy, and last October Kirkeby and the corporation became involved in litigation over the purchase terms.

The Hilton hotel group includes the Plaza and Roosevelt in New York; the Town House in Los Angeles, Cal.; a hotel in Long Beach, Cal.; Texas hotels bearing the Hilton name in Abilene, El Paso, Longview, Lubbock, and Plainview; also in Albuquerque, N. M.; a hotel in Dayton, O.; and the Hilton Palacio hotel in Chihuahua, Mexico.

Hilton has been in the hotel business since his return from World War I. in 1919, when he opened a 100 room establishment in Cisco, Tex. Previously he had operated a five room "hotel" for traveling salesmen above his father's general store in San Antonio, N. M., when the town's population was 250. In 1943 he acquired controling interest in the Roosevelt hotel in New York, his first establishment east of Texas. At that time his hotel interests in the west were estimated to be worth above 20 million dollars. His home is in Bel Air, near Los Angeles, Cal.

CORPORAL'S SHOULDER USED AS GUN REST TO REPEL GERMANS

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 45TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Feb. 1.—When the Germans recently counter-attacked a company of this division, Corp. Willard M. Gabriel of Waterloo, Ia., spotted them at 50 yards.

"They started throwing hand grenades at us and making things messy," Gabriel related.

There was no fixture on which to rest his machine gun so Gabriel stationed himself at a window in full view of the enemy while one of his buddies placed the barrel on Gabriel's shoulder and fired away. Sixteen Germans were killed, six were wounded, 15 captured, and the counter-thrust repulsed.

GREATER POWER IS SOUGHT FOR STATE SENATORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 1.—A move toward strengthening the role of individual senators is planned for next week, it was learned today. A resolution has been prepared to require that all of the governor's appointments requiring senate confirmation go first to a committee of related subject.

Now, as in the past, the appointments are referred to the executive committee. The change would enable more senators to have a hand in passing upon the qualifications of appointees.

"This resolution is not aimed against Gov. Green," said Sen. Ryan [D., Chicago]. "It simply means that the senate ought to exercise the independence intended under our constitution. Committees specializing in certain subjects are naturally better able to examine appointments."

1ST ARMY CUTS NEW HOLES IN SIEGFRIED LINE

3d Army Drives Within 7½ Miles of Prum.

PARIS, Feb. 1 (AP).—American troops drove as deep as two and a half miles today thru hitherto unbreached ramparts of the west wall [Siegfried line] south of Aachen against resistance so light the belief grew that the Germans had weakened the reich's great western fortifications to bolster the eastern front.

The full weight of the the assault by the United States 1st and 3d armies was crunching thru dragon teeth tank traps and pilliboxes on a 40 mile front, widening the breaches in the Siegfried line against astonishing lack of resistance.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army, closing to within seven and a half miles of Prum after seizing Winterscheid, swept three and a half miles into Germany without sighting a tank. Prum is the big road and railway center which supplies the Siegfried network facing southern Belgium and northern Luxemburg.

Heavy Traffic at Karlsruhe.

Heavy rail and road traffic moving east from Karlsruhe on the Rhine and north from Wissembourg at the northern border of Alsace indicated that there too the Germans were pulling out and sending the best of their forces east for the battle of Berlin.

[The German news agency DNB asserted that Gen. Eisenhower had virtually completed preparations for a big offensive east of Aachen and speculated that it might coincide with a renewed drive from Holland farther north.]

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army, storming the Siegfried line in at least three sectors, met little resistance at some points and heavy at others as it developed its assault along a line from the area of Monschau, 15 miles southeast of Aachen, southward for 20 miles to the front near St. Vith.

Gain Up to Four Miles.

Gains of as much as four miles were registered as these doughboys plowed eastward thru the snow and slush toward the Eifel mountains, where lie the main Siegfried fortifications.

The 9th infantry division moved two and a half miles thru the Siegfried line before it ran into heavy machine gun and rifle fire at a crossroads nine miles southeast of Monschau.

Farther south the 1st infantry division, first to resume the drive on the west wall, moved more than a mile east thru the woods and on thru dragon teeth and lightly manned outer Siegfried pillboxes without drawing a challenge from the main forts' guns beyond.

The 82d airborne division sent patrols into the edge of the German town of Losheim, inside the Siegfried line 13 miles northeast of St. Vith.

In the Monschau area, the 2d infantry division moved into the center of gloomy Monschau forest against light opposition, reaching the first of the more formidable Siegfried defenses.

3d Extends Bridgehead.

The 78th infantry division, northern spearhead of the 1st army, capturing two villages three and four miles northeast of Monschau, struck its first heavy opposition east of Kesternich.

Patton's 3d army on the south extended its bridgehead over the border river Our to a width of seven miles and a depth of three and a half miles, capturing at least five more German towns. Gains up to two and a half miles were registered despite heavy small arms and mortar fire, fain, mud, and slush.

One column slogged two and a half miles northeastward and took Ingelscheim, two and a half miles inside Germany. Other columns seized Winterspelt and Winterscheid.

Closing in at Colmar.

Lt. Gen. Patch's United States 7th army in northern Alsace forced a crossing of the Moder river 13 miles north of Strasbourg and ran into resistance of German armor backing dug-in infantry at Oberhoffen.

Eight miles northeast of Strasbourg, American and French forces were cleaning out the Gambsheim pocket which once threatened the Alsatian capital.

The battle to drive the Germans from Alsace gathered momentum. French and American forces virtually wiped out the Rhinebank salient south of Strasbourg and tightened the ring around Colmar by severing its main railway line to the Rhine.

Official German War Reports

Western Front.

Thursday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin said of the fighting on the western front:

"In Holland a weak garrison consisting of parachute troops which for weeks had been bravely holding a small bridgehead south of the Maas [Meuse] at Geertruidenberg against far superior enemy forces was withdrawn to the northern bank of the river.

"Numerous attacks, launched again yesterday [Wednesday] by the American 1st and elements of the American 3d armies on the entire front between Monschau and St. Vith, came to a standstill deep inside our main lines after fierce fighting.

"In upper Alsace the enemy was able to enlarge somewhat his penetration area in the sector east and northeast of Colmar, but lost 14 tanks.

"Sturmwikinge [Storm Vikings] of the navy who the night preceding Jan. 30 were employed in a fight against British-American supply traffic in the Scheide [river] mouth, report the sinking of one tanker. In addition, five heavy detonations were observed by our gunners on Schouwen Island, so that the sinking of further enemy ships in this operation may be assumed."

Russian Front.

The German Thursday war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin said:

"In Hungary strong soviet attacks between the Sarviz canal and the Danube as well as northeast of Szekesfehervar were halted after hard fighting.

"On the Oder front enemy attempts to widen his bridgehead failed.

"In the Oder-Warthe bend and in areas west of Zuell and Ichauschwiebus and west of Schwerin our troops held numerous strongpoints against fierce attacks.

"Operational reserves are being employed against enemy tank spearheads which have been able to push forward as far as into the Sternberg-Zielenzig area. North of the Warthe enemy forces advanced as far as the Oder northwest of Kustrin, where they met our newly brought up reserves.

"In the southern part of Pomerania numerous soviet attacks were repulsed and enemy scouting forces which had advanced northward were thrown back. The garrison of Poznan defended itself against soviets attacking from several sides.

"Northwest of Chelmno and at Elbing there was fluctuating fighting.

"In East Prussia the day brought heavy fighting at Wormditt, Heilsburg, Friedland, and north of Koenigsburg.

"Soviet tank spearheads and enemy supply traffic were attacked again yesterday by our battleplanes and fighters.

"On the Latvian front our troops beat off numerous soviet attacks."

JAPS SINK U. S. LST AND TWO MINESWEEPERS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—Loss of two mine sweepers and a tank landing ship from enemy action in the Philippines was announced today by the navy. The mine sweepers were the Hovey and the Palmer, converted World War I. destroyers, and the landing ship was the LST 759. The Hovey and the Palmer had helped to sweep mines from Leyte gulf.

There was no indication of the extent of casualties. Normal complement of that type of mine sweepers is about 120 and of an LST 64. Commanding officers of all three vessels survived, the navy said. Lt. William E. McGuirk, Bellport, N. Y., commanded the Palmer; Lt. Ben N. Cole, Charlotte, N. C., the Hovey, and Lt. John A. Baybutt, United States coast guard, Washington, D. C., the LST.

The announcement brought to 258 the total of naval vessels lost from all causes since the start of the war, including 208 sunk, 40 overdue and presumed lost, and 10 destroyed to prevent capture.

Report Berlin No Longer Center for Radio News

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—Berlin may no longer be the central point for distributing news inside the reich. The Associated Press radio listening post reported tonight that for the first time German stations at Cologne, Frankfurt-on-the-Main, and Berlin, each broadcast its news separately and on different wave lengths. Previously all were joined in one network.

INCISO TO FACE COURT ON FEB. 20 FOR SLOWDOWN

Angelo Inciso, ex-convict and international representative of the AFL United Automobile Workers' union, who was accused by eight members of the union employed at the John Wood Manufacturing company, 4435 S. Western av., of ordering them to continue a slowdown of war production, appeared in South State st. court yesterday to answer charges of disorderly conduct. His case was continued by Judge Jay A. Schiller until Feb. 20.

After appearing in court Inciso was taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning by Assistant State's Atty. William Brumlik, but he refused to make a statement until he could receive advice from his attorney.

Inciso was arrested by Capt. George Barnes and Sgt. Harold Enger of the police labor detail Wednesday in the UAW headquarters at 1548 N. Harding av. on a warrant charging disorderly conduct. The police officers on Tuesday had arrested the eight workers in the plant for conducting the production slowdown. The eight appeared in court Wednesday and their case was continued until Feb. 20.

YANKS WARNED IN FILM: BEWARE OF ALL GERMANS

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY, In Belgium, Jan. 27 [Delayed].—A motion picture produced by the war department and designed to warn soldiers against fraternizing with any kind of German civilian is being shown to all troops under Lt. Gen. Hodges' command.

As soon as troops are withdrawn from combat for a rest they are shown the 15 minute film by special service officers as part of a campaign to toughen the American soldiers' minds against the German soldiers and people, and warn them that every German must be treated with suspicion.

Publicity has been given in Stars and Stripes [army newspaper] and other mediums to the massacre of 135 American prisoners south of Malmedy by German SS [elite guard] troops during the December break-thru.

Priority Over Other Subjects.

The new film now is getting priority over all other educational orientation. It has been made a compulsory assignment for all staff officers at headquarters.

Bismarck's warriors are shown riding into battle. Later Kaiser Wilhelm's legions are shown fighting into Belgium and France, followed by post-war scenes showing apple cheeked maidens strolling dreamily thru an idyllic countryside.

The peaceful interludes between wars, says the commentator, are a snare and a delusion. All the time the German general staff is busy planning for the next war.

The picture then flashes back to the heavy fighting required to take Aachen. There are shots of American wounded and of tortured civilian bodies in each of the countries Germany conquered.

Germans Must Win Rights.

The commentator warns that if Germany is to be treated as an equal in the future, its people must win this honor by their behavior. Meanwhile, he says, the American soldier as he advances into the reich must treat all with suspicion.

The film develops the theme that since before Bismarck the Germans have been bent on conquest and that every major German war has been followed by a "phony" peace in which world suspicion was lulled to sleep by emphasizing the peaceful aspects of German life.

Twice, says the commentator, the United States has been forced to send its men overseas to halt the Germans. "This time must be the last. We must insure that Germany never again will be able to become a military threat to peace."

But at the moment, the commentator says, the soldier's job is to behave like a soldier, to respect local German customs and enemy religions, and at all times be constantly suspicious of every one he sees and particularly members of the Hitler Jugend [youth].

Germany's young boys are shown in their uniforms, massed in thousands in their stadia to listen to Hitler, Himmler, or other Nazi party leaders. These children, the film concludes, are the most dangerous of all because they know nothing except what the Nazis have told them and they are fanatical enough to cause trouble if the Nazi party goes underground after the war.

U. S. Colonel Gets Medal, Killed 20 Minutes Later

PARIS, Feb. 1 [Reuters].—Twenty minutes after receiving the American silver star decoration, Col. Clayton J. Mansfield, Atlantic City, N. J., was killed by fire from a German tank. He had helped to capture Dochamps, in the Ardennes.

DAHL ACQUITTED ON 10 CHARGES; 4 OTHERS STUDIED

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 1 (AP).—Squadron Leader Harold [Whitey] Dahl, internationally known war flyer, was acquitted today by an R. C. A. F. court martial on 10 of 14 charges of improper disposition of government property. He must await announcement from the Canadian judge advocate general for the court's findings on the remaining four charges.

These cases will be submitted in Ottawa and the findings subsequently announced there.

The acquittal on 10 charges was announced after a three hour period, during which the court was closed. Twice during that time proceedings were reopened while part of the testimony of witnesses heard at Dorval and at Belem, Brazil, was read back.

Dahl, who is from Champaign, Ill., had been charged with improperly disposing of various pieces of government property salvaged from wrecked planes which crashed at a R. C. A. F. transport command at Belem while he was station commander there.

The defense asserted the flyer had been victimized by a Brazilian junk dealer who persuaded him to sign a document written in a foreign language and assured the flyer that various sums of money involved were necessary formalities to make the proof of ownership legal. The dealer, the defense asserted, passed the money to Dahl to avoid payment of taxes.

BELIEVE REDS TO PUT VON PAULUS IN AS REICH HEAD

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Feb. 1.—It is believed in diplomatic circles here that captured Gen. Friedrich von Paulus, who broadcast from Moscow to the Germans urging them to overthrow Hitler and get an "honorable peace," is being held in reserve by the Russians as their potential candidate to head the German regime if the western allies should put up another candidate.

It is understood Moscow also has chosen a committee to become the provisional government of Austria in place of the Free Austrian groups in Paris and London who are backed by the western allies. Moscow's committee is said to be an Austrian version of the Lublin committee and to be composed of Communists.

A one sided solution of other issues in eastern Europe, possibly including Germany, is regarded here as more than likely. One informed observer referred to it as a 100 per cent Russian solution.

HOW JOB DRAFT BILL CAN FORCE WORK CHANGES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—A summary of major provisions of man power legislation passed today by the house and sent to the senate:

PERSONS AFFECTED — Every man between the ages of 18 and 45 who is not on active military duty or or who has not been deferred specifically by law, such as public officials, divinity students, and essential farm workers.

HOW THEY ARE AFFECTED—If they are holding a war or war supporting job they may be ordered to keep it by their local draft boards; if the boards determine their service could be utilized better elsewhere, they must move in accordance with board request, or order, if a request fails to produce the desired results.

PENALTIES—A man disregarding a board order may be inducted forthwith or, if he is not suitable for military service, he may be fined as much as $10,000 and imprisoned for as long as five years. This is the same penalty that now applies to a "draft dodger."

WHO DECIDES WHAT AN ESSENTIAL JOB IS—The director of war mobilization and reconversion, or some agency designated by him. The director, after consulting with representatives of management, labor, agriculture and government, will certify to selective service the man power needs in various areas. Local draft boards thereupon will endeavor to persuade registrants to take jobs voluntarily, or force them to do so if necessary.

In ordering men to work, boards must consider which men can transfer to new jobs with the least disruption to themselves and the civilian economy. They also will make work calls by categories based on age and occupational skills. Honorably discharged veterans normally will be asked to take jobs only after non-veterans.

Choice of Jobs.

APPEAL PROVISIONS — A man must be given a "reasonable choice" of employers and may appeal a work order thru the regular draft board appeal system. If he is prosecuted for a violation, he may, as a defense, establish that the order involving him was not based upon "fair consideration."

TRAVEL ALLOWANCES — Registrants volunteering for or accepting jobs under board orders are entitled to travel and subsistence allowances from their homes to their new jobs if the jobs are in a locality outside their home; after the job ceases, or after they are given a release, they will receive travel and subsistence allowances to return home.

Expires When War Ends.

BENEFITS—Men working in accordance with draft board orders or requests receive the reëmployment priority protection given draftees under the selective service law and are eligible for benefits of the soldiers and sailors civil relief act if the job they take involves a financial loss to them.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS—May be ordered to some other activity in the national interest, if they object to participating in war activities.

EFFECTIVE PERIOD—The act expires when the war ends unless congress nullifies it sooner.

HOW YANKS GRAB NAZI FORT HIGH IN MOUNTAINS

Capt. Britt Tells of Push Thru Mud and Brush.

(Smashing a fortified line — what it means to the men who do it—is described in this instalment of a series on the exploits of infantry men. The heroes of the story are the members of Company L, 30th infantry, 3d infantry division. The story is told by the company's young commander, the most decorated soldier of the war, whose men called him "a doughboy's officer.")

BY CAPT. MAURICE L. BRITT.

[First soldier to receive the medal of honor, the distinguished service cross, the silver star, and the bronze star in the present war.]

As told to Carl Wiegman.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Every soldier is scared, terribly scared, at some time in every battle. The few minutes before an attack are the worst. Also, I think, it is harder to be a member of a mortar squad or supporting unit than it is to be up in front, in close contact with the enemy. When you are up front, you can counteract the numbness of fear by keeping busy.

That's what I did in the battle of Mount Rotondo. I was so busy that some portions of it failed to register in my memory. It was like a nightmare that is quickly forgotten unless you write it down as soon as you awake. But some things that happened I can never forget.

Nazi's Bastion on Mountain.

Mount Rotondo is about 1,800 feet high. It guards the highway and railroad to Rome at the town of San Pietro, about 10 miles south of Cassino. On the slope of the mountain facing the road, the Germans had blasted out fortifications and had built in elaborate series of pillboxes, using Italian labor.

They had placed the pillboxes to provide interlocking firing lanes for machine guns and anti-tank guns. Over the top of each little fort was a camouflage of tree trunks, rocks, and dirt that made them almost indistinguishable. The whole area was pre-plotted for artillery fire, and with good observation posts on surrounding hills, the Germans could cover every square yard of ground with shellfire.

This was part of the German "winter line," anchored at Cassino, which they confidently expected to hold until Jan. 1, 1944. Their pillboxes were well stocked with ammunition and canned food and they had comfortable bunks. On the floors of the forts they had rugs which they had stolen from the Italians.

Infantry Gets Tough Job.

Of course, we didn't know all that when our regiment moved into position for an attack on Nov. 8. We just knew they were there and well entrenched. It was our toughest assignment since the beginning of the war, and I was mightily relieved that Capt. George K. Butler, regular commander of Company L, had returned to duty. Altho I had taken his place at the beginning of the campaign in Italy, I was still only a first lieutenant.

Company L was part of the 3d battalion. Fortunately for us, we were in reserve at the beginning of the battle, when the 2d battalion was ordered to make a frontal assault. Its men tried twice, with great bravery, but were beaten off with heavy losses.

Pre-Battle Conference Held.

The job was now up to our battalion. Our commanding officer, Lt. Col. Edgar C. Doleman of Mount Holly, N. J., studied the problem for a full day, going over every foot of the mountain with field glasses. Then he called in all his company commanders, asking their opinions.

His decision was that further frontal assaults would be too costly; it would be better to make a flanking movement across the mountains and try to seize the German positions from the rear. This meant greatly extending our supply lines.

In the previous six weeks of fighting, the ranks of Company L had been reduced from 198 to 140 by deaths, wounds, sickness, and battle fatigue. Now we had to give up a platoon to guard the regimental mule train that was bringing up supplies, so we entered the battle with only about 100 men.

Mud and Brush Handicaps.

Our orders were to sneak down the valley behind Mount Rotondo and take a position on the eastern slope as a jumping off place for an attack with Companies I and K, which were following us. We started about 10 a. m., moving in double column with four paces between each man. It was raining. The black Italian mud sucked us down so that we couldn't go fast. The brush was so thick our hands and faces were soon a mass of swollen scratches.

At dusk, when we had gone about two miles, we reached a tank trap and barb wire entanglement set up in the valley between Mount Rotondo and the adjoining hill, Mount Cannavanelli. There the Germans spotted us and opened fire with small arms. We stopped and lay hidden in the brush, expecting a further attack at any minute, and fearing that we were goners. Two of our men were killed and three were wounded.

Wounded Wait for Darkness.

There was no way to get them back to the aid station, so they had to lie in the mud beside us until dark, when we assigned men to carry them back in litters made from overcoats with boughs thru the sleeves.

Evidently the Germans thought we were only a small patrol. When we stopped moving they figured we had retreated. But we hadn't. After dark we moved on, silently cursing the rocks, the brush, and the rain. We didn't realize at first that it was the noise of the rain that kept the Germans from hearing us.

By midnight we had reached our objective on the mountain side, the jumping off place for the next day's attack. As we advanced we laid a telephone wire, but somehow it was broken or cut and the phone was dead. We found, also, that our radio wouldn't work; no doubt the batteries were wet. Thus, we had no communication at all with the rear. All we could do was hope that Companies I and K were following us, as scheduled.

Wounded Captain Sent Back.

In the morning Companies I and K arrived, to our great relief. But we got a severe blow at the same time. A sniper's bullet hit Capt. Butler in the arm, severing a nerve. He had to be sent back. Again I was the commanding officer of Company L. This time there was neither need nor opportunity to make a speech to the men. I do remember saying, "We've got to do it; let's do it." The attack had to go on.

We were now under fire from all kinds of enemy weapons and our own artillery was laying a concentration on the top of the mountain. The worst sound for us in the awful din came from the German six barrel mortars, which fired at one second intervals. When the shells took off they made a soft rustling swish which turned into an unearthly scream. This was followed by a quacking sound as each shell hit.

The battalion moved up the back side of the mountain to take the pillboxes from the rear. After it was over we learned our casualties were very light, considering the whole operation, and Col. Doleman won high praise for his strategy. But Company L now was down to 55 men, and having taken the mountain we had to hold it.

HOPKINS URGES U.S. OCCUPY AXIS LANDS FOREVER

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—Harry L. Hopkins, the mystery man of Washington, urged establishment of perpetual armies of occupation in Germany and Japan as the only certain means of preventing axis countries from rearming and again attempting to dominate the world.

At the same time, in a signed article published today in the March issue of American magazine, he advocated a year of compulsory military training as the most expedient and cheapest method of building a powerful reserve army as a guarantee against aggressors.

The article is expected to attract wide attention because of the unique and undefined role Hopkins plays in the administration. In New Deal circles he is known as the closest man to President Roosevelt and is regarded as a weathervane of Roosevelt's war and post-war policies. In some congressional circles he is regarded as the Rasputin of the White House, who puts over his own schemes by some mysterious power such as the Russian monk exerted on Czar Nicholas.

Rates High as a Prophet.

In previous articles for the same magazine which Hopkins writes to eke out a $10,000 a year income as special adviser to the President, Hopkins achieved a high rating as a prophet, predicting rationing, higher taxes, and other administration policies. He is reputedly paid $7,500 each for articles he writes about four times a year from his White House listening post.

"I have no doubt that powerful forces in Germany and Japan are preparing even now for their next attempt to conquer us," Hopkins said. "We will try to keep them impotent, but only a perpetual army of occupation would be able to prevent them from rearming eventually."

New Weapons Predicted.

Hopkins, going farther than any administration spokesman in proposing perpetual occupation of enemy lands, warned that new weapons will be developed and employed by enemies who would think nothing of a dozen defeats to gain the rich prize of North America. He mentioned robot bombs, armies landed from the air and from submarines, enormous bombing planes, and perhaps gas.

"We fought World War I., we thought, to end all wars," Hopkins said. "At the end of the war we wished fervently for peace, we worked for peace, we did everything possible to prevent war—except to prepare for it. We know now that those who labor for peace must implement their desires with force."

Examination of Hopkins' war record revealed that he was using "we" in an editorial sense. He did not fight in the last war as he was district manager of the American Red Cross in New Orleans from 1917 to 1922.

"Not Civilized Enough."

"We must accept a new and tough concept in world affairs—that the earth is not civilized enough to make world-wide disarmament practical for peace loving nations," he continued. "We wasted no time at Dumbarton Oaks, and we shall take our place in an international organization to attempt to keep the peace and to make secure essential freedom thruout the world.

"America's heart and mind will work intensively day and night to keep the world in peace. But that isn't enough. We can't take a chance. When this war ends we must immediately prepare to defend ourselves, particularly to make sure our enemies realize that if they dare to strike again, they'll lose again."

Hopkins, who never wore his country's uniform, said compulsory military training will build up a force of trained reserves to supplement the National Guard and a powerful army. Congress should provide the perfect military training law after careful consideration and long debate.

Exemptions Opposed.

He declared himself against exemption for physical reasons, and against exemption of so-called essential workers. He proposed payment of youths who might marry and have dependents before giving service and for possible sliding of the year of service between the 17½ and 21 year age brackets, altho he regarded 18 as the ideal age.

Hopkins said a year of military training would help build a robust, disciplined race and scoffed at the idea that the program would toughen young men, destroy their democratic ideals, and constitute a Hitler youth movement.

Hopkins, who spent billions on leaf raking projects as head of the works progress administration, argued that compulsory military training is the most economical way of guaranteeing protection. He said it had been estimated that universal service would cost a billion dollars a year and that this cost could be largely if not entirely offset by resultant economies in the military budget. He did not say how such economies could be effected if we are to maintain "a powerful up to the minute standing army" and go in for perpetual occupation of Japan and Germany.

Compulsory military training will offer training in every profession and trade because there is a place for all trades in mechanized warfare; will rehabilitate thousands of young men by operations; will teach the illiterate and will improve the eyes, hearing, and teeth of those needing such attention, Hopkins said.

MACHINE SHOP LOOTED.

'BRITISH MONROE DOCTRINE' URGED TO INSURE PEACE

Liberals Ask German Free Trade.

BY JAMES SLOAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The surest way to prevent a third German war is to create a Germany which lives by trading freely with the world, Dingle M. Foot, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of economic warfare, told a Liberal party conference here today.

Foot sponsored a resolution passed by the party urging joint use of sea and air bases in Europe by the maritime countries of northern and western Europe and the eastern Mediterranean.

Peace Measure, He Says.

"This proposal represents a contribution we must make if the peace and security of Europe are to be preserved," he said, calling it the "British equivalent of the Monroe Doctrine."

He called it absurd to suggest such a proposal could be "interpreted as hostile to Russia," and said that "at this moment Russia is taking steps to secure her strategic frontiers which no one here interprets as a threat to Britain."

Urges Free Trade.

"The reduction of tariff barriers and expansion of international trade is one of the greatest contributions that can be made to lasting peace," Foot said in urging a free trade policy for Germany after all German war criminals have been punished and effective measures taken to "prevent a renewal of German or Japanese aggression."

The Liberals' conference also approved the suggestion that "Britain make representations to the united nations and in particular the United States to secure an agreement for the retention and adoption of the principles underlying mutual aid" which is the British style for lend-lease.

DRUGGIST FINED $200 FOR LIQUOR SALE TO GIRL, 14

Harold P. Dereby, 49, manager of a Ford-Hopkins drug store in Waukegan, was fined a maximum of $200 and costs yesterday after he was found guilty by Police Magistrate Clarence L. Brown of selling liquor to a minor. He was accused of selling a fifth of bourbon whisky to Millicent Tallon, 14, of 1127 E. 27th st., Zion, a part time employe at the store.

Ald. William J. Faller, chairman of the council's license committee, said last night that he would request today that Mayor Frank G. Wallin, liquor commissioner, revoke the license of the drug store. It has been Wallin's policy to follow suggestions made by the committee.

Dereby was arrested on Jan. 6, three days after Lawrence Eaton, 17, of 216 Franklin st., Waukegan, allegedly shot Rita Gibbons, 17, of 912 S. Utica st., Waukegan. Millicent told the court yesterday that Eaton and a companion drank most of the liquor she had purchased.

Eaton is now free under $25,000 bond on two charges of assault with a deadly weapon and two charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

AMERICAN EXPORT AIRLINES STEPS UP TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHTS

An Army Air Transport Command C-54 on apron at AEA Operations Base, La Guardia Field.

TAKES ON NEW JOB—CONTRACTS TO OPERATE LARGE 4-ENGINE TRANSPORT PLANES FOR AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND, IN ADDITION TO ITS OVERSEAS COMMERCIAL AIR SERVICE

AS THE TEMPO of the war increases and the call for more and ever more supplies arises from every battlefront, the role of transatlantic aviation takes on a new and even greater importance.

• Speeding men and materials to the crucial areas is no new task to American Export Airlines. The major part of its facilities, and 100% of its effort have been engaged in war work practically from the very start of hostilities. Now the company has signed a contract to operate a fleet of giant four-engined C-54 land planes for the Air Transport Command of the U. S. Army Air Forces.

• Under the terms of the contract the Army Air Transport Command will utilize the broad experience which the company has amassed through its regular transatlantic commercial operation, together with its more than two years of flying seaplanes for the Naval Air Transport Service.

• Thus American Export Airlines—the line which gave the world its first and only non-stop commercial transatlantic airplane travel—starts a new chapter in an already distinguished war record.

• The new Air Transport Command Operation will be kept separate and distinct from the company's certificated service on the New York—Ireland—Africa route, with direct connections for England at Foynes, Ireland.

"Flying Ace" Commercial Service to Europe

Starting immediately, American Export Airlines offers commercial service via the "Flying Aces" for passengers (one way and round trip tickets) and air express from New York to Ireland, England, Africa and points beyond, subject to Government regulations.

This "Flying Ace" service provides dependability, speed, excellent berths, hot meals cooked aloft, trained nurse-stewardess service, and other distinctive features.

SEEKS STATE AID FOR SUPERROADS CHARGING TOLLS

Board Chairman Adopts Engineers' Plan.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

A group of Detroit and New York engineers reported yesterday that it would be feasible to construct some super-highways in Chicago and finance them wholly or in part by collection of tolls. Prof. John J. Schommer, chairman of the Illinois state super-highway commission, accepted their recommendation and said he would ask the legislature for funds to start the project.

For a northwest route 11.6 miles long and connecting with suburban highways, the report said a super-highway would be 100 per cent self-liquidating if tolls were 25 cents for passenger cars and 50 cents for trucks.

Recommends Two Other Routes.

V. B. Steinbaugh, president of United Engineers, Inc., whose Detroit firm made the survey, recommended two other toll express ways.

The Illinois and Michigan canal super-highway project southwestward could be 53.2 per cent capitalized by tolls for 10.8 miles.

A south route super-highway, with a branch along Halsted st. to 87th st. and another southeast along Indianapolis av. to the Indiana state line would repay 89.5 per cent of its cost by tolls.

For the latter two routes, the engineers recommended that the balance of the cost be paid by federal grants or by the state treasury.

Estimate 40% Would Use Them.

The engineers estimated that, at a passenger car toll rate of 25 cents, the super-highways would attract at least 40 per cent of the traffic which otherwise would use a free route.

Construction and financing details of the proposed routes:

Illinois and Michigan canal — From Halsted and 26th sts. to abandoned canal's right of way at Damen av. and along canal route to connect with U. S. 66 west of Summit. Estimated total cost, $22,556,300; yearly income, $1,221,963; annual maintenance and operation cost, $416,000; bond capitalization, 12 million dollars, or 53.2 per cent of cost.

Southeast route—From Halsted and 26th sts. to 87th st., with a branch near 60th st. paralleling railroad yards to Indianapolis av. and the state line. Estimated total cost, $59,237,500; yearly income, $4,025,237; yearly costs, $362,000; bond capitalization, 53 million dollars, or 89.5 per cent.

Northwest route—From Halsted st. and Chicago av., along Chicago and North Western railway right of way, with a terminal at Northwest hwy. and Bryn Mawr av. and a conection to Edens pkwy. and U. S. 41. Estimated total cost, $56,332,000; yearly income, $4,316,108; yearly costs, $550,000; bond capitalization, 58 million dollars.

Extensions northward and southward of the lake shore drives should be independent of toll charges, the commission was told. To provide connections to the central business district, the report recommended construction of free super-highway facilities along Halsted, Erie, and Taylor sts. and Roosevelt rd.

KUM BUM FAKER STRUTS 'RICHES' FOR CONVERTS

More "investors" in Hugh Greer Carruthers' Neological Foundation at 185 N. Wabash av. paraded before a federal jury yesterday as Asst. United States Atty. Francis McGreal called one witness after another in the trial of the Brooklyn born Kum Bum, charged with violating mail fraud and securities and exchange laws.

Mrs. Anna M. Hermit, 62, of 1130 Springfield av., described a meeting at which she was convinced of Carruthers' healing powers and invested $100. She said she was won over when the defendant, a professed world traveler, "proved" his riches by having his books audited while his audience watched.

Most Witnesses Are Women.

"Is there an auditor in the house?" Mrs. Hermit quoted the Kum Bum lamasery pretender, as he looked out over his audience. In the back row, she said, a man answered, and walked to the platform, where he examined the books.

"I don't remember how much he had," Mrs. Hermit testified, "but it was an awful lot."

Others called to the witness stand testified that they lost amounts ranging from $100 to $1,000. Most of the witnesses were women.

Employe Tells of Fake.

Walter F. Jones, 74, of 444 Roslyn pl., civilian employe of the 6th army command, said he started working for Carruthers in 1938 for $80 a month.

The initials that followed Carruthers' name, he said, included such imposing titles as S. C. M., D. D., M. D., Ph. D., F. R. S., and F. N. S

GUADALCANAL VET, 24, TO DIE FOR SLAYING WISCONSIN GIRL, 18

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—A 24 year old marine veteran of Guadalcanal heard a jury of 11 men and a housewife condemn him to death today for the rape slaying of a government girl employe from Chippewa Falls, Wis.

Pvt. Earl McFarland.

A federal District court jury deliberated only an hour and 15 minutes to convict Pvt. Earl McFarland, native of Tennessee on two counts of murder.

By withholding any recommendation for clemency, the jury made the death penalty mandatory.

The prosecution charged that McFarland lured Dorothy Berrum, 18, of Chippewa Falls, to a lonely spot at Hain's Point along the Potomac river, dismissed the taxicab, ravished her, and then strangled her with her own snood. McFarland's knife and belt were found at the scene and identified by prosecution witnesses.

The marine said he was innocent, that he did talk to a "short, stubby" girl who fitted the victim's description, but left her that night of Oct. 5 and "drank some beers."

He strode into court wearing a broad smile. With a glance around, he faced the jury, licked his lips once or twice, and his face froze into a blank mask. He wore a big grin when defense Counsel P. Bateman Ennis put his arm around him in a gesture of support after the jury was polled individually.

Ennis then told reporters he would appeal the verdict. District Court Justice James M. Procter did not indicate a time for sentencing.

U. S. RAISES 17 POINTS OF LAW IN WARD APPEAL

The government yesterday took the first steps in its projected appeal from Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan's decision voiding the Presidential seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co. properties. United States Atty. Woll filed with Roy H. Johnson, clerk of the federal District court, a designation of the contents of the case for certification to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Woll cited 12 points of fact and 17 on conclusions of law and the judgment order as set by Judge Sullivan as principal elements of dispute on which the government will seek a reversal.

Whether the case will be argued to a decision before the Circuit Court of Appeals was not stated. Previously, it was indicated the government would skip a final decision there for a hearing before the United States Supreme court. It was said officials in Washington, D. C., have not yet decided whether to go directly to the Supreme court.

OPA ORDERS CUT IN PRICE PEAKS ON WINTER GARB

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—The OPA today announced that a new regulation, effective March 1, will reduce by about eight per cent manufacturers' ceiling prices for such items as leather coats and jackets, ski and skating suits, hunting and fishing outfits, and men's and boys' wool mackinaw, cotton coats and jackets, corduroy coats and wool shirts and pants.

These reductions will be translated into consumer savings thru a new retail regulation to be issued soon.

The action is part of a joint war production board—OPA policy, announced last week, of drastic measures to assure output of low-priced clothes.

The cut in manufacturers' ceilings for winter outerwear will reduce their gross profit margins 20 per cent below 1943 levels, OPA said.

Marriage Licenses Gain; 3,174 Issued in January

Marriage licenses issued by the county clerk during January numbered 3,174, an increase over December's 2,987 and a slight increase over the number issued during the corresponding period in 1944, Sidney Summerfield, chief clerk, said Wednesday.

RACE PROMOTER IS CONVICTED ON BRIBERY COUNT

Mason, Mich., Feb. 1 [Special].—Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor, veteran sports promoter and legislative lobbyist, was sentenced to three to four years in Southern Michigan prison at Jackson today, following his speedy conviction by an Ingham county Circuit court jury of having attempted to bribe a legislator in 1941.

The jury of nine women and three men required an hour and a half to reach a verdict after a brief charge by Judge John Simpson of Jackson, special trial judge, and lengthy arguments of counsel which had occupied most of the day.

Judge Simpson called Fitzsimmons before him immediately after the verdict and passed sentence, giving him the maximum penalty permissible under the Michigan law.

Seeks New Trial.

Fred Walker, Detroit, one of Fitzsimmons' two lawyers, said a motion would be prepared immediately asking a new trial as a preliminary to eventual appeal of the conviction to the state Supreme court. A $4,000 appeal bond was posted and Fitzsimmons was released pending further action.

Judge Leland W. Carr of the Ingham circuit, who has been devoting most of his time for a year and a half to conducting a one man grand jury investigation of state affairs, appeared as the prosecution's ace rebuttal witness this morning.

Judge Carr contradicted testimony given yesterday by Herbert J. Rushton, Escanaba, former attorney general and Carr's grand jury prosecutor for the first few months of the inquiry.

Denies Rushton Talked.

Rushton, who owns a string of race horses, testified yesterday for the defense. He said he had told Judge Carr during the early stages of the investigation that Gail Handy, former Eau Claire Republican representative, told him Fitzsimmons had offered him a $500 bribe.

Handy said the bribe was to have him help hold in committee a bill to give the state a larger share of horse race betting receipts and force installation of machinery to compute betting odds at the Detroit state fairgrounds track, Rushton said. The Escanaban said he placed no credence in Handy's story.

Judge Carr said on the stand, "Mr. Rushton at no time discussed with me or mentioned the Gail Handy occurrence."

OPA GRANTS GAS AND PERFORMERS IN CIRCUS LEAVE

Forty performers in Polack Brothers' circus left Hammond yesterday afternoon in eight automobiles and trailers, with enough gas to reach Louisville, Ky., and a letter designed to end their OPA troubles for good.

The gasoline was obtained on permits issued by the Hammond ration board and the letter came from Marion W. Isbell, area OPA director, on instructions of Rae E. Walters, regional administrator, who cleared it with Washington.

The gasoline, Isbell said, was given the circus employes under OPA regulations which permit special rations for "travel required to tow a house trailer to a site where such trailer is to be used as necessary housing for a person in connection with his occupation." This interpretation should satisfy boards in other cities when the show wants to move on, Isbell said.

STIMSON ADMITS SOME ONE ERRED IN DOG RIDE CASE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—Secretary of War Stimson today conceded an "error of judgment by the air transport command in shipping Col. Elliott Roosevelt's dog with an "A" priority.

Stimson wrote Rep. Miller [D., Cal.] that steps since have been taken "to avert similar errors in the future."

Replying to Miller's inquiry Stimson said that an investigation has indicated that "certain procedures with respect to priorities within the air transport command were not coördinated sufficiently to prevent an error of judgment on the part of some of its personnel."

Miller had asked Stimson for a complete report on the incident, which resulted in the bumping off an army plane of three men in the fighting services who had lower priorities than the Roosevelt dog.

SUSPECT IN FIRE HELD SANE; TRIAL FOR MURDER SET

Dr. William H. Haines of the Criminal court behavior clinic reported yesterday to Judge Frank M. Padden that Charles Bohme, 44, is legally sane and able to stand trial on a charge of murder by arson in connection with the deaths of seven persons in the fire last Nov. 19 of the Lille apartments, 1353 E. 47th st. The court set Feb. 19 for trial. Bohme, thru Lester M. Grossman and Gerald Gettys, assistant public defenders, said Bohme would repudiate a confession that he set fire to the apartments and 23 other places on the south side. Francis McCurrie, assistant state's attorney, will prosecute the case.

FIND TWO DEAD IN CAB OF THEIR STALLED TRUCK

Chester C. Wright, 21, and Merritt Roland, 45, both of Muncie, Ind., were found dead yesterday inside their trailer truck near Crown Point, Ind. Death was caused by exposure and gas fumes from a charcoal stove. Their truck was found disabled in U. S. highway 30, seven miles northwest of Crown Point, by State Trooper Albert Schweighardt. Burned out flares were found around it, indicating they had spent the morning in sub-zero temperatures on the spot. Apparently Roland and Wright had sought warmth from a small charcoal stove, but were overcome by fumes.

ELECTRIC SHOCK KILLS GIRL, 16, IN PAPER PLANT

Marcy Anne Dobias, 16, of 5417 S. Rockwell st., was electrocuted yesterday by a 220 volt current that passed thru her body while she was operating an automatic cardboard box sticker machine for the International Paper company, 5133 W. 65th st., Bedford. Employes who dismantled the machine under police orders reported they found a short circuit in a power connection box. The girl, a part time employe, is survived by her parents and two brothers.

25 COMBAT VETS TO TELL PUPILS NEED FOR PAPER

Twenty-five war veterans returned from overseas will go into the 600 Chicago public and parochial schools next week to give pupils first hand information on the importance of waste paper collection in the war program.

The veterans will be accompanied by paper industry representatives and other Chicago business men and representatives from the war production board in a campaign designed to spur regular collections in elementary schools and to prepare for a series of monthly high school collections, the first of which is scheduled for Feb. 16. The high school goal for the day is 1½ million pounds.

Conclude Drive Feb. 16.

Public elementary schools are in the midst of a five week campaign, to end Feb. 16, with a goal of one million pounds of waste paper a week, Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent, reported.

Public high schools have collected five million pounds in the last year and the total for elementary schools is 36 million pounds in this period. Cumulative figures were not available for parochial schools.

Dinner Guests of Mayor.

Assistant Supt. Rogers said prizes will be awarded to the 25 leading schools at the end of the current campaign and that Mayor Kelly will give a dinner in the Morrison hotel on Feb. 23 for the leading boy and girl collector from each of the 25 schools and their parents

JELKE TEMPER TESTIMONY WINS WIFE DIVORCE

John Faris Jelke Jr., 643 E. Westminster av., Lake Forest, an oleomargarine manufacturer, was described yesterday as "a man of high temper" by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Minot Clarke Jelke, who was granted a divorce by Judge Ralph J. Dady in Lake County Circuit court, Waukegan.

Irritated because he lost a game of backgammon with a frjend on the evening of Jan. 19, she said, he forced her to sit in a chair and listen to him "rant," then pushed her, causing her head to strike a bookcase. Her head "ached for three days."

They had nothing more to do with each other after that, "except to be polite in front of the servants," Mrs. Jelke said, until Jan. 25, when she invited her friend, Mrs. Edith Harrison Manierre of 294 E. Rose terr., Lake Forest, to dinner. Mrs. Manierre is the daughter of Carter H. Harrison.

She said that her husband told her to get out, and pushed her to the snowy porch without a coat.

Mrs. Manierre, also a witness, said she was embarrassed by her experience when she went to the Jelke home for dinner.

Mrs. Jelke was awarded custody of three minor sons, John III., 19, Charles, 17, and Minot, 15. Her attorney, Jacob X. Schwartz, said she had agreed to a settlement covering alimony and support.

WATCH AND RINGS STOLEN.

Mrs. A. R. Nadelhoffer, 2850 Flournoy st., reported to police yesterday that a wristwatch, two rings, a portable typewriter, and 20 old coins, of a total value of $330, were stolen from her home.

NO PERMANENTS FOR THIS WORLD.

There are no seers among the planners of the post-war world. None knows or could know who will be agitating the waters 25 or 30 years from now or where. The future voices of authority cannot be heard. The conditions which will weaken governments or raise new ones are unknowable. Issues which will make trouble between nations cannot be predicted, except such as have their seeds planted in one generation and come to crop in another. Planners have done that before and will do it again.

Of the men who led Europe into its present degeneration only one was at all known when the peace makers of Paris arose from laying out new countries and laying down the rules for living and he, Lenin, was a mystery. His character, his purposes, his idols, his fanaticism, and his powers were unknown. Most of the authors of the degradation of the continent were penniless vagabonds just coming out of the alleys.

Russia alone makes the word "permanent" in connection with any world order, however covenanted, sadly misused. Our own government didn't know what bolshevism was when it appeared. The first acquaintance brought alarm and then indignation. The bolshevists couldn't do this to anybody. In the end we were glad enough to get our friends the Japanese out of Siberia where they showed every disposition to stay, and to leave Russia to be gentled by Lenin. From then until 1933 the soviet union was an outlaw in the foreign relations of this country and was held suspect everywhere.

Various radicals and intellectuals tried to take a sympathetic interest in what they regarded as a great experiment in human betterment, but most of them were chilled by the terror, the liquidations, the brutality of the coercion and the denial of all human rights and liberties. That was the first phase of soviet Russia's relations with the rest of the world. Russia taught suspicion and hatred of what it called the capitalistic, bourgeois world and that world kept a guard up against communist revolutionary incitements.

A second phase began, at least for the United States, when Mr. Roosevelt, just starting his first term, resumed diplomatic relations with Moscow and invited Russian friendship. Stalin's state trials and the executions following them disgusted and dismayed some of our intellectuals who had tried to keep up a faith in the ultimate good of the Red revolution. Our diplomatic cordiality, however, was unimpaired until the third phase when some account had to be taken of the fact that Stalin had broken his alliances against Germany, rebuffed the western powers, and made the agreement with Hitler which released the Nazi armies for the present war.

When the Russian dictator, having joined Hitler in the partition of Poland, attacked Finland even Mr. Roosevelt felt it necessary to use some strong language in denouncing the act. Russia was again an enemy of mankind. The fourth phase came when Hitler, the quicker of the two men in dealing the expected stab, attacked his collaborator. Russia came again within the pale of civilization as the Nazi marched deep into the country of his late friend and old enemy. In little more than six months Stalin, in great peril, was signing things as a convert to the united nations. The triumphant return of the Russian armies brought cheer when it was most needed and a warm regard for the people who had made the sacrifices required.

Churchill and Stalin sat down as if they never had a difference or ever had exchanged an ugly word and made a 20 year treaty for the management of Europe. If men don't change, conditions do, and both will. Such mutations were most striking as to Russia, but not peculiar to that country and its government. Great Britain and France could not hold the common front necessary for the safety of each. Three months before Hitler came to power John Simon, secretary of foreign affairs, said in the house of commons that England recognized in principle the German claim to equal military rights. Nor did England oppose the reoccupation of the Rhineland by Hitler's army. These were two mistakes which France did not voluntarily make.

Mr. Churchill has referred often to the great affection the English had for Italy. Italian naval officers explained some discomfitures in this war by saying that their navy had been built as a complement to the British navy, to fight with it, not against it. Benito Mussolini changed all that. And Japan—until 1921 it was Great Britain's cherished ally.

When Sen. Vandenberg and other proposers of all-time arrangements speak of permanent treaties and contracts they should be understood in the hairdresser's meaning of the word—until the permanent unfrizzles.

WHY WE WIN.

Capt. Maurice L. Britt, the first soldier to win the four highest American decorations for bravery in this war, has been telling the story of the infantry in THE TRIBUNE. His company won a distinguished unit citation, but he emphasizes that they were in no sense elite troops. "The men of Company L," Capt. Britt says, "were not 'picked' troops; we were all just ordinary Americans, civilians turned soldiers. The fact that we won a distinguished unit citation for bravery is a credit, I think, to the whole American system."

Capt. Britt states that his own background and training were indistinguishable from those of the great majority of American soldiers, officers, and enlisted men alike. They sent him into battle, however, with qualities of self-reliance, courage, and understanding of those under his command. He and his men were the products of American institutions which made them superior soldiers. They could think for themselves, they were not cowed by misconceptions as to the homage which superior officers in other armies demand as their due because of aristocratic birth or recognition granted by the dictators to whom they are answerable, and they were willing to stand up to anything or anybody because as citizens of a free land they never were accustomed to being pushed around. They had the initiative to take a divisional objective when they were merely one element assigned to help take a battalion objective.

When Capt. Britt says, "We were all just ordinary Americans," he has given the complete explanation of why American soldiers can meet and beat the Germans and Japs who in their time have beaten everybody else in the world.

WHY CHICAGO LACKS TEACHERS.

It is incredible that, under any rational system of conducting the public schools of Chicago, a room of third graders should have been without a teacher for three months. Yet the school administration has verified such a charge.

Admittedly there is a shortage of teachers. Many of them have abandoned their profession temporarily for the higher wages obtainable in war plants. That, however, does not explain why suburban communities, with pay scales in their elementary schools usually much lower than in Chicago, have been able to get teachers when Chicago has not.

It is expected that the school administration will announce a plan within a few days for relieving the teacher shortage in the city. It is even hinted that this may include a temporary abandonment of the sacrosanct requirement that every teacher entering the Chicago system must have a diploma from the Chicago Teachers' college.

It is this requirement that is responsible for the shortage. There are plenty of mothers in Chicago who were good school teachers before marriage and would be glad to resume teaching during the emergency, but they taught in other cities and haven't certificates from the Chicago Teachers' college. Accordingly, they can't get into the Chicago school system. There is nothing in the educational record of the college or of its graduates to justify this monopoly.

One reason why suburban schools, in spite of lower budgets, are able to keep as good teaching staffs as they have is that their better teachers, trained elsewhere than in Chicago, can't qualify for the higher pay of the Chicago system. It will be a mercy if the teachers' college monopoly is breached, even if only to the extent that is necessary to give every child in the city's schools a teacher. It would be healthier if the Chicago board of education were to get out of the teacher training business.

There is no reason why Chicago taxpayers should support their own teachers' college when the state government supports teachers' colleges for every other community in Illinois. The Chicago college should be turned over to the state, and Chicago teachers picked thru competitive examinations open to graduates of any institution of acceptable standards.

A LESSON IN FREEDOM.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan's decision that the army seizure of the Montgomery Ward plant was wholly unwarranted in law and unconstitutional brought him a flood of congratulations from all parts of the country. The congratulations were deserved. Judge Sullivan, when presented with a set of facts, applied to them the tests of the statutes and the Constitution.

It is when his action is compared with what might have been expected in other countries—including even the so-called "democracies"—that it becomes noteworthy. The judges who sit in the courts of Great Britain, the British dominions, and France certainly will not suffer by comparison with the better members of the American judiciary as regards personal probity, knowledge of the law, or devotion to justice, yet it remains a fact that the United States is the only one of these countries in which the courts will stand up for the rights of the individual against the encroachment of the government.

Reasons for this may perhaps be found in two facts: one, that this country has a written Constitution in which is embodied a Bill of Rights enforceable by the courts; and, the other, that largely because of the Constitution and Bill of Rights there is less temptation for an American court to confuse the transitory administration of a government with that institution itself. In Great Britain the government is the king, his ministers, his courts, and his loyal peers and subjects sitting in parliament. In the United States the government is not in the person of the President or the congress, and certainly not of the judiciary. It is in the Constitution, which is permanent, and not in any individual who is the temporary possessor of grants of power, all limited and all flowing from the Constitution.

The British judge is the king's judge. When confronted by a conflict between individual right and official action, the king's judge, whatever his devotion to English tradition, will have a bias, unconscious perhaps, that the king's ministers are right and the subject who protests is wrong. There is no written constitution, only precedent which parliament is free to ignore at any time. Thus it is that in England and the dominions private property has been confiscated and civilians incarcerated without trial.

There are many Americans devoting themselves to foreign interests who would do better to teach the foreign friends to whom they look up the superiority of Americans ways. It would be interesting, of course, to see what happened to these sycophants should they attempt to instruct, instead of blindly accepting alien gospels for promulgation in this country.

WAR ON HOME GROUNDS.

The war has come to Brandenburg, a German province whose name means little to the average American newspaper reader except proximity to Berlin. To historians, however, it tells the whole story. Brandenburg is the region where the egg of Prussian militarism was hatched centuries ago. The story of Germany as world power and disturber of the world's peace began there.

* * *

In the middle ages Brandenburg was a small area of sandy, unprofitable plains and merely a German outpost among Slavonic tribes. It was a mark, or border territory, and its expansion into modern Prussia is the chief theme in the long and bewildering epic of central Europe. But for Brandenburg, the unification of the German states might have taken a different and more peaceful course.

* * *

The destiny of this tract of land seems to have been determined largely by accident. In the 13th century the life of a Holy Roman emperor, who was also a king of Hungary, was saved in battle by a scion of a noble family in south Germany—petty counts who were on the make in feudal fashion. The emperor expressed his gratitude by appointing his rescuer imperial governor of Brandenburg. Thus the Hohenzollerns came into the north to nurture the Prussian instinct of military duty and expansion by arms, and the mark of Brandenburg began to grow. It was soon the old mark, the new mark, and the middle mark; eventually it dominated the German scene.

* * *

The name of Brandenburg evokes a tremendous cavalcade of historical memories, the chief figures in which are the Great Elector and Frederick the Great. The last of the line, the woodchopper of Doorn, is probably turning over in his exile's grave because of the invasion of the old home grounds. Maybe the Brandenburg gate in Berlin, a triumphal arch that runs a close second to the Napoleonic edifice in Paris, is also feeling shaky.

PARTY GIRL'S LAMENT.

On mornings when I'm feeling fine,
My skin aglow, my hair ashine,
My brain as clear as Rhenish wine,
I've learned that this is so:
I go to work in all my best,
But sure as any acid test,
My searching eyes will never rest
Upon a soul I know.

But let a dreary morning break,
The while I struggle to awake,
My hair in wisps and eyes that ache—
The irony of Fate!
As surely as the day's begun
(A stocking with a careless run),
I know before the day is done
I'll get a dinner date!

The Rebel.

Schuyler County vs. Grandpaw.

One mornin' grandpaw was makin' a neck yoke in his blacksmith shop when who should come drivin' into the barn yard but Triple-E Evans, the sheriff. Folks called him that because he was baptized Esau Ezra, an' if you called him either one you'd best crawl in a hole right quick an' pull the hole in after you.

"Well, howdy, Triple-E! Bub, run get a jug of corn. Get down, Triple-E."

"I cain't," says the sheriff. "Yore in trouble, Bill, an' ye'll hev to come to Rushville. That pesky Lige Hulitt has swore out a warrant. Dodgast it, Bill, what'd ye have to go an' stomp on him fur after ye'd half kilt him an' gouged him?"

"'Cause many's the time he's done worse to better men, an' ye know it. Bub, do like I told ye, get that jug an' fetch my jacket, an' my readin' specs, an' my town shoes."

So after grandpaw finished the yoke they drove off, jug 'n' all, an' I was bawlin' an' grandmaw was bangin' kittles around in the summer kitchen. Been anybody but Triple-E she'd have read his title clear, but grandpaw an' him had been all thru the rebellion together in Grant's cavalry.

Well, by the Bighorn Spoon, 'bout sundown here come grandpaw, afoot! Grandmaw was goin' to throw hot grease on him for bustin' out of jail, but he hollers, "Dammit, woman, hold yore horses! Time we got to Sugar Grove crossin' that there jug was empty, so we turned off to Beardstown so's we could get it filled. We did, twice. It's still settin' there, empty's a gourd, by Triple-E's snorin' bed in the Park house. I'm hongry, Bub, go fetch me a jug of corn."

GROUND HOG DAY.

If the ground hog sees his shadow,
He knows his duty's plain
To turn his back on sunshine
And go to sleep again
For six weeks more of winter,
Tho we may sigh in vain
And long for Spring's forerunner—
The steady, melting rain.

But if the day is overcast
And he no shadow sees,
He ventures out and sniffs about,
And on a south borne breeze
He often finds a hint of Spring,
Of flowers and budding trees.
So let us pray for ground hog day
The skies be gloomy, cold, and gray!

Carolyn D. Tyler.

No matter what the ground hog says, the Russians are getting warm and the Germans chilly.

S. W. E. writes: "When my husband was drafted in 1941, he owned a piece of vacant farm land in western Illinois. A friend of his living in that vicinity sent me a notice of a tax sale that occurred last June, and his property was included in the list. Will my husband have to pay all the expenses involved when he returns in order to recover the property?"

The soldiers' and sailors' civil relief act requires that before the tax collector can legally sell real estate of a service man for taxes, the tax collector must apply to a court to do so. If, in this instance, the court's permission was obtained [assuming the court had information that the man was in service] your husband can recover title to the property if he starts suit within six months after service ends. Interest on the taxes would accumulate at the regular rate, but not in excess of 6 per cent a year. It certainly is not the usual thing for courts to permit such a sale if they are aware the man is in service and it is the responsibility of the tax collector to ascertain this fact before sale is started. The service man can safeguard his interests best by filing an affidavit with the collector when he enters service.

ROUTINE EXERCISES KEEP ARTERIES SOFT.

HOW much exercise shall be taken by the average male thruout life? This question has many practical applications. As youngsters, we were on the go most of the time. During our grammar and high school days, free hours were used for outdoor games, while at college, every normal young man participates in athletics to some extent.

But the chances are that as soon as family cares and business duties fill our frames with fatigue, we drop all forms of sport. The automobile has transformed us from a nation of walkers and horseback riders into sitters.

One effect, at least, is a marked increase in heart disease. This is emphasized by the occurrence of coronary occlusion—blocking of one of the arteries which supplies the cardiac organ with blood. Here are some rather startling figures: In 100 recent cases, 73 per cent were among sedentary workers; 22 per cent with those who walked a little [not much]; only 5 per cent were among those who engaged routinely in a moderate degree of physical effort.

As a rule, there is no doubt about the diagnosis. The patient will admit that perhaps for weeks or months he has been aware of a sense of pressure or constriction over the upper part of the breastbone. Aching tends to radiate to the shoulder and down the inner side of the left arm to the elbow—occasionally, to the finger tips. Sometimes it will be confined to the neck.

In other instances, if distress hangs on, it will seem to bore directly thru the chest from front to back. When it is agonizing it may be thought to arise in the stomach and nothing may be done about it because the attack is attributed to indigestion. The paroxysm ensues when the demands upon the heart are greater than can be met. In other words, the volume of nutriment which it receives is not sufficient to permit it to do its job comfortably. It then sends an SOS—pain.

But wherein is lack of exercise responsible? The one who fails to burn up the food which he eats, by means of the contraction and relaxation of muscles, is bound to overfill the system with waste products. Thus vital organs become overloaded and clogged. We then find arteriosclerotic changes occurring within important arteries, such as the coronaries.

But activity can be overdone. About the most dangerous type includes a sudden powerful spurt on the part of the one who is not trained to execute the maneuver. We are all familiar with the chap who runs for a train and then wonders why he is out of breath. In like fashion, disaster may come to any one who, unaccustomed to activity, will join the boys of the neighborhood in vigorous play. It is these sharp demands upon the body's pump that occasion trouble.

Fortunately, much can be done for the victim. Complete rest for at least six weeks is essential. Thereafter, resumption of duties will need to be gradual. But the one who keeps up a reasonable amount of physical training day after day, gradually reducing the load as age advances, is in far better position to escape one of these accidents.

BONE DISORDERS.

J. L. writes: Is there any other disease of the bones besides arthritis?

REPLY.

Unfortunately, the bones may be attacked by all sorts of organisms, just as can other tissues of the body. Deficiency states, such as rickets, affect these structures. Arthritis involves the joints primarily.

DISTURBED MEMORY.

A. L. writes: What is aphasia?

REPLY.

Inability to speak, read, or write. Older persons particularly may be afflicted temporarily. Each of us has said at one time or other, "The name I want is on the tip of my tongue." In a moment or two it comes to us.

YES, IF NEGLECTED.

B. V. writes: Can scarlet fever damage the kidneys?

REPLY.

Yes. Skilled care is demanded to prevent this serious complication.

If Winter Comes . . .

The grayness of the northern winter now becomes an intolerable burden. Overhead new snow falls from the sullen skies, while underfoot former snows have lain so long they are corrugated black metal, polished, and treacherous. Only the gulls move with languor and ease as they wheel and glide, glide and wheel, over the miniature ice floes of the river and lake.

Around the corners of Michigan av. the wind whips fiercely, playing crack-the-whip with shop windows laden with mink and sequins and glittering baubles, trying to immerse with a haze of frost the one window that mocks it, that of the florist. But thru the frosty mist peep bunches of soft white freesias, a vase of stately yellow jonquils, a bowl of scarlet tulips, and, breath-taking, a great cloud of yellow forsythia with wisps of green leaves jutting out beside the blossoms. You stare wistfully thru the clouded windows while the wind cuts and the snow falls. Then you go sadly but hastily home to the 68 degree [maximum] heat of the OPA, to the water that freezes the hands, to the snow soaked wood that smolders and goes out in the fireplace, sending dark trickles of water out over the hearth as its frozen pith thaws.

To make conciliation with the wind and the window of flowers is difficult. Now, haunting, disturbing, come memories of things long forgotten: The perfection of a zinnia bud with its tight green petals, each edged in a thread of darkness, folded with geometric precision one over the other; the gnarled ugliness of the iris root, so turnipy and dead wood an object to produce such straight green spikes, such delicate, graceful blossoms; the fat sleek bulb of the narcissus and the awakening warmth of the earth as you first dig into it in spring. You remember, too, one vision of a stretch of swampgrass turned pale blue as it waved in the breeze to disclose the heads of the wild iris blooming there. And of looking thru a grove made delicate green by the flower-like first leaves of spring to see, beyond it, like a flushed sunset, a clump of redbud trees in full flower. And the fragile snowdrop that now, in warmer climates, dots the brownness of the woodland floor. And the dogwood that later will stretch its broad white lace into the green. And the first tight buds on the bare body of the lilac bush. Then you realize that if far pastures always look greener, this time they really are.

But the cold room now is subtly warmer and the spirit somewhat appeased. You even think, daring again to be an optimist, that perhaps this year you actually will accomplish something in those four narrow flower boxes on what the city dweller blithely calls his roof garden. White petunias, perhaps? And red geraniums? And a large green bush or two? Or a riotous, gay mass of zinnias? But the wind always took care of those large green bushes in other years, remember? And the sun withered the geraniums. And the leaves of the petunias turned brown and dropped off long before the flowers bloomed. And the dirt is worn out, and that chemical didn't work last year, and as for that box of herbs with which you attempted a war garden, you pulled up the rosemary and savory thinking them weeds, and the chives affected the taste of everything else. And the tomatoes you tried to grow in chemical water in the living room were a miserable failure; only two leaves ever materialized.

At this stage the eye alights on that row of gardening books. They mock and jeer. "Herbs—How to Grow Them. How to Use Them" was the worst mistake. Or was it "Winter Flowers in Sun Heated Pits," there being no sun? Or "Science in the Garden"? No, none of these. Unquestionably the most malignant of all is that breezy dissertation that rests so futilely beside "Be Your Own Gardener." Its title is "Garden Easily."

"So you think the world is getting tenderer every day?" chides a writer hiding under the stinging pseudonym of Bumblebee. "What about the personal I just read: 'Tonight the gentleman will select the 5 of clubs. DeSearl.' Doesn't that sound ominous?"

RECOGNITION FOR NONSTRIKERS.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Since the United States entered the present war, there have been thousands of articles and millions of words printed in the newspapers and magazines relating to strikes, walkouts, lockouts, and general absenteeism in nearly all lines of work. This has affected the morale of all of our service men to some degree. Very little has been said about the large number of workers who have remained on the job, doing their work to the best of their ability regardless of condition. Don't you think it would be worthwhile to give these workers some sort of recognition for their efforts?

I believe a lapel button similar to the veteran's or Army-Navy "E" button would be the simplest way to do it.

This might help to counteract the unfavorable effect that many service men now have concerning the "home front." It would be visible proof to them that there are millions at home who are not taking a selfish advantage of present conditions.

R. G. TARR.

WE DON'T LIKE HIS BRAND OF HOP.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 29.—You are blaming Wallace because he has dreams to improve the standards of living of the American, in general—to furnish jobs to another 60 million Americans—give them the means to buy merchandise, thus giving manufacturers the opportunity to sell more, produce more, earn more. But you forget: If a dreamer is given a chance he might realize his dreams and really make America happier. How do you expect a man to make dreams come true if he never had any such dreams? Wallace's dreams might come true with their benefits to all. A man who never had dreams of a happier America can never make America happier. Don't you agree?

SHOPPING HOURS FOR WORKERS.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—This is a day of cooperation, we all agree, so I am appealing for coöperation from the housewives who like to shop downtown between the hours of noon and 2 p. m.

Please, ladies, would you mind giving the working girl a chance to pick up some of the things on her long list during these hours? We only get an hour for lunch and a lot of us only get 45 minutes, so you can readily see what chance we have of competing with you, who have more time than that. All we ask is that you lay low somewhere between these hours, and then you can have the stores to yourselves for the rest of the day.

EDNA I. JOHNSEN.

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE STREAM.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Isn't it interesting and rather significant that the commander in chief would deliberately dispense with the services of a very capable government employe in the middle of the stream in order to pay a political obligation? This is just one more illustration of why about one-half of the people of this nation have no earthly use for Mr. Roosevelt's leadership or for anything he says or does.

F. H. C.

THAT WAS OUR NOTION.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 28.—Really you must stop this razzing of Jimmy and Elliott Roosevelt, and Eleanor, too; also the CIO. Whose war do you think this is, anyway—the American people's?

H. A. WILSON.

THE ABUSE OF POWER.

Norman, Okla., Jan. 27.—John Edgar in his letter yesterday that "with thousands of homes saddened by the supreme sacrifice, millions of our sons offering their all, with the future of civilization in the balance," it was no time to mention that plane ride of Elliott's dog.

Have those who have been trusted with the highest offices the American people have to offer so little "sense of decency and propriety"? The answer has been repeatedly obvious. If so, should they be immune to criticism simply because they hold these high offices? We may obey the call of duty, but we respect only where conduct, not power, commands. America does not tolerate abuse of power for long.

May we indeed hope, as Mr. Edgar says, "that one of the incidents of this war will be a purge of those who have wealth and power without decency and propriety."

I am only one of the many millions who are "offering their all" for the "future of civilization" and for every decent American, and I am deeply grateful that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is on the home front fighting to keep America decently American.

LIEUTENANT, U. S. N.

QUALIFICATIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—If Elliott has the following qualifications to become a brigadier general: No previous military experience; no college training; entered the army when he was 30 years old as a captain, and no specialized ability except breeding dogs, horses, and acquiring wives—what rank should a fellow with these qualifications have: A graduate from one of the finest military schools in the country; university education in engineering [he is in the engineer corps]; specialized military training at C. M. T. C.; overseas combat duty; practical experience in engineering before entering the army; 26 when called into the army; single and doesn't own a dog or horse; and recommended for O. C. S. by the officers with whom he worked for two years?

This fellow is a private first class.

I CAN'T TAKE IT.

SENATE SPURNS WALLACE RULE OVER RFC FUNDS

Approves Separation of Lending Agency.

ferring to Harry Hopkins "in his present incarnation as a sort of a combination of Rasputin and Col. House and Svengali."

Barkley explained after the tumultuous session that he was handed the letter from Rosenman just before reading it aloud. It was marked "The White House, Feb. 1," but Rosenman has been reported out of the country, bound for France, and the White House has been silent as to his whereabouts.

The text:

"Dear Senator:

"The following is a paraphrase of a message which I have received from the President for transmittal to you:

"In 1942 when I transferred certain functions of the federal loan agency to the department of commerce by executive order, I provided that they should be returned to that agency six months after the conclusion of the war or sooner, if the President or congress should decide upon an earlier date. Therefore, should the congress return these functions to the federal loan agency at this time by the George resolution, I would approve the measure.

"With kindest regards.

"Very sincerely yours,

Judge Samuel I. Rosenman."

Wallace Withholds Comment.

Back in Washington after his New York get-together with Sidney Hillman, Wallace took dour cognizance of the senate's action.

"It would seem inappropriate for me," he said in a formal statement, "to make any comment before March 1."

Also at the same moment, Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.], a faithful Roosevelt supporter in most matters, repeated his earlier announcement that he will vote against confirmation of Wallace even for the post of secretary of commerce, and added with a chuckle that there are plenty of Democrats who will vote the same way.

The action of nine Republican senators who supported the Roosevelt forces in preventing an immediate vote on the confirmation of Wallace, at a time when many said the senate was in a mood to reject him, aroused considerable speculation.

Rather See Him in Job.

Other Republicans offered this explanation: The nine would rather see Wallace in a fixed job as secretary than free, with President Roosevelt's blessing, to scamper all over the world as America's unofficial representative at international conferences in the manner of Hopkins.

Sen. Brewster, one of the nine, commenting that Wallace is a candidate for President in 1948, said: "If he's secretary of commerce, we'll have him where we want him."

As secretary of commerce without the RFC under him Wallace would supervise the census, the weather bureau, the coast and geodetic survey, the civil aeronautics administration, and statistical bureaus.

The day's excitement started this morning when the Democrats held a caucus to find a way out of their confusion and try to harmonize their feuding groups. Pausing a moment on his way to the senate after the caucus, Barkley said his strategy would be to permit the George bill, which would separate the RFC, to come up for action and try to keep the lid on the confirmation vote.

Galleries Packed.

Every senator able to attend was present when Truman, Wallace's successor, gaveled for order. But there was no order. There was a hum from the packed galleries, and the conversation in the senate chamber was so loud that nobody could understand the routine business transacted.

Sen. Hoey [D., N. C.] was an impressive figure in his long black senatorial coat, adorned with an oversize scarlet carnation. Ailing Sen. Johnson [R., Cal.] was there, with his thatched white hair combed squarely to the sides from its part.

There was no smile on the ruddy face of Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.], Wallace's No. 1 supporter. Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.], leader of the fight against Wallace, smoothed his thin gray hair and grinned in happy, if scholarly, manner. Blind former Sen. Gore of Oklahoma waited patiently beside towering Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], who had worn his heavy gray tweed statesman's coat against the Washington cold.

Wallace Vote Put Off.

The moment routine business was over, Sen. Bailey called for an executive session, necessary to his avowed plans for a showdown on Wallace's confirmation.

Barkley objected, and Bailey's motion failed of adoption by a tie vote, 42 to 42. Sen. Taft, who had voted for the motion, then switched his vote to nay, in order that he might be on the winning side and hence able to move to reconsider the vote.

Barkley outmaneuvered him on parliamentary points and won an 83 to 2 vote for considering the bill to separate the RFC.

Sen. George [D., Ga.], author of the bill, began explaining his purpose, commenting:

"I am aware that in some quarters, which are ill advised and uninformed, a motive far different from that which I had in mind has been ascribed to the introduction of the bill."

George, reviewing the circumstances under which President Roosevelt had been able to transfer the RFC to Commerce Secretary Jones, said the job was authorized by congress for Jones alone.

Must Submit to Audits.

Sen. Byrd [D., Va.] won the adoption of an amendment to compel the RFC to submit to the controler general for annual audits, which will be presented to congress. Other senators joined in demanding that the RFC's lending operations, now above 40 billion dollars, be curbed at once to prevent abuse in the post-war period.

Taft then began his attack on Wallace and the great powers of the executive office, urging repeal of part of Mr. Roosevelt's war powers.

"There is no reason in the world for this bill," Taft said, "except the desire to limit Henry Wallace. . . . Mr. Wallace recognizes that fact. . . .

"Members of the senate feel that Henry Wallace is not competent to administer the RFC. . . . The only possible reason for this bill is that the senate has no confidence in Henry Wallace, because it does not believe in his philosophy, and it thinks that by taking this power away from him it can in some way limit him."

Brooks Supports George Bill.

The George bill then was passed, 72 to 12. Both Illinois senators, Brooks [R.] and Lucas [D.] voted for the bill.

Barkley then called for the executive session, at which the question of confirmation was to be considered. The majority leader asked that action be postponed until March 1, to give the house and the President time to dispose of the bill.

"Many senators," he explained, "desire to vote for Mr. Wallace, but only if the federal lending agencies are removed from the department of commerce."

Barkley then read the Rosenman letter of President Roosevelt's capitulation.

Hisses Greet Taft Remark.

"I am quite willing," said Taft, "that the battle on Mr. Wallace should be postponed until the first o' March, when the senate will have full time to consider the remarkable repudiation by the great majority of the senate of Mr. Wallace's qualifications to hold any important office in the government."

An outburst of hisses from the gallery greeted Taft's remark, and Vice President Truman threatened to clear the galleries.

Barkley's motion was passed by a voice vote, with no dissents heard.

Barkley's explanation of the black patch over his eye, held on by a black band that encircled his head:

"I have an ulcer in the cornea of my left eye. I hope no member of the minority ever has to appear in the condition I'm in—looking like Dead Eye Dick. The doctor told me to wear the patch as protection from the wind.

"I thought I ought to wear it in the senate."

SOUTH BEND CIO OFFICE PICKETED BY WAR WIVES

Protest Union Plan for Job Lay-off.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 1 [Special].—A group of war wives, some accompanied by small children, today withstood freezing weather to picket headquarters of the CIO United Automobile Workers local 5 in protest of the prospective lay-off of service men's wives at the Studebaker company's aviation division.

From daylight until dark, in temperatures ranging down to 10 above zero, a dozen women paraded before the union's offices. When they ended the demonstration tonight they expressed satisfaction with the attention it had attracted to their problem and planned to attend a union mass meeting called for tomorrow to discuss the matter.

In their march before the union offices, many pickets carried placards accusing the union of discrimination against war wives for its plan to deprive them of the status previously given them by their husbands' service.

Given Husbands' Seniority.

"My Daddy Died for This?" read a sign carried by the 2 year old son of Mrs. Laura May Verstraete, 23, whose husband was killed at Bougainville. Another sign carried by a woman said: "We Gave Our Husbands, They Want Our Jobs."

The women said the union some time ago set up an arrangement whereby wives and other close dependents of former Studebaker men now in service were credited with their husbands' seniority.

But last Friday the union voted that henceforth straight seniority would prevail in the event of layoffs. At a massmeeting last night the union voted down a demand of 350 women members that they retain their seniority preference. The Studebaker plant recently laid off about 1,400 employes as a result of contract cutbacks, and more releases are expected.

Must Support Baby.

"The union didn't give us a chance to present our case last night," complained Mrs. Ann Donathon. "Several of us tried to speak but they just booed us down and laughed at us. The meeting lasted only 20 minutes and was adjourned in the midst of our attempts to be heard."

"Why should we lose our jobs so women who don't need work as badly as we do can keep theirs?" demanded Mrs. Verstraete. "As many as five members of some families are working at Studebaker. All I want is a chance to support my baby while the war is on."

HELP WALLACE, MEMBERS OF CIO BEG EMPLOYERS

The drive by the Congress of Industrial Organizations to win approval of Henry Wallace as secretary of commerce was at its peak in Chicago yesterday, with 200,000 union members seeking the support of business men ranging from corner grocers to industrial employers of CIO unionized workers.

Officers of every union, said Michael Mann, secretary of the Chicago CIO Industrial Union council, telegraphed messages to employers and union members, and called on merchants in their home neighborhoods, and urged them to wire to Washington.

Typical of the union telegrams to employers was one sent by John Mattson, director of region 4 of the United Automobile Workers of America [CIO]. It read:

"UAW-CIO feels confident that you will support the program designed to make American capitalism and private enterprise work in the same great manner in peace as it has worked in war. This is the program of Henry Wallace. We sincerely hope and urge you to issue a public statement in favor of Wallace and his program. Forward your statement supporting the confirmation of Wallace as secretary of commerce immediately to the Business Men's Committee for Wallace, Carleton hotel, Washington, D. C."

There are as many kinds of rice pudding as there are recipes for salad dressing, varying all the way from an old fashioned slow-baked pudding to the more modern type of dessert—fluffy with egg whites or whipped cream.

"Glorified rice," or "heavenly hash" as it is often called, is a fruity rice dessert, rich with whipped cream, which has been forgotten these years when cream is thin and simpler desserts have seemed in better taste. But the many other rice combinations which require comparatively little sugar have been much in demand to satisfy hearty appetites. These puddings are a good substitute for desserts made from tapioca which has been absent from our grocery shelves for many months.

The old fashioned baked rice pudding requires long cooking but little fuss in preparation. Because of the slow cooking it is creamy and delicious in flavor.

Old Fashioned Rice Pudding.
[Serves four to six.]

- ½ cup raw rice
- 1 quart milk
- ½ cup sugar, brown or white
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg
- ½ cup raisins, optional

Wash rice thoroly with hot water, add other ingredients except raisins and pour into a greased baking dish. Bake uncovered at 275 degrees for three hours. Stir several times during the first hour to prevent rice settling to the bottom. Then add raisins, if used, and stir whenever a brown film forms on top, unless this "skin" is desired on the finished product. A richer and more nutritious pudding results when 1 or 2 beaten eggs are added to the pudding during the last hour of baking. Serve hot or cold.

This quickly prepared top of the stove rice pudding is light and fluffy and always a family favorite:

Fluffy Rice Pudding.

- 1 cup cooked rice [¼ cup uncooked]
- 2 cups milk
- 2 eggs
- ⅓ cup white sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash of nutmeg
- ½ cup raisins, optional

Scald milk with cooked rice in top of double boiler. Separate eggs and beat yolks until thick; add sugar, salt, and nutmeg, and blend well. Add part of hot mixture slowly, then return to double boiler, add raisins if used, and cook until slightly thickened, about 5 minutes. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, chill and serve. Omit nutmeg, if desired, and flavor with ½ teaspoon vanilla or grated rind and juice of ½ lemon.

This date and rice pudding uses honey as the sweetener and is a dessert you can put in the oven and forget—a perfect dish for an oven baked dinner.

Date Rice Pudding.
[Serves four.]

- 2 cups cooked rice
- ½ cup chopped dates
- ¼ cup honey
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup milk

Place rice and dates in alternate layers in casserole, drizzling honey over each layer. Mix eggs and milk and pour over all. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

Here are several other sugar saving desserts. The maple sirup pudding has been praised by readers as "perfectly delicious."

Maple Rice Pudding.
[Serves four.]

- 2 cups cooked rice
- 3 beaten eggs
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup maple sirup
- 2 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons melted margarine

Mix all ingredients, pour into greased baking dish, place dish in shallow pan of hot water, and bake at 325 degrees for 50 minutes. Cool and chill.

Orange Rice Pudding.
[Serves four.]

- ¾ cup sweetened condensed milk
- 2 teaspoons orange juice
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 2 cups cooked rice, chilled

Add juices and rind to condensed milk [do not use evaporated milk as recipe will not work] and stir until mixture thickens. Fold in rice and chill. Pile in sherbet glasses.

Quick Leftover Rice Pudding.

Prepare packaged vanilla, chocolate or butterscotch pudding according to directions on package, add a cup or a cup and a half of cooked rice, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Mix well and chill thoroly.

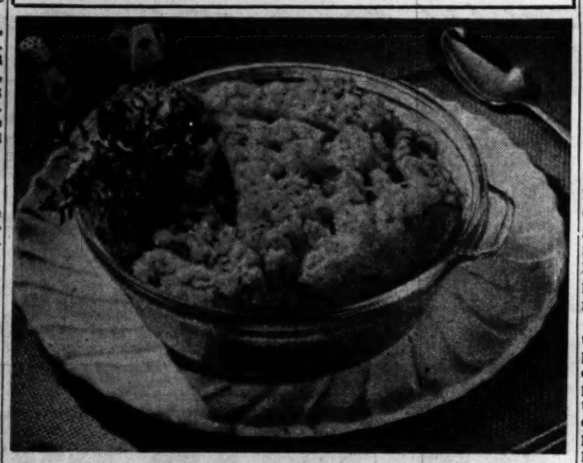
Rutabaga Souffle a Tasty Dish



Rutabaga souffle is a dish that lifts this lowly vegetable out of its humdrum role and puts it on the list of favorite winter menu items. It's fluffy and tasty, a perfect dish for the meat loaf dinner. To make this souffle:

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Saute one tablespoon minced onion in two tablespoons fat until lightly browned. Add one teaspoon salt, one and one-half tablespoons sugar, a dash of pepper and cayenne, and three and one-half cups cooked mashed rutabagas. Beat two egg yolks until foamy and add. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into greased casserole and bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve at once. [Serves four to six.]

Supply of Pork May Be Cut in Half This Year

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

It should be easier for civilians in the months ahead to buy a bottle of liquor than a pork chop altho both depend on the same raw material—grain. Housewives will get little more than half the pork they got last year because of the decline in production and the rise in federal requirements.

Per capita consumption of pork in this country may reach the lowest point on recent record before the end of the year. The total meat output for the nation is expected to fall two billion pounds below the 1944 output. Federal purchases are expected to total at least one billion pounds more than in 1944.

There is enough surplus grain to raise the 1945 meat tonnage one billion pounds over the 1944 record. But, experts assert, farmers haven't the animals to feed the excess grain to because federal price pressure has discouraged farm meat animal production, pig raising especially.

New Deal farm policies may result in an increased production of liquor at the sacrifice of meat and fats, farmers say. Millions of bushels of high moisture grain faces spoilage this spring. It must be fed to hogs before spring weather sets in, or be converted into alcohol. Since administrators of the price control act have "plowed under" every third pig of the 1945 supply thru price penalties, grain requirements of hogs will be less than last year despite increased grain production.

The office of price administration said it restricted returns from hogs because pig raising had become too large in relation to the grain crops. In the early stages of the federal crop control, the government pledged it would not again destroy living pigs as it did by the millions in 1933, and that other methods would be used to govern production.

The result of Washington interference with the complicated pig raising industry, farmers say, is that now they have the smallest hog supply in relation to grain crops that they have had for many years.

Farmers last season produced 450 million more bushels of corn, oats, and wheat than in 1943. Stock yards officials said farmers would have created three billion pounds of meat from this grain surplus if the planning had been left in farmers' hands. Instead, potential pork chops in the form of grain may rot in farm bins.

StartMaternity Center Jubilee Member Drive

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE fight to "save womanhood, motherhood, and babyhood" which the late Dr. Joseph B. De Lee undertook 50 years ago when he opened the Maxwell St. dispensary, now known as the Chicago Maternity center, was taken up by 75 women who met for luncheon yesterday in the Casino to start the center's month long membership enrollment drive.

The luncheon guests received their enrollment kits from Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr., chairman of the membership drive, who addressed the gathering in an all black costume and tiny net sailor starred in buttercups and daisies, a real harbinger of spring. By the time Mrs. Armour meets with her committee for the last time March 2 in the Casino, these workers aim to have signed up 750 new supporters for the center.

In the absence of the center's medical director, Dr. Beatrice Tucker, who is in the hospital with a broken hip, Dr. Harry Benaron, the associate medical director, outlined the work of the center at Maxwell and Newberry sts. Mrs. Howard Linn, chairman of the extension committee, explained that the jubilee anniversary drive is being conducted in place of a large benefit, which will permit 100 per cent of the returns to be given to the center. Mrs. Linn, who appeared at the meeting in her Red Cross uniform, also was an accident casualty, as her arm was in an improvised sling as the result of a taxicab mishap. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. John Andrews King, chairman of the center's board of directors.

Wedding News.

William B. Wiemers Jr., who is receiving his wings and commission as flight officer in the army air forces today in Texas, will arrive in Winnetka late tomorrow, and on Tuesday he and Miss Peggy Rich will be married. The ceremony will take place in the chapel of Christ church, Winnetka, and because of the recent death of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. Eager Lloyd, it will be a small one, as will be the reception following in the Winnetka residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William Ward Clore.

Miss Rich, daughter of Mrs. M. Lloyd Rich of Winnetka, will be attended by her cousin, Miss Peggy Cox. Flight Officer Wiemers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiemers, also of Winnetka, will have his father as best man. Miss Cynthia Burnham will give a shower today for Miss Rich, and there will be a few informal parties over the week-end. Mrs. Clore's husband, Capt. Clore, is stationed in India with the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Saunders of Evanston announce the marriage Jan. 13 in Chicago of their daughter, Mary, to Donn De Witt Moseley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl T. Moseley of Highland Park. Mr. Moseley and his bride are at home temporarily in the Moraine hotel, Highland Park, following a wedding trip to French Lick, Ind.

Young Mrs. Moseley, who attended Randolph-Macon Woman's college in Lynchburg, Va., is a senior at Northwestern university in its school of education. Mr. Moseley is in business in Chicago following a medical discharge from the marine air forces, in which he served for nearly a year. He attended St. John's Military academy, at which he was a member of the varsity football, hockey, and track teams, and during a post-graduate year he received a gold cup as the outstanding football player of the season.

In a small family ceremony at 4:30 p. m. today in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Ellis of Evanston, Miss Betty Ellis will become the bride of Frederick Gerber Reed of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Washington, D. C. Miss Peggy Ellis will be her sister's only attendant, and Glenn Auten, who served with the Red Cross in Calcutta, India, with Mr. Reed, will be best man. Mr. and Mrs. Auten are here from Michigan for the ceremony, and the bride's aunt, Miss Louise Ellis, has come from Concord, N. H.

Miss Ellis was graduated from the University of Chicago and from the Katherine Gibbs school in New York. Mr. Reed, a graduate of the law school of the University of Pittsburgh, recently returned from three and a half years of service in the China-Burma-India war theater, where he was director of accounting for the Red Cross. He and his bride will live in Washington.

On the Calendar.

Invitations are in the mail for a spring fashion show which has been a popular event since its inception eight years ago, the annual show put on by the Chicago branch of the Fashion Group and which will benefit Gardiner General hospital. "Fashion Becomes You" is the title of this year's event, a World War

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 1.—Dennis Morgan, before Bette Davis' return, was all set for Bette's picture, "Stolen Life," but I understand the lady objects. Inasmuch as she's producer as well as star, everybody has paused to wait, look, and listen. That was some luncheon the studio threw for her, and what speeches! Except for a divine sense of humor, which Bette has, some of them might have made her slightly ill. . . . Orville Bennie, from Cedar Rapids, Ia., is here at the request of a big producer with the rights to the story of those fabulous Cherry Sisters. Before he could see the producer who requested his presence he ran into another who's equally interested. One Cherry sister ran for mayor of Cedar Rapids twice and was defeated twice. There was nothing those gals wouldn't tackle. Her platform was something every politician should study—it was that simple. . . . Mary Martin's deal for Paramount to permit her to do "One Touch of Venus" is getting warm. They'll let her do the "Venus" picture if she'll give them five pictures. "I'll give you two," said she. And that's how it stands.

Big Business a la Hollywood.

In Hollywood if a picture costs a million, producers claim it costs three. I credited Chrysler's with spending a million for 15 shorts about their war work. They say only a fifth of that amount was spent. Maybe they'd better come out and show us how to make pictures. . . . Cathy Downs, Howard Hughes' girl friend from "The Diamond Horseshoe," remembering what a sweater did for Lana Turner, decided to do as much for a new one she'd purchased. She did, with a little extra padding. Now the pictures can't be shown. . . . Col. William Keighley is out of the army. He'll be back soon. He has an enviable record and made many friends for our town. . . . Jock Lawrence's place on Gen. Eisenhower's staff has been taken by Lt. Col. Herb Bregstein, very well known in Hollywood. . . . I don't wonder that Johnny Farrow went into a towering rage and let the fellows who were responsible for it have it at a big dinner given for the New York Paramount gang. His picture, "The Hitler Gang," was not included among the eligibles for the academy award.

Just Like Old Home Week.

At the Jack Potts' the other night were the John Charles Thomases, Walter Pidgeons, Charles Correll [of Amos 'n' Andy], the Nelson Eddys, Blanche Bing, and her sister, Frances. Not a note was sung. The star of the evening was my manager, Dema Hershberger, who wasn't even there. . . . You won't believe it, but Joe Breen, vice president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors' association, hasn't had a picture snapped since graduating from high school, and he's lived here for years. He's the big, bad wolf who whittles on all those stories before they're made. . . . That Palmer is here again—first name Gretta—to do a yarn about how pictures can form international opinion. Pictures can, but the question is—will they? . . . Where's all that loving kindness our town is supposed to have for returned soldiers? Arthur Rankin, with ribbons from two wars and a good actor of long standing, is out of uniform and can't even get a look-in. So what's going to happen to those millions of returning boys? Will they get the same treatment? . . . On the other hand, Ray Bauduc is looking for an ex-service girl to sing with his new, all ex-service men band. They start touring Feb. 16.

Big Canvass for Papers.

Nice teaming with Bing Crosby and Sonny Tufts in "Here Come the Waves." But Betty Hutton's voice doesn't blend. It sounds too shrill. You ain't heard "Acentuate the Positive" until you hear Bing sing it. Bing's pa liked my Sunday piece about Bing, but with the paper shortage he didn't think he had the right to buy extra copies, so he canvassed four blocks in his neighborhood and asked for papers so he could send clippings to friends up north. . . . Lady Mendl is in Good Samaritan hospital for a complete checkup. . . . Gene Krupa's drumming and Ethel Smith's playing on the electric organ in "George White's Scandals" had everybody at RKO listening. . . . Mrs. Leonard Lyons, after the party for Jerome Kern, was voted one of the most charming hostesses anywhere.

Thru the Looking Glass

You hear a lot of talk about this or that "beauty secret." Actually we doubt if there is such a thing as a single beautifier that accomplishes miraculous transformations.

The other day, in awed admiration of the most beautiful complexion we ever saw, we asked a woman what her beauty secret was, and actually her answer didn't surprise us one bit. She said that regular skin care is what does it—and she's right.

A complexion, like a baby, does best on a regular schedule of the kind of individualized care it needs. The woman whose luminous skin impressed us so much has never missed a cream cleansing even one night since she was 17 years old. Since she was 25 she's used a night cream and for the last 10 years she's used a foundation.

She doesn't experiment—and maybe that's a good idea. What she does—just the simple basic things such as cleansing, and oiling, and making up carefully—she does with complete regularity. She uses the same preparations all the time, but she believes, wisely, that it is her consistency in using them that has really preserved her complexion so beautifully.

She never misses one good soap and water cleansing at least once a day; she never misses a cream cleansing twice a day; she never misses the light nightly massage with a lubricating cream. She brushes her eyebrows not just when she's doing a special makeup job but every day. There is, as a matter of fact, no "special" treatment for her. Her daily skin care is simple but right—and she never varies it, but neither does she ever miss it.

In complexion care—and in hair care, too—consistency is, indeed, a jewel. It preserves and eliminates the frantic repair efforts most of us have to make after neglect's harm is done.

Music's Light Flares Anew at Symphony

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Hans Lange, conductor; Milton Preves, violist. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Feb. 1, 1945, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:

Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes of Carl Maria von Weber....Hindemith
Concerto for Viola and Orchestra...Walton
Symphony No. 2, D minor .....Dvorák

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Because of the brownout it was darker than usual outside Orchestra hall last night, but because of the music it was brighter than usual inside. The Chicago Symphony orchestra had Hans Lange at the helm and Milton Preves as soloist in a concert which added two distinguished works to the downtown repertory, and ended with Dvorák so high of spirits and warm of heart I remembered the time John Weicher started counting the other Bohemians in the orchestra for me, and stopped at 40 because he was tired.

Whatever their nationality, the men were in international mood last night to do what amounted to just about the best consistent playing of the season. They tuned up with Paul Hindemith's brilliant score which deserves a better title than that jawbreaker, "Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes of Carl Maria Von Weber." Perhaps you remember that Efrem Kurtz played two of the four movements at Ravinia last summer with outstanding success which carried a touch of the tantalizing because we wanted to hear it all. It was a pleasure last night to discover that the first half of the score is just as delightful.

In fact, the "Turandot" scherzo with its touch of chinoiserie is one of the most brilliant passages in the score, with a deftness of style and shadowy gayety of texture that captivated more than one listener who hitherto had turned thumbsdown on Hindemith. The whole work is diabolically clever—perhaps that title is just another instance of sardonic wit at play—but it cannot be dismissed as nothing more than that. It is a beautiful thing in its instrumentation, its sense of linear strength and its superb use of brass, always a Hindemith strong point. The orchestra played it expertly, and it was a joy to hear the brass section meet one of the finest of contemporary composers on his own high level.

It did precisely that, too, with the Walton Concerto for Viola, which found in Milton Preves' sensitive skill and serenity of style a particularly satisfying soloist. The concerto, played for the first time by Hindemith himself, is easily the work of the same man who wrote the violin concerto played by Heifetz last Sunday. Here, too, is the deep, almost somber, lyricism, the outburst of brilliance in the middle section, the sudden reversion to brooding sadness that lets you remember the viola at its hauntingly beautiful best.

Mr. Lange let us cherish that thru the intermission, then he sent us home with the Dvorák Second flung around us like an extra overcoat—the kind of warming memory that makes audiences scorn the weather.

Dr. Stone Is Selected as Acting Director of Sunday Evening Club

Dr. John Timothy Stone has been named acting director of the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall, to succeed to the leadership of the club's founder, the late Clifford W. Barnes. This was announced by the trustees following a meeting yesterday noon in the Midday club.

Stone is pastor emeritus of Fourth Presbyterian church and retired president of McCormick Theological seminary. Mr. Barnes died last September.

Dr. Stone has accepted the post until fall and will give the 7 o'clock informal Bible talks. He will be introduced to the club Sunday night.

Capes Strike New Redingote Note This Year

BY REA SEEGER.

Coming back to a terrific welcome are the neat costumes that are frankly redingotes or modified versions of that perennial spring classic. The redingote get-together usually comprises a dress and a companion full length coat with either short or long sleeves. This year a waist length cape with smooth rounded shoulders is featured. There are countless variations of this duet of dress and coat.

New this spring will be the trick coats with a cape section in front and the back like a regular coat. In these models the skirt is attached only across the back. A more intricate model has front suspenders attached to the front section of the skirt.

The print and plain combination goes on forever. In one smart variation the slim dress is matched to the lining of the outer coat. The spring pet of any wardrobe will be the snappy checked wool, lined with a solid color and teamed with a dress of solid color to blend with the lining. Suspenders of every width and the effective wide bretelles also are used with these skirts and cape models. Some of the suspenders form a double cross on the chest, while others serve as extra width suspenders. The models are all young and smart.

Sheers in pastel, neutral, and street colors are promised for summer. Both dresses and companion coats will be of the comfortable summer sheer weight. Exquisite details mark these models. There are tucked motifs, shirred details, soft bows, appliqued bands and scrolls, and the narrow self material covered belts.

The mature woman has not been forgotten, for many of the most unusual models have been expressly designed to slice inches off too opulent curves. Dressmaking details incorporated to achieve slenderness include vertical tucks, vertical insets, and long, sleek cut lines.

Ask Additional 1,600 Nurses to Aid in Europe

Corps' 44th Birthday

The 44th anniversary of the army nurse corps will be observed today without ceremony, it was announced yesterday by the army's 6th service command. Nurses will go about their duties as usual in hospitals and offices in the Chicago area. The command appealed for more nurses to enter the corps to care for sick and wounded American fighters.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 1.—The European theater of operations [ETO] needs a minimum of 1,600 additional nurses, Lt. Col. Ida Danielson, chief nurse of the ETO said here today.

"More than 16,000 are serving in this theater," she said. "This does not mean our boys are getting inadequate care, but our nurses today are caring for more beds and working longer hours than ever before. That the recovery rate among our soldiers is so high is a tribute to their willing spirit and almost superhuman efforts."

She said the nurses now are serving from 12 to 16 hours a day without days off or leaves.

In an appeal for more help, Col. Danielson, who comes from Walnut Grove, Minn., said: "Never in the history of the United States army nurses have the nurses faced a more difficult job, or done it better than the nurses here today."

She introduced some of the nurses serving in supervisory posts in a variety of capacities, some in surgical teams on the front, anesthetists in hospitals, dietitians, physical therapists, ward nurses, and central supply nurses. Some of them landed on D-day plus 4 in Normandy.

Among these was Lt. Margaret Hornback of Shelbyville, Ky., who described her job as waiting until the patient comes out of the anesthetic after a serious operation and telling him, "It's all right."

"I never get over the thrill of seeing their eyes light up and the smiles on their faces," she said. "They overly appreciate anything you do for them. They love to live and are so glad to be alive."

Lt. Margaret Hurl of Clinton, O., told how the surgical team with which she serves set up a field hospital behind the 3d army front after the Ardennes break-thru and how the members worked for 18 hours at a time without letup.

Lt. M. Peting of Huntington, Ind., who has been overseas two years, said that recently that in one of her wards where, normally, there were 54 patients being prepared for the operating room, they had 78 patients at one time.

The work of the nurses, it was admitted, has been greatly lightened by medical innovations since the last war. Plasma, penicillin, sulpha drugs, and the new pressure dressings for burns which do not have to be changed for 11 to 12 days instead of every day as before, as well as the use of sodium pentethal, which is injected in the veins to put a patient to sleep, all contribute to make nursing easier now.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Girls Will Be Boys Note.

On a recent wintry day two employes, leaving the company restaurant at Western Electric, accidentally exchanged coats. The error was not apparent until one employe noticed, on the way home, that the coat sleeves failed to reach his manly wrists. The other discovered the coat didn't button right to left as it had done before.

As you may have guessed—the owner of the first coat was a man, the owner of the second a woman. In the lost and found department Mr. A. met Miss B. Each expressed gratitude for the return of the coats and happily sauntered off.

Landladying Pro Tem.

While on the subject of landladying pro tem for a houseful of white collar girls, here's an incident about one young careerist:

One evening, before leaving for a week-end holiday, she had monopolized the bath in her rooming house for hours and left the tub undrained, as was her habit. The girls there got permission to change the lock on the other bathroom to make certain she couldn't get in when she returned, and they left the first bathroom exactly as it was.

Our careerist came back late at night . . . a strenuous week-end . . . dead tired . . . the train very dirty. All she wanted was a "nice hot tub and a lot of shut-eye." She got all set, her bathrobe pockets bulging with accessories, and headed for the bathroom, turned on the light, and saw the tub—not gleaming white as it should have been, but just as she had left it. She tiptoed to the other bathroom . . . the door was locked. Something in the attitude of the other girls must have penetrated that selfish little noggin, for, chagrined, she moved out the next day. And thus did one business girl learn consideration.

Slur on Beauty Arouses 3,000 Co-Eds at N. U.

David Bruce.

Three thousand Northwestern university co-eds yesterday directed the well known fury of a woman scorned upon an unfortunate Hollywood actor who, at a Wednesday luncheon in the film capital, casually announced he thought they were "the homeliest bunch of girls in the world before breakfast."

Sorority houses, classrooms, and coffee shops buzzed with angry mutterings as the girls hopefully suggested that the actor, David Bruce, 31, a former Northwestern student, might like to revisit his alma mater for an inspection of the current crop of co-eds before breakfast. But if Mr. Bruce is prudent he will stay in Hollywood, sorority house mothers said.

One group of women nominated Bruce as the man "most in need of new glasses," and said they would give him a pair if he would meet them in a dark alley for a few minutes.

Bruce, Deanna Durbin's new leading man, said he gathered his data on the co-eds' pre-breakfast appearance while working as a sorority house waiter from 1933 to 1935.

The actor laid the worst curse on redheads, who he said were by far the worst looking.

"They don't have any eyebrows and their freckles stand out," he said.

He listed blondes as the next in unattractiveness, but conceded that brunettes occasionally can look normal before breakfast.

Typical reactions among the girls on the Evanston campus were those of three candidates for cover girl of the school's year book.

A redheaded sophomore, Frances Scott of Evanston, sputtered: "Perhaps Mr. Bruce doesn't like the natural redhead because he is so used to sophisticated glamour that needs two layers of pancake and artificial eyebrows to attract a second look in the morning. I'll bet, tho, none of those cuties ever get up in the morning."

Brunette Ruth Burns, a senior of Helena, Mont., declared: "This sounds like a Hollywood gag. Every one, including even poor, blind Mr. Bruce, knows Northwestern is tops in beauty."

A blonde, Jean Brooks, 2712 Broadway, Evanston, a senior, said: "We don't have to defend Northwestern co-eds. They have not only beauty but also brains, both before and after breakfast."

Bruce, whose real name is Andrew McBroom, graduated from the school of speech in 1927. He was born in Kankakee, Ill.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Double	Pass	2 hearts
Pass	3 no trump	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

The possession of three and one-half honor tricks is frequently a siren call which lures many bridge players to their destruction. It has been pointed out to them that when an opponent opens the bidding and they hold that much in high cards, it is obligatory for them to double. This is only half a truth which, like half a brick, can cause considerable damage.

That a takeout double should be fortified with certain high card strength there is no doubt, but more important than that are considerations of the future. Remember that you are bringing your partner into the bidding perhaps involuntarily and in addition to honor tricks you must promise him safety. It is well to look ahead and try to figure out what partner will probably bid in response to the double; if that is not going to suit you and you have no reasonably safe place to park yourself, something is wrong with your double. It seems to be a good business policy not to deliberately place yourself in a position you are not going to enjoy. Yet that is exactly what South did in today's hand.

When East opened with one spade and South doubled it required no crystal gazer to foresee that partner would bid two hearts. South's escape to two no trump met with the fate which it no doubt deserved.

It is a good general policy when the opponents have opened the bidding with the suit in which you hold your principal strength, not to interfere with them. First, because your silence may induce them to overestimate their strength and, secondly, because hands in which you are top heavy in the adversaries' suit are usually hard to manage when you become declarer. When you are "loaded" with the opposition's trumps my advice is to play the "snake-in-the-grass" game.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

MORE INFORMATION NEEDED.

"I've been out on Long Island." Maclain disengaged Sybella's fingers with an affectionate pat, and went to sit back at his desk.

Sybella brought him a cocktail and placed it in the metal tray affixed to his desk where he could find it without groping.

"I'm sorry to be late, Lucia, but I'm working hard."

"With any results?"

"There's a lot more to be done before I can tell." He pushed a button behind him.

Lucia started as a voice came thru a loud speaker set in the wall. "When you hear the signal it will be exactly 6:18."

Sybella said, "You should warn people about that, Duncan. I jumped a foot the first time I heard it, and this is Lucia's first visit here."

"My life is full of gadgets," said Duncan Maclain, and asked, "Where's Rena?"

"She left for Washington this afternoon to spend a few days with Spud," Sybella explained.

"Is something the matter, captain?" Lucia asked.

He finished his cocktail but didn't answer. After a while he said half aloud, "I wish to God that Spud was here."

"It has been a long time since he went to Washington, hasn't it?" Sybella was speaking more to herself than to the captain. "It's over a year."

He drew himself up close to the desk and took the inevitable 50 piece jigsaw puzzle from the right hand drawer, dumping the pieces into a pile before him.

The captain's jigsaw puzzle was a fount of ideas which seldom failed him. By following the curves and angles of the pieces with the tips of his fingers he had learned thru years of practice to put the puzzle together faster than a man who could see.

Yet, when he was puzzled himself, when his thoughts were confused, the picture of his finger tips was slow to take form. He sat there now, seemingly loathe to begin, gently prodding the tiny pile with his index finger, then stirring it out into smoothness with a circular motion of his arm.

Sybella lit a cigaret. The scratch of the match brought the captain's head around.

"There are things connected with Troy Singleton's murder," he said at last, "that even a blind man can't see. What would your husband have gained, Lucia, by killing that girl?"

"Nothing," she whispered.

Again the captain wasn't listening. "She had his money, plunged into a foolish venture. Davis claimed she wanted to marry him. I don't think that's true. She departed from the cocktail party without any trouble on Wednesday afternoon. I think she would have walked out of Larmar's existence just as readily."

The captain's fingers had found two pieces of the puzzle. He picked them up, one in each hand, and joined them daintily; then laying them flat on the desk, he pressed them down with his thumb, and began to talk again.

"It's hard to believe in logic, Lucia, and then explain away a man alone in his apartment, a dead girl, and a bullet in her which fits that man's own gun."

"He didn't do it," said Lucia.

"Then we have to dismiss our logic," said Duncan Maclain. "We have to start out on a fresh new trail. If Larmar didn't kill her, I have to write a fairy story and present it to Davis and Archer. And that's going to be some fun! Duncan Maclain against the department of ballistics. Duncan Maclain, blind as a bat and batty as a loon, trying to tell a man like Davis that some mechanical means was used to fire that Buchel gun."

Sybella leaned forward, her hands clasped tightly. "What are you driving at, Duncan?"

"Just what I said," he told her with irritation. "The Buchel pistol killed her. If Larmar didn't pull the trigger, what did?"

"The carillon." Lucia discovered that she had twisted her handkerchief into a ball. "Is that what you meant last night when you said that the man in the tower across the street might have shot her? The man who plays the carillon?"

"The science of crime progresses," said Duncan Maclain. "A year ago I met a man who discovered a means of pushing people out of windows when he wasn't there. For a time, I even agreed with Davis and Archer when they said it couldn't be done. Today I don't know. If I manage to save your husband, Lucia, it will be on account of the crime I solved last year. It reduced me to a state of doubt where I even believe that a carillon can be used to fire a gun. Thats' why I wish that Spud was here."

"Why do you need Spud?" asked Sybella.

"Because I need more dope on the Singleton girl," said Duncan Maclain. "There will be traces in her apartment he could find. I want to know whom she loved, and whom she lived with, and what she kept, and what she wore, and what she threw away. If I'm going to save Larmar I've got to know things about that girl that nobody will ever tell me."

"I'll go myself," said Lucia. "I'll get in."

"You and your parade," said Duncan Maclain. "You may not know it, Lucia, but you and I and Paul and everybody within a radius of 10 blocks of the Arday apartments are like kites. Not only the police department, but a detective agency employed by Daniel Pine has operators on our trail."

"There must be some way, captain." Lucia was close to hysteria. "I can't wait very much longer to get Larmar out of jail."

"It's the best place for him," said Duncan Maclain. "If I'm right, Troy sat herself down in front of a bullet intended for your husband. You'd better leave him where he is. The next time this killer tries to get your husband, he may not fail."

Sybella stood up and said softly, "There's nobody on my trail. Let's go and eat dinner, darling. Then I have to run along."

When Sybella excused herself after dinner, leaving him and Lucia, she had no thought of any histrionic adventure. Obtaining admission to a murdered girl's apartment was a simple business proposition to be carried out with dispatch like any other business deal.

Musical Movie Is Reminiscent of Early Talkies

"BOWERY TO BROADWAY."

By Mae Tinée.

While watching this opus unfold, I kept thinking it was vaguely familiar—and it was; reminiscent of the early talkies, when producers were so delighted with sound that they couldn't get enough of it and had musical extravaganzas all over the place.

The story concerns two theatrical producers who quarrel and steal talent from each other but really are like brothers at heart; a priest who seems to have little to do except bail one out of jail when the other prankishly has him arrested; the beautiful girl who wants no part of fame, but becomes a celebrity over night; the orchestra leader who loves her, but can't stand the competition of big money; the old time dance team, and all the other stock characters you've ever seen in anything.

Not only do you have to hear of their quarrels and misfortunes, but even more boring, you have to see their darn shows, and that's not easy to take. I thought if Susanna Foster sang one more song while sitting on a prop moon, I'd lose my mind. Andy Devine is badly miscast and even Frank McHugh, generally good for a laugh, is completely bogged down.

The only bright spot in the picture, as far as I was concerned, was the foolish chatter of Mantan Moreland as Alabam and Ben Carter as No-More—two colored men who go on with a ridiculous routine.

There are more dance ensembles and costume numbers than you can shake a stick at and I wish some one had shaken something to restrain the producers of this tiresome hodge-podge.

Gay Potholders

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted ornamental and useful potholders are found in every well regulated household. The rosy red tomato and the luscious looking grapes against a background of green leaves will do much to intrigue visitors to the kitchen and prove serviceable to the cook as well.

For instructions in crocheting the potholders, No. 1167, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 1, N. Y.

Child's Trying Behavior Often Is a Disguise

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"My son, Calvin, 7 years old, is such an obstinate child," writes a troubled mother. "He'll stick to his objective, no matter what the consequences. It's a dreadful trait, I think, and something must be done to break such a strong will. . . ."

This fault we call stubbornness is a trying trait and must be gently, not drastically, handled. Forcing measures seldom make much headway with it. Watch and see whether it is the stubbornness which can go by the name of pigheadedness, or whether it is really determination. In the latter case it is a cloak for character.

It often is wise to hunt for character in our children. On this hunt there will be a disguise under which character hides. It may be very deceptive. It may seem to be on the surface either a virtue or a fault.

I know of one striking instance which illustrates my point: The little boy—a neighbor, was extremely stubborn. He had a mother who must have known what she was about, because she never forced or punished him. Today that boy is a man and no trace of the stubbornness exists, only a great determination and will power are visible in its place.

Suppose you come across the virtue of docility in your hunt for character. It's pretty nice when a child is always obedient and always willing. But too great docility may be a sign of lack of character. It may mean a child has no special desires, no determination, no backbone. Her one desire may be to please. Here a seeming virtue is really a fault, a lack of character.

Unobligingness, selfishness, disregard of others are unpleasant traits. But watch. They may be only deceiving signs. Perhaps these traits are only due to absorption in the job in hand, a great power of concentration.

It will take patient discernment on your part to discover whether your child's seemingly troublesome traits tend in the wrong direction or are only straws in the wind indicating future virtues. You must have keen observation and the ability to draw conclusions.

FASHIONS

By Angela

A complete spring wardrobe featuring three daytime items of the put on, take off, or dispense with variety is simple, basic, and smart. A two piece suit worn under a topcoat for chilly days may be substituted for a one piece casual dress on milder days. Later the dress may be worn without the coat, and the skirt of the suit may be worn separately with blouses.

A bargain for spring is the 100 per cent wool worsted topcoat at the left. It is the popular boy's style coat with side slit pockets, wide notched lapels, three button front closing with a single buttonhole on the lapel for a boutonniere, and slit back. Available in sizes 8 to 20, it comes in heather and brown.

The smart one piece dress in the center is a rayon and wool combination, well tailored with a high, round neckline, two simulated chest pockets, bracelet length sleeves, and leather belt. The skirt has shallow all-around plaits, stitched part way down. The tiny check of blue and white has a hairline stripe which gives it added color. It is available in sizes 9 to 15.

The soft dressmaker suit at the right is created in a smooth, doeskin type wool fabric. The chartreuse jacket has a smart one button closing, high collarless neckline, flanges from shoulder to pockets, and shiny black braid edging the pocket opening. The coal black skirt has two inverted front plaits, and a slim, straight back. It is available in sizes 10 to 16.

Seek Furniture for Day Room in Army Camp

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A group of women doing volunteer war work asked our assistance in a special project.

Furnishings are needed to equip a day room for an army camp northwest of the city. Since this room does double duty as a classroom and a place of recreation, sturdy pieces that can withstand hard wear are essential. We hope our readers will be able to supply several straight back chairs, davenports, and rockers, preferably leather covered, also a radio, phonograph, and lamps. Offers from the north side and suburbs can be called for most conveniently. The name and address will be supplied upon request.

A heating stove and dinette set are requested by Mrs. C., a widowed mother, whose three eldest boys are in service overseas. Her only income is the allowances from them, which enable her to keep the home together for her four younger children, but preclude the purchase of any except the barest necessities. The family lives on the northwest side of the city, in six poorly furnished, unheated rooms. A garbage burner in the kitchen supplies the only warmth, as the heating stove is beyond further repair. The lack of table and chairs prevents their enjoying a meal togther.

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Elmer Whittaker, Taunton, Mass.]

THE QUESTION.

In what section of the country do you find the most attractive girls?

WHERE ASKED.

Service center 2, Congress st. and Michigan av.

THE ANSWERS.

Specialist [A] 3/C S. [Pancho] Sanches, San Diego, Cal.—As for pretty girls the largest percentage are in Hollywood working as waitresses because they flopped in pictures and hope for another chance. But if you mean attractive—really attractive—I'll say the girls in Milwaukee, Wis., have the edge on all others.

Radio Technician 1/C Edward Sutt, Louisville, Ky.—That's a very bad question to ask me. I find them too attractive everywhere, but I'll say Illinois and Kentucky girls are the most congenial. If a girl is a good conversationalist, she is far more interesting and appealing to me than one who is merely beautiful.

Seaman 2/C Joe Hawkins, Birmingham, Ala.—I can honestly say Chicago girls are by far the most attractive. They have a natural, friendly way about them that is found only in the midwest. The friendly city and attractive girls are what makes every service man want to come to Chicago.

Seaman 2/C John Cottrell, La Grange, Mo.—Around Stephens college in Missouri and in Chicago are the most beautiful girls in the world. Girls in the midwest seem to be the most feminine and healthy. The girls in the east have a kind of false sophistication that isn't appealing, and that offsets their good looks.

Seaman 2/C Richard Cutlip, Huntington, W. Va.—Up here they aren't too plump, shall we say? They aren't too fat and they aren't too thin—a happy medium. Down in Virginia, the girls contradicted me too much. Here they are sociable, polite, and I've usually found it was easy to get acquainted with them.

Fireman 2/C Arnold Schuneman, Rice, Minn.—In the northern middle west are the most attractive girls. They are not only beautiful, but are generally smarter than in other parts of the country. They are energetic in many sports. That's what gives them that healthy, naturally beautiful look, and makes them attractive.

NORTH SIDE CROWNS GLOVES KINGS TONIGHT

DE PAUL, IRISH MEET TONIGHT IN SHOWDOWN

N. U., Purdue Open Stadium Card.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The long anticipated battle between Notre Dame and De Paul climaxes tonight's double header basketball program in the Stadium. The contest matches Irish speed against De Paul's slower attack centering around the brilliant performance of George Mikan, whose scoring skill perhaps may be matched by Notre Dame's Vince Boryla.

The opening contest at 8:15 o'clock pairs Purdue and Northwestern in a Western conference game. The Boilermakers have a .500 rating for eight games which includes an overtime victory, 52 to 48, over the Wildcats in Lafayette. Northwestern, after winning its first two conference games, has been defeated four times, all in well-played contests, however.

Four Star Centers Featured.

Tonight's program, which opens Chicago's first round robin, presents four of the best centers in intercollegiate basketball. Purdue's offense largely revolves around Paul Hoffman, who was shifted to center this year by Coach Ward Lambert, from forward. Northwestern's best man on attack is Center Max Morris, who leads the individual scoring race in the Big Nine.

Mikan should set De Paul's pace, as his 21 point per game average indicates, while his opponent at center, Boryla, is Notre Dame's most accurate shooter. Despite the fact that this is the first season of collegiate competition for the 17 year old Irish center, he has linked together a most effective front line which includes Jack Dee and George Ratterman.

Other Demons Are Good Too.

Despite the recognized abilities of the rival centers tonight, supporting casts must provide scoring opportunities for them. Mikan may maintain his scoring average and De Paul still can be beaten if Gene Stump, Ed Kachan, and Jack Allen are outplayed by their respective guards.

More than any other of the teams in action tonight and tomorrow, Purdue relies on speed. Its defense also is based on speed and ensuing interception of opponents' passes. The Boilermakers, however, will not have their leading scorer, Billy Gosewehr, who has been inducted.

Michigan at Full Strength for Wisconsin

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 1 [Special].—Michigan's basketball team, back at full strength with the return to normal efficiency of Center Don Lund, will entertain Wisconsin in a Western conference game here tomorrow night and then will journey to Iowa City for a return game with the Hawkeyes on Saturday. Lund returned to full practice this week after a week of limping with an ankle sprained in the Ohio State game two weeks ago.

The Wolverines will be shooting for their 11th victory of the season and their fourth in eight conference starts against the Badgers.

Hesitation.

[Inspired by a recent quotation in the Wake from one of Robert Ingersoll's speeches.]

On the plains of hesitation
Bleach the bones of many men
Who, when at the dawn of victory
Paused to rest, lay down and then
Fell into eternal slumber
While their goal was near at hand
Never reaching satisfaction
Or, success's promised land.

Yes, died in vain without the knowledge
Of their more successful kin
Who, when weary, prodded onward
Buoyed up by their will to win
And reached success's tallest mountain
With fatigue their only cost
Proving to themselves and others
That "He who hesitates is lost."

We live in a world imperfect,
Where creatures strive for gain,
And in the struggle to be first

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 1 (AP).—The last place Chicago Blackhawks came to Montreal tonight and fought the league leading Montreal Canadiens all the way for a 1 to 1 tie before about 10,000 National Hockey league fans.

The tie snapped a Canadien winning streak at nine straight games and fans who had become accustomed to high scoring battles on Forum ice were booing lustily at the end as the Hawks, well content with a draw, broke up every Canadien attack with disconcerting finesse.

In previous games at Montreal the Hawks lost 10 to 1, 9 to 2, and 2 to 1.

Mosienko Scores Tying Goal.

The games was the 100th of the N. H. L. season, marking the two-thirds mark of the regular playing season.

The Hawks had to come from behind for their split, with Bill Mosienko knotting the count in the middle period on a three way play with Clint Smith and Joe Cooper.

Judge and Officials Differ.

Maurice Richard collected the Canadien goal in the first period, his 37th of the season. As far as the goal judge was concerned, it was Richard's second goal of the night because a short time before the light went on a shot from Richard appeared to hit the inside of the post.

Players and officials didn't notice the light for several seconds and then there was a controversy that ended with Referee Bill Chadwick's decision that there had been no counter.

Honor Grimm at Oldtimers' Yearly Shindig

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Ball players ranging up to 80 years old, most of them currently cherishing ambitions for comebacks in 1945, last night assembled in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel to attend the 27th annual corn beef and cabbage dinner of the Old Timers' Baseball association. More than 1,200 attended the function, at which Charley Grimm, manager of the Cubs, was the guest of honor.

As usual, the dinner was attended by group reunions of players and fans, with reminiscences being served almost as lavishly as the corned beef, cabbage and beer. There were speeches and skits by old timers and pros, with baseball always the theme.

You Remember These.

Among the old time players in attendance were Fred Luderus, Jeff Pfeiffer, Joe Benz, Ray Schalk, Red Faber, Jim Vaughn, Garland Buckeye, Max Carey, Cy Williams and George Moriarty.

Included in stars of more recent vintage were Mike Kreevich of the St. Louis Browns, and Emil Verban of the St. Louis Cardinals, players in the 1944 world series; Lou Boudreau, Cleveland manager and 1944 American league batting champion; Nick Etten, Rog Hornsby, Jimmy Foxx, Gabby Hartnett, Johnny Mostil, Orval Grove, Ira Hutchinson, Vince Castino, Roy Henshaw, and Le Roy Schalk.

Grimm Receives Gifts.

Grimm, as guest of honor, received gifts and repeated welcomes because of his return to the Cubs since last year's dinner. Billy Niesen, president of the association, was the recipient of a plaque and compliments on his influence in keeping the annual turnout one of the country's biggest baseball reunions. Fred McGuire, treasurer; John J. Callahan, secretary, and James B. Hatton, chairman, also took bows.

VALPARAISO FIVE DEALS SAILORS 69 TO 61 UPSET

Bob Dille and John Janisch scored 23 points apiece as the Valparaiso university basketball team upset the Great Lakes Bluejackets, 69 to 61, last night at the training center. The Uhlans thus got even for a defeat dealt them by the Sailors in Fort Wayne early in the season.

It was the fourth loss in 26 starts for the Bluejackets, who will meet DePauw tomorrow night and the University of Wisconsin on Sunday afternoon, both on the center floor.

Altho the Uhlans got away to a fast start, the Sailors fought back and were leading by one point, 32 to 31, at half time.

This afternoon he took the seventh block, 125 to 31 in 21 innings, for a total point average of 758 to 636.

Greco 7 to 5 Favorite Over Ruffin Tonight

New York, Feb. 1 [Special].—Johnny Greco is a 7 to 5 favorite to win his bout with Bobby Ruffin tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden. A gate of $100,000 appeared assured as the two features weighed in for the third in their series of fights.

Majors Await All-Important Session Today

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—Baseball's most fateful meeting in 24 years will open tomorrow with selection of a commissioner the No. 1 problem.

Not since 1921, when the majors established the office and installed the late Kenesaw M. Landis as the first czar, have such important subjects been listed for action.

Before a new chief executive can be selected, a rewritten major league agreement establishing the office, powers, term, and salary of a commissioner must be adopted.

May Pick Chief Tomorrow.

Final draft by a 10 man committee empowered to draw up the new code will be made tomorrow and handed over to the American and National leagues in separate afternoon sessions. If the leagues approve, joint action will be taken Saturday afternoon and candidates will be discussed.

Club owners gathering here today appeared to favor the action now plan, but there was considerable doubt if any one candidate had enough support to assure election. Fred Frick, National league president, is out front in discussions but shy of voting strength and it is possible a deadlock might result in a dark horse candidate landing the job at Saturday's joint session.

It's a Big Field.

Will Harridge, American league president, and Leslie M. O'Connor, who with Frick make up the advisory council now ruling the game, have removed themselves from consideration, as has Ed Barrow, the 76 year old president of the New York Yankees.

Every high ranking army and navy officer and heads of virtually all the government's Washington bureaus, have been mentioned as candidates together with various assorted judges, politicians, sports writers, and public figures.

Red Smith Quits Brewers to Become Cubs' Coach

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 1 (AP).—Richard [Red] Smith, assistant manager and coach of the Milwaukee American Association baseball club for eight years, resigned today to accept a coaching job with the Chicago Cubs. Smith will rejoin Charley Grimm, the Chicago manager who went to the Cubs from Milwaukee last year.

Boyd Faces a Worthy Foe in Elgin's Young

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Jackie Boyd, 17 year old member of the Madison Athletic club, who captured the 1924 Catholic Youth organization open flyweight championship, will defend his north sectional Golden Gloves 112 pound title against a husky blond lad from Elgin—Don Young—in the finals in Loyola university gymnasium tonight.

It promises to be one of the most interesting bouts on the attractive program and, if predictions of the 17 year old Young's handlers come true, Boyd will lose his championship.

Young, employed in an Elgin defense plant, has been boxing in the Elgin Boys' club gymnasium two years, but didn't enter actual competition until six months ago. He is considered a great prospect by Coach Charley Turner.

Don, a former student at Elgin High school, has won all of his seven bouts thus far and four of them were knockouts.

He has two older brothers, who are soldiers overseas.

Howard Dolack Jr., novice heavyweight from Farragut High school, turned to his father after dinner last night and said, "Dad, let's go to Loyola and see the fights," neglecting to explain he was a contestant in the meet until after reaching the arena.

It surprised Howard Sr., who hadn't known his son had joined a boxing club at 19th and Laflin sts., to prepare for the tournament. Young Dolack drew a bye last night but will be back tonight to fight for the north side medal in his class.

Anthony Greco Jr., Lakeview High school student, will meet Don Lonergan, a Madison Athletic club teammate, in a novice lightweight contest out north tonight, which should be a thriller. Both won their bouts by knockouts last night, Tony putting away William Tillman of the Savoy A. C. in the second round and Don stopping Bob Shubinski, C. Y. O., in the third.

Greco who is 17, first was given boxing lessons when only 7 years old by Clark Frank, an uncle, an amateur middleweight 20 years ago. However, he hadn't appeared in a regular bout until Wednesday night when he scored two knockouts in the first round.

Tony lives at 1131 Patterson av. He plays guard on the junior basketball team at Lakeview.

William Baker, 1372 Des Plaines av., Des Plaines, who beat Casme Gallardo of the C. Y. O. in a 126 pound novice quarter-final bout last night, previously had been reported out of the tournament thru a clerical error. Baker knocked out Robert J. Burns of the Madison A. C. Wednesday night, but the summaries printed yesterday showed Burns as the winner.

William Roche and Lee Cordell, light heavyweight and welterweight novices, respectively, of Loyola academy, were rejected by Dr. William Rothman, medical director of Chicago Tribune sports promotions, the former because of a boil and Cordell because of high temperature.

Shortly before his rejection, Cordell had won by default from Charles Hatstat Jr., navy V-12 trainee at Illinois Tech. Hatstat, whose aggressive fighting made a hit with fans on opening night, was forced to withdraw from the tournament. Roche forfeited to Gordon Pouliot, C. Y. O.

ILLINOIS TECH WINS OVERTIME BATTLE, 65 TO 63

The Illinois Tech basketball team won its eighth consecutive victory last night, defeating 87th Street Navy, 65 to 63, in an overtime period in the Valentine Boys club gymnasium.

With the navy five leading at the half, and 10 points ahead with four minutes to go, Capt. Tom Kilgariff, who scored 15 points, and Ned Grable, who made 18, matched each other basket for basket to give Tech the victory. Jim Asche, former Indiana basketball player, scored 29 points for the losers. Lineups:

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Having met the challenge of the south side boxers with two nights of fights equally as thrilling as those waged in the cross-town sectional tournament, the north side battlers tonight close their three day show with the crowning of 16 champions, eight in the open division and eight in the novice.

From the class of competition displayed thru the quarter-final round in Loyola university gymnasium, the winners tonight are bound to be fit opponents for the courageous, hard hitting, and clever representatives the south section will send into the city tournament in Marigold Gardens on the night of Feb. 12.

Abe Lee Stops Dunphy.

Abe Lee, husky 147 pound C. Y. O. champion, set the pace for the open division boxers with a two round knockout of Donald Dunphy of 1365 Estes av. and enters tonight's semi-finals one of the crowd's hottest favorites. Dunphy had a punch, tried several on the Chinese boy and made a fight of it for one round. Then Lee opened up in the second and Dunphy signaled he had enough after 1:32 of the round. Lee also put away his first foe on opening night.

In one of the best bouts of the evening, Johnny Ceresa of the Elgin Boys' league and Albert Nero of the C. Y. O. showed the crowd what clever open division 135 pounders can do. They went three of the fastest rounds of the tournament and altho Ceresa's victory was clear cut, Nero proved a classy opponent. Al made his best showing after being down once in the first round.

Elgin Heavy Wins.

The fans were sent home with a thriller to remember when two big novice heavyweights, Howard Schultz of the Elgin Boys' league, and William Hutson, a powerfully built Negro lad from the Savoy A. C., slugged it out for three rounds. Neither used much science, but they started most of their blows from away back and many of them landed. Schultz took the decision.

Tony Greco, the hard hitting novice lightweight from the Madison A. C. last night scored his third straight knockout of the tournament, at the expense of Willie Tillman, a rangy Savoy A. C. counter puncher. As in his previous triumphs Greco brought his right hand into play for a clincher. The end came after a minute and a half of the second round, not quite par for Tony's course as both his earlier victims went out in the first round.

One of the crowd pleasers of the earlier bouts was little Jimmy Garrity of the C. Y. O. who proved a veritable gamecock in pounding out a decision over Johnny Nelson of 4870 Magnolia av. Jimmy, a 118 pound novice, had the crowd with him as he flitted in and out of Johnny's defense.

CALUMET LOSES TO SOUTH SHORE IN TITLE? GAME

Champions Deal Section Rivals First Loss.

South Shore took undisputed possession of first place in the south section City league basketball race yesterday by handing Calumet seniors their first defeat, 60 to 53. The victory was South Shore's sixth straight in league competition.

After a close first quarter the defending city champions moved to a 36 to 30 margin at half time. At the end of the third period South Shore led 50 to 43. The margin persisted thruout the last quarter. Jack Fendley paced the victors with nine field goals and a pair of free throws.

In the north section senior race Von Steuben remained undefeated by routing Schurz, 64 to 20, on its home floor. Gene Schanbaum and Norm Ament led Von Steuben to its sixth league conquest with 20 points each.

A three way tie for the lead evolved from central section senior activity yesterday as Lindblom routed Farragut, 52 to 18, and Phillips turned back Harrison, 33 to 21. The two winners moved into a tie with idle Kelly for the section lead.

In the only game of significance in the junior ranks Lane Tech disposed of Walter, 46 to 44, to move into first in the north section. Don Simon scored with one minute to play to give Lane the decision. The victory was Lane's sixth. The defeat, Waller's first.

Grand Jury to Push Quiz in Basket Case

New York, Feb. 1 [Special].—One of the accused conspirators in the Brooklyn college basketball scandal, Harvey Stemmer, succeeded in getting his bail reduced from $25,000 to $10,000 and walked into the street a relatively free man today as the King's county grand jury made plans to investigate to the bottom dishonesty in college basketball in this section.

Acts of grand juries are supposed to be secret and are reasonably so, but it was no secret that Manhattan sports writers are to be invited to go to Brooklyn and reveal what they know of corruption in college sport in Brooklyn. The first of these will testify tomorrow afternoon.

May Expel Players.

The faculty student committee on athletics at Brooklyn college, in a meeting today, upheld the earlier action of Prof. Harry A. Scott, executive officer of the committee and Richard Boyce, athletic director, in barring the five accused players from further participation in sports at the college.

The findings of the committee will be passed on to Dr. Frederick W. Maroney, dean of men, and Dr. Harry Gideonse who will decide whether the five are to be expelled from the college.

Leder Quits Committee.

One of the members of the committee was Bob Leder, captain and star of the basketball team and one of the five youths who confessed that they accepted a $1,000 down payment on a $3,000 bribe to throw a game to Akron. He remained silent during the voice voting and then resigned from the committee. The other disbarred players are Bernard Barnett, Larry Pearlstein, Jerry Green, and Stan Simon.

Asks State-Wide Action.

In Albany, Rep. Frank J. Sellmayer took action designed to expose corruption in college athletics on a state-wide basis. Asserting that he was prompted by the Brooklyn college scandal, Sellmayer introduced a bill to appropriate $50,000 to set up a temporary commission of nine men to investigate dishonesty in college sport and report back one year from date of the committee's creation.

Miss Kirk advanced to the finals today by defeating Mrs. George Wilcox of Miami, 1 up. Miss Suggs won, 4 and 2 over Mrs. Marge Becker of Englewood, N. J.

Browns Draw O'Connor Fire on Two Counts

The major league advisory council, ruling against a $1,500 bonus claim by Pitcher L. N. [Buck] Newsom against the St. Louis Browns, announced yesterday that the "bad practice" of side agreements in player contracts henceforth will be subject to fines ranging from $100 to $500.

A sharply worded bulletin by Council Chairman Leslie M. O'Connor held that the much traveled Newsom and the Browns deliberately collaborated in a violation of a major league rule when loquacious Buck shifted from the Brooklyn Dodgers to the Browns in 1943.

Newsom, who last season pitched for the Philadelphia Athletics, received a $1,000 bonus for reporting "promptly and in the right frame of mind" to the Browns and also was promised an additional $1,500, based on his performance that season.

"Just Had to Pitch."

President Donald L. Barnes of the Browns said the bonus was to be left to his discretion. After appearing in 10 games, winning one and loving six, Newsom told Barnes he wanted to be traded, the bulletin said.

"What if I don't win one game?" Newsom was quoted in a conversation with Barnes. I don't know if I can win with the club you have. I don't think we have a good ball club." Barnes reportedly replied: "If you don't win, just so you pitch and try—that is all I ask you to do."

Says Club Will Be Fined.

O'Connor asserted that the Barnes-Newsom agreement "is impossible of ascertainment," but that it "is evident that the Barnes assertion that the bonus was conditional and contingent is much more credible and reasonable than the Newsom assertion that he was merely to 'pitch and try.'"

Similar violations in the future, O'Connor declared, will entail a fine of $500 for major league club infraction, $250 for minor league, and $100 for a player.

In another ruling, O'Connor awarded the claim of outfielder Tom Hafey against the Browns for one month's salary. The claim grew from a dispute between the Browns and the Washington Senators over Hafey's services last Aug. 1. Washington claimed Hafey on waivers, but then rescinded the claim contending that the Browns represented the player as 4-F whereas he was 1-A. The late Commissioner K. M. Landis upheld Washington's action, but the Browns refused to take Hafey back and finally assigned him to Oakland on Aug. 30.

Race Leaders Will Meet to Plan Future

Miami, Fla., Feb. 1 (AP).—Future plans for the horse racing industry will be mapped here next week at a meeting of members of the Thoroughbred Racing association and state racing commissioners.

Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams of Chicago, president of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners, said there was no intention of presenting any plans for resumption of the sport to Washington until conditions permit. He added that the racing people are 100 per cent behind the war and are encouraging those left unemployed by the ban to enter war work.

He said the meeting would discuss necessary steps to take when racing is again permitted, so that prompt resumption of the sport can take place. Williams said the meeting probably will be held either on Wednesday or Thursday.

Thomas H. McCreery, president of the Horse Breeders' Protective association, said the executive committee of the association had voted approximately $36,000 to aid distressed horsemen. McCreery said the demands for relief had been great from New Orleans and other requests had been received from Louisville, Hot Springs, and points in California.

Florida, he said, had been taken care of by the $30,000 donated by Tropical Park thru the holding of a ninth race during its abbreviated meeting.

Two Chicagoans couldn't get past that eighth game in the Petersen Classic in Archer-35th Recreation last night. The 11th hour jinx caught up first with Bill Hargadon, then with Herb Wodrich. Wodrich, thanks to his 1,564 series, is second and Bill is fifth by virtue of a 1,548 total for his efforts.

Bowling on the opening squad of the evening Hargadon, captain of the city champion Meister Braus of the Classic league, rolled effectively and well, with scores of 193, 216, 199, 208, 189, and 223 before reaching his anti-climax. Needing only 175 pins in the last two games to take the lead, he registered games of 167 and 153.

Wodrich Slips to 166.

The lesser known Wodrich, 32, production man for a Chicago photo engraving house, and a member of the Keeley Beer team of the Northwest Traveling, Windy City Major, and Samuelson Major leagues, started out with a 179, added 235, 175, 200, 199, 220, and 190, going into his final game with a 1,398 figure. Lacking only 180 pins to take the lead, he came home with 166.

CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE: 22 ★★ Friday, Feb. 2, 1945.

WALTER HELLER PROFIT LARGER; BUSINESS GAINS

Instalment Paper Mostly Short Term.

Net income of Walter E. Heller & Co., Chicago instalment banker, was slightly higher in 1944 despite the restrictions on manufacture of consumer merchandise and equipment, Walter E. Heller, president, yesterday told stockholders in his annual report.

Volume of transactions again exceeded any previous year, Heller said, but they were largely "short in term and rapid in turnover." Principal business of the company, which also maintains offices in New York, is in the financing of sales and other current operations of manufacturers, distributors, dealers, and others.

Profit Is $483,125.

Net income in 1944 was $483,125, equal to $1.38 a share, compared with $472,585, or $1.44 a share, in 1943. Earnings per share were slightly lower as a result of increased preferred dividend requirements.

Current assets on Dec. 31 totaled $21,391,101, including $3,580,892 in cash, 1¾ million dollars in treasury certificates, and $16,060,209 in receivables.

The largest item in the receivables account was $4,983,411 in factored accounts, a type of financing which the Heller organization largely introduced into the middle west, he said. The total was $4,154,616 at the end of 1943.

Utility Earns Less.

The company's operations continue to be largely influenced by war time conditions, Heller said. Its facilities are being used principally by companies engaged directly or indirectly in war work.

Commonwealth and Southern corporation in a preliminary report for 1944 listed net income of $11,378,015, against $12,530,645 in 1943.

Acme Steel company reported net income for 1944 of $1,909,663, or $5.82 a share, compared with $1,994,645, or $6.08 a share, in 1943.

Purity Bakeries corporation had consolidated net income in 1944 of $2,079,901, or $2.69 a share, against $2,210,010, or $2.86 a share, in 1943, Lewis A. Cushman, chairman, reported. Sales were $56,130,057, a record.

OHIO COMPANY TESTS SEIZURE POWER OF WLB

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—A new test of the government's right to seize businesses or industries involved in labor disputes awaits court determination. In this case, the Farrell Cheek Steel company of Sandusky, O., contends that the war labor board lacks authority to issue a seizure order even in war time.

The order was issued Sept. 11, 1944, after a strike by a CIO union, and President Roosevelt directed the army to take over the plant which it still controls.

Attorneys for the company argued before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in United States District court that the board had no legal authority to issue its order. They said that unlike the Montgomery Ward case, the Ohio company is not questioning the legality of the actual seizure but only the board's authority to recommend such action.

INSURANCE BILL ON TRUST LAWS SENT TO HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—Legislation granting insurance companies a moratorium of 2½ to 3 years from enforcement of anti-trust laws was approved by the senate today and sent to the house.

The bill would suspend enforcement of the Clayton act until Jan. 1, 1948, and of the Sherman act until June 1, 1947, except for acts of boycott, coercion, or intimidation.

The legislation is an aftermath of a Supreme court decision last year holding that the insurance business is subject to anti-trust laws. The period of nonenforcement is intended to afford time for insurance companies to adjust their business, and states their laws, to the court's ruling.

SALES OF RADIO TIME SET PEAK OF 126 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31 (AP).—Sales of radio time by the four major networks reached the all-time high of $126,330,491 in 1944, an increase of 21.2 per cent over 1943, the federal communications commission said today. The figure was based on preliminary reports received from networks and stations.

The announcement said that reports from 569 standard stations showed that non-network sales of time to national and regional users amounted to $58,665,371, an increase over 1943 of 25.9 per cent, and sales to local and other users totaled $61,990,623, an increase of 28.3 per cent.

Northern Pacific Revenue Mounts, Earnings Drop

Operating revenues of Northern Pacific railway in 1944 reached a record high of $155,978,310, up 2.93 per cent from 1943, but increased wages, taxes, and costs of materials cut net earnings almost in half, C. E. Denney, president, reported yesterday. Net income was $13,160,985, compared with $25,520,430 in 1943.

HIGH OFFICIALS NAMED IN WAR SURPLUS QUIZ

Auctioneer Backed by Stimson Aid.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—The names of high government officials and of officers of the Democratic party were linked with Jacob Goldberg, a New York super-junk dealer and auctioneer, in testimony before the senate war investigation committee this afternoon. The inquiry, to be continued tomorrow, is looking into reported irregularities in Goldberg's sale of government surplus property, including a charge that he tried to bribe a federal employe.

Herbert Bayard Swope, former New York newspaper editor now a consultant in the office of Secretary of War Stimson, heard from a spectator's seat his March 18, 1944, letter to Jesse Jones, then head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, read into the committee records as follows:

"Dear Jesse:

"I think Mr. Brandt and Mr. Goldberg have a situation that could be of definite help to RFC and you may be able to help them. I do not often write letters of introduction but, in this case, I would be warmly appreciative of such interest as you may show.

Related by Marriage.

"I have suggested to Mr. Brandt that he forward this letter to you and then call up later to ask when he may have 10 minutes of your time. I am sure you will be good enough to see him.

"Oldtime regards, faithfully, Herbert Bayard Swope."

Herbert Brandt, former New York insurance man with "connections" that brought him into the surplus property business with Goldberg, identified the letter from the witness stand. His son is married to Swope's daughter.

Brandt, cross-examined by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.], denied inferences that his contribution to the enterprise was the result of his relationship with Swope and the possible benefits the relationship might give him in the sale of surplus government property. The witness, under a rapid fire of questions, suggested the firm might have been after business from the General Electric company which is headed by Herbert Swope's brother, Gerard Swope.

Letter Led to Jones.

However, further evidence, in the form of the subpenaed files of the auctioneer company, disclosed that this Herbert Bayard Swope letter admitted Brandt and Goldberg to an interview with Jones and indirectly to interviews with Sam H. Husbands, president of the Defense Plant corporation, with Undersecretary of State Will Clayton, then administrator of surplus property, and with Herbert L. Gaston, assistant secretary of treasury, and others.

Letters from Brandt to these officials, introduced into the committee records, mentioned Jones as having introduced Brandt and Goldberg, and listed Bernard Baruch, White House adviser, as well as Swope, as a sponsor. On questioning, Brandt said his only authorization for using Baruch's name was that Swope had spoken to Baruch.

Brandt, defending his son's father-in-law, said Swope did not wish to indorse Goldberg as a government selling agent as long as Archibald McNeil, former Democratic committeeman from Connecticut, was associated with the enterprise. However, Richard Durham, assistant treasurer to the Democratic national committee during the recent Presidential campaign, remained as a stockholder and a Washington, D. C., representative of the company.

Firm Had Two Auctions.

The company, Brandt testified, was incorporated as Surplus Liquidators, Inc., last spring with $5,000 capital stock. It has held two auctions for the government, one in New York City and the other in Burlington, N. J., selling for $175,000 property that had cost tax payers an estimated $750,000.

Mayor La Guardia of New York, also on the stand today, described the New York auction as "unethical and unfair," and a "scandalous procedure." He imitated the tobacco company auctioneer voice familiar to radio listeners and said buyers were signaling their bids "by wiping their eyes or blowing their noses." He asked for a reform in the government's system for disposal of surplus property, which may aggregate 100 billion dollars, so that cities can have a fair chance to buy.

"Something drastic must be done," the mayor said, "to remove undesirable elements attracted to the purchase of surplus government property. Let's not get the old bootleg element into this business. Let's deal with men listed in Dun & Bradstreet, not in the police bureau of identification."

Charges Irregularities.

Albert Pleydell, New York City purchasing agent, gave the committee a report on his investigation of the auction as a violation of the municipal auction regulatory and license ordinance. He cited instances, by lot numbers, in which the price finally paid by the buyer was approximately half the auctioneer's announcement of the successful bid. He read reports of his investigators who charged collusion among bidders, including dummy bidders and speculators.

Goldberg will be asked tomorrow about a charge by John Van Ginhoven, a $5,600 a year DPC employe, that he had been offered a farm and $15,000 a year by Goldberg to make a favorable report on Goldberg's solicitation for more auctioneer business from the government at a fee of 5 to 7 per cent of sales.

Peace Outlook Pushes Utility Stocks Higher

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—Utilities strengthened in today's stock market after early advances by selected rails and industrials.

The power and light group, which is expected to benefit from peace and from divestment plans under the holding company act, came to life after an early sprint by carriers and favorites advanced such issues fractions to a point and scattered senior issues as much as 5 points. Low priced stocks in this category appeared in blocks of 1,000 to 25,000 shares and new highs since 1940 were widespread.

Aiding the rails was the $1 dividend of Delaware and Hudson, first since 1932 when $1.50 was paid. This stock opened nearly half an hour late on an 8,000 share block, up 3 points at 42, a new peak. It ended up 4¼ at 43¼.

Transfers were 1,558,510 shares, compared with 1,177,960 yesterday.

RAIL BONDS RECOVER.

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—Modest recovery by rails pushed the bond market higher today, but trading activity was light and advances were mostly fractions. Sales fell to $6,266,300, compared with $7,696,800 yesterday.

Delaware and Hudson 4s rose to a new high of 103⅜, up 2⅛, following its dividend declaration. Pere Marquette 4½s and 5s were unchanged in the wake of announcement of a refunding of outstanding debt. Milwaukee 5s of 1975 advanced nearly a point and the adjustment 5s were higher.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in smaller turnover of 44,000 shares. Among volume leaders were Belmont Radio, up 2½ at a 1944-'45 high of 18½; Cities Service, up 1⅛ at a new peak of 19; Radio corporation, up ⅛; Miller & Hart, unchanged, and Chicago corporation common, down ⅛.

CONT. CASUALTY BOOSTS ASSETS TO 59 MILLIONS

Continental Casualty company's assets last year rose more than 6 million dollars to a record $59,729,964, Roy Tuchbreiter, president, reported yesterday. Operating profit totaled $3,208,930. The company increased the par value of its stock from $5 to $10 by transferring 2½ millions from surplus to capital, leaving a policy holders' surplus of $15,873,411, an increase of $1,495,756 above 1943.

Continental Assurance company has a policy holders' surplus of $5,226,447 after the transfer of 1 million to capital as the result of a dividend paid in stock. Assets were $62,154,926, an increase of more than 9 millions. The net gain from operations, less cash dividends paid to shareholders and income tax, was $444,213.

PROFIT MARGIN SQUEEZE HELD BUSINESS PERIL

Will Delay Output, Says H. E. Blood.

New York, Feb. 1 [Special].—The ratios between selling prices and costs of articles have been evolved in the intensively competitive business of the past and "government tinkering with them is exceedingly dangerous," Howard E. Blood, president of Norge division of Borg-Warner corporation, said today.

Howard E. Blood.

Speaking at the American Management association finance conference, Blood said that price ceilings on consumer goods that remain scarce after the war should be at a level that absorbs unavoidable increases in cost and prevents the inflation of profit margins, but does not eliminate nor substantially reduce normal profit margins.

Raps OPA Name Calling.

"Under such a general policy business could go ahead with that confidence which must be created if we are to see the bold and swift reconversion we all want," he asserted. "Under such a policy supplies would increase rapidly and the forces of competition would stimulate engineering, plant, and process improvement so that the abundance of goods would soon remove any need for price control."

Blood charged that when a business man raises his voice in protest against the office of price administration's "publicly announced profit squeezing intentions" he is branded an inflationist and a profiteer.

"The highly skilled propaganda machine of OPA together with its facilities for publicity by radio and in the press, in too many cases, are causing business men to feel helpless and to stand mute," he said.

Conversion Must Be Rapid.

"Let us boldly state that business men know that conversion period and future employment in manufacturing and distribution will be up to them, and they also know that they cannot provide that employment if their profit ratios are squeezed as threatened by OPA.

"If we let OPA take its present course, manufacturers will be forced to absorb unavoidably increased costs, or at best, to recover their costs without profit."

Kenneth M. Spang, associated New York regional price economist of the OPA, said that as long as the earnings of an industry equal or exceed its earnings in a representative peace time period, the ceiling prices that yield these earnings are sufficiently high to be generally fair or equitable.

He said that in the case of reconversion goods, adjustments will be made for increased wage rates and materials costs, but "this adjustment will not be made in full."

Summer Homes Again Exempt from Rent Rule

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—The OPA today exempted summer seasonal dwellings from rent control from June 1 thru Sept. 30. This provision was in effect last summer also.

Major Advances in Chemical Making, Analysis Described

Oil Plants Take Lead

The petroleum industry's production of synthetic chemicals before the war was a "rather small tail on the chemical industry dog, but has become so large that it is beginning to wag the dog," Dr. Robert E. Wilson, new chairman of Standard Oil company [Indiana], said last night.

He explained to a group of chemical leaders at a "welcome home" dinner for him in Huyler's restaurant that since the war started the petroleum industry has become a larger volume manufacturer of synthetic organic chemicals than the chemical industry itself.

Phenol Among Most Important.

As an illustration, Dr. Wilson said that two of the most important synthetic organic chemicals are phenol, used as the base of many plastics and for other purposes, and aniline, known particularly for its use in dyes. Pre-war production of phenol was about 500 barrels a day, of aniline 300, and toluene from coal tar 1,550.

"Today the production of synthetic toluene from petroleum is five times the pre-war total production of all three," he said.

"Butadiene is another vital synthetic chemical now coming from both the chemical industry and the petroleum industry. In the petroleum industry it is being synthesized at the rate of 8,000 barrels a day, or 27 times the pre-war production of phenol.

Alcohol Output Vast.

"However, even these are minor league figures. I believe the largest volume product of the synthetic organic chemical industries is ethyl alcohol, the war time demand for which in connection with the production of synthetic rubber alone is about three times the total peace time demand for all purposes."

The petroleum industry's production of alkylate is about 130,000 barrels a day, he said. This synthetic mixture is the most important constituent of 100 octane gasoline.

One Part in Million

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1 [Special].—Chemical color detectives so powerful they can detect the presence of iron atoms forming only one part in one million parts of water were described to the American Chemical society tonight by G. Frederick Smith, professor of chemistry at the University of Illinois.

These color detectives are organic ring nitrogen compounds known chemically as orth-phenanthroline and substituted phenanthrolines or more commonly as organic reagents; that is, substances that produce a chemical reaction. Their most important property is their ability to react with a number of divalent metal ions, electrically charged atoms, such as iron, cobalt, nickel, zinc, chromium, and ruthenium, Smith said.

Have Huge Coloring Power.

Three molecules of one of these compounds will react with one divalent iron cation, a positive ion, to form an intensely red, water soluble product, he explained.

Smith, who is also president of the G. Frederick Smith Chemical company, said this type of compound also can be used as a reaction indicator by changing the red form to a blue. The change in color is vivid, precise, and reversible. At the point of color change the chemical reaction being carried out is shown to be complete, said Smith.

Used in Analytical Work.

These compounds are used in various kinds of analytical work in iron and steel production, special alloy steel manufacture, rock ore and mineral utilization, limestone, cement, and glass technology, and drug, medicinal, food, and wine processing and preserving, he said. The average cost of these reagents is about $56 an ounce.

Only minute quantities, however, usually are needed in most industrial applications, and they increase precision and produce economy in time and man hours, he said.

BRITAIN TO PRODUCE MORE CUTLERY, TOYS, LAMPS FOR HOME USE

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP).—A new relaxation of war time production restrictions has made it possible for British homes to get more kitchen equipment and other small household articles.

Restrictions were removed from registered manufacturers to make cutlery and floor and table lamps, including decorated shades, for home trade only.

The leather handbag quota has been raised from 5 to 7½ per cent, and bags may have metal frames and leather piped seams. The toy quota is doubled to 25 per cent.

NEW 4 DAY RAIL EMBARGO WILL START TONIGHT

Movement of Coal Is Permitted.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 (AP).—To aid storm disrupted railroads in clearing congestion, a new four day embargo on civilian freight will be put into effect at 12:01 a. m. Saturday in eight states and the District of Columbia.

The new ban is much less drastic than a three day embargo which expired last Monday at midnight. From the civilians' standpoint the principal difference is that the new regulation will permit the movement of coal, now in short supply in many areas.

Caused by Severe Weather.

Two government agencies, the office of defense transportation and the interstate commerce commission, ordered the embargo because of continuing severe weather.

Until 12:01 a. m. Wednesday no railroad will place cars for loading or sign bills of lading for freight consigned, reconsigned, or to be reconsigned to the following destinations:

Ohio [not including lines of the Wabash railroad or the territory included within the switching limits of Cincinnati], Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, and portions of West Virginia and Virginia north of the line of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, extending from Huntington, W. Va., to Potomac Yard, Va., near Washington.

Exceptions Need Certification.

Nor will any railroad place cars for loading or issue bills of lading for freight at any point within that area during the four day embargo.

The exceptions, in addition to coal, provide that freight, even tho civilian, may be moved upon certification by various government agencies that it is essential. The war food administration is one of these agencies and may act in the event of severe food shortages in any area.

A spokesman for ODT said the recent embargo "definitely helped" the railroads in clearing up congestion, but that the situation remained unsatisfactory in some areas.

CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE: 24  Fri., Feb. 2, 1945.

PROSECUTORS EYE VOIDING OF ICKES TAX CUT

Tuohy Assistants Dig Into Charges.

Assistant State's Attorneys Gordon Nash and Jacob Shamberg said yesterday that they were studying the possibility of canceling, on the ground of fraud or error, the reduction of taxes granted by the board of tax appeals to Secretary of the Interior Ickes [Honest Harold] on his five story building at 231-33 S. State st.

The possibility of selling the property for tax delinquency will also be studied, Shamberg and Nash said. They added, however, that such an action probably will be remote.

Ickes won a reduction of $4,274 in his 1943 taxes thru affidavit and personal testimony purporting to show that his annual rental was only $24,000 and that his operating losses for the year were above $7,000. Subsequently. Assessor Clark declared that the yearly rental was above $61,000 and that, instead of suffering a $7,000 loss, Ickes made $35,000. Clark accused Ickes of submitting false information.

Many Technicalities Foreseen.

Concerning the theory of tax reduction cancelation, Nash and Shamberg said many technicalities might be involved. If fraud were established, they said, it might be possible to void the certification of tax revision granted to Ickes by the board of tax appeals.

In granting a reduction the board issues the certification and sends it to the assessor. The assessor signs it, correcting the assessment, then sends it to the county clerk and county assessor, who correct their tax books. If the certification is canceled, its effects are then canceled in the other channels thru which it passed. This would then restore the original assessment and tax as they existed before the certification was granted.

Basis of Annulment Sought.

Because the certification was signed by one of Assessor Clark's assistants and not by Clark himself, error or mistake might be claimed, the assistant state's attorneys said. On that ground, perhaps, they added, the certification might be erased.

The admittedly remote possibility of selling Ickes' State st. building for taxes is based on the fact that Ickes did not pay the second instalment of his 1943 taxes until Jan. 16 this year, altho it was due Sept. 1 last year. He was appealing his taxes during that time, and was given extra time to pay.

Nash and Shamberg said that as of Sept. 1, 1944, Ickes owed $10,283. Nov. 13 the County court ordered his property, among others, sold for tax arrearage. His tax appeal, however, apparently negated that. Finally, the prosecutors said, Ickes won the $4,274 tax cut, leaving a balance of $6,009. As he did not pay until Jan. 16, he had the use of the $6,000 without penalty. If, it was said, the cut is wiped out, it might technically be considered that he was then in default as of Sept. 1.

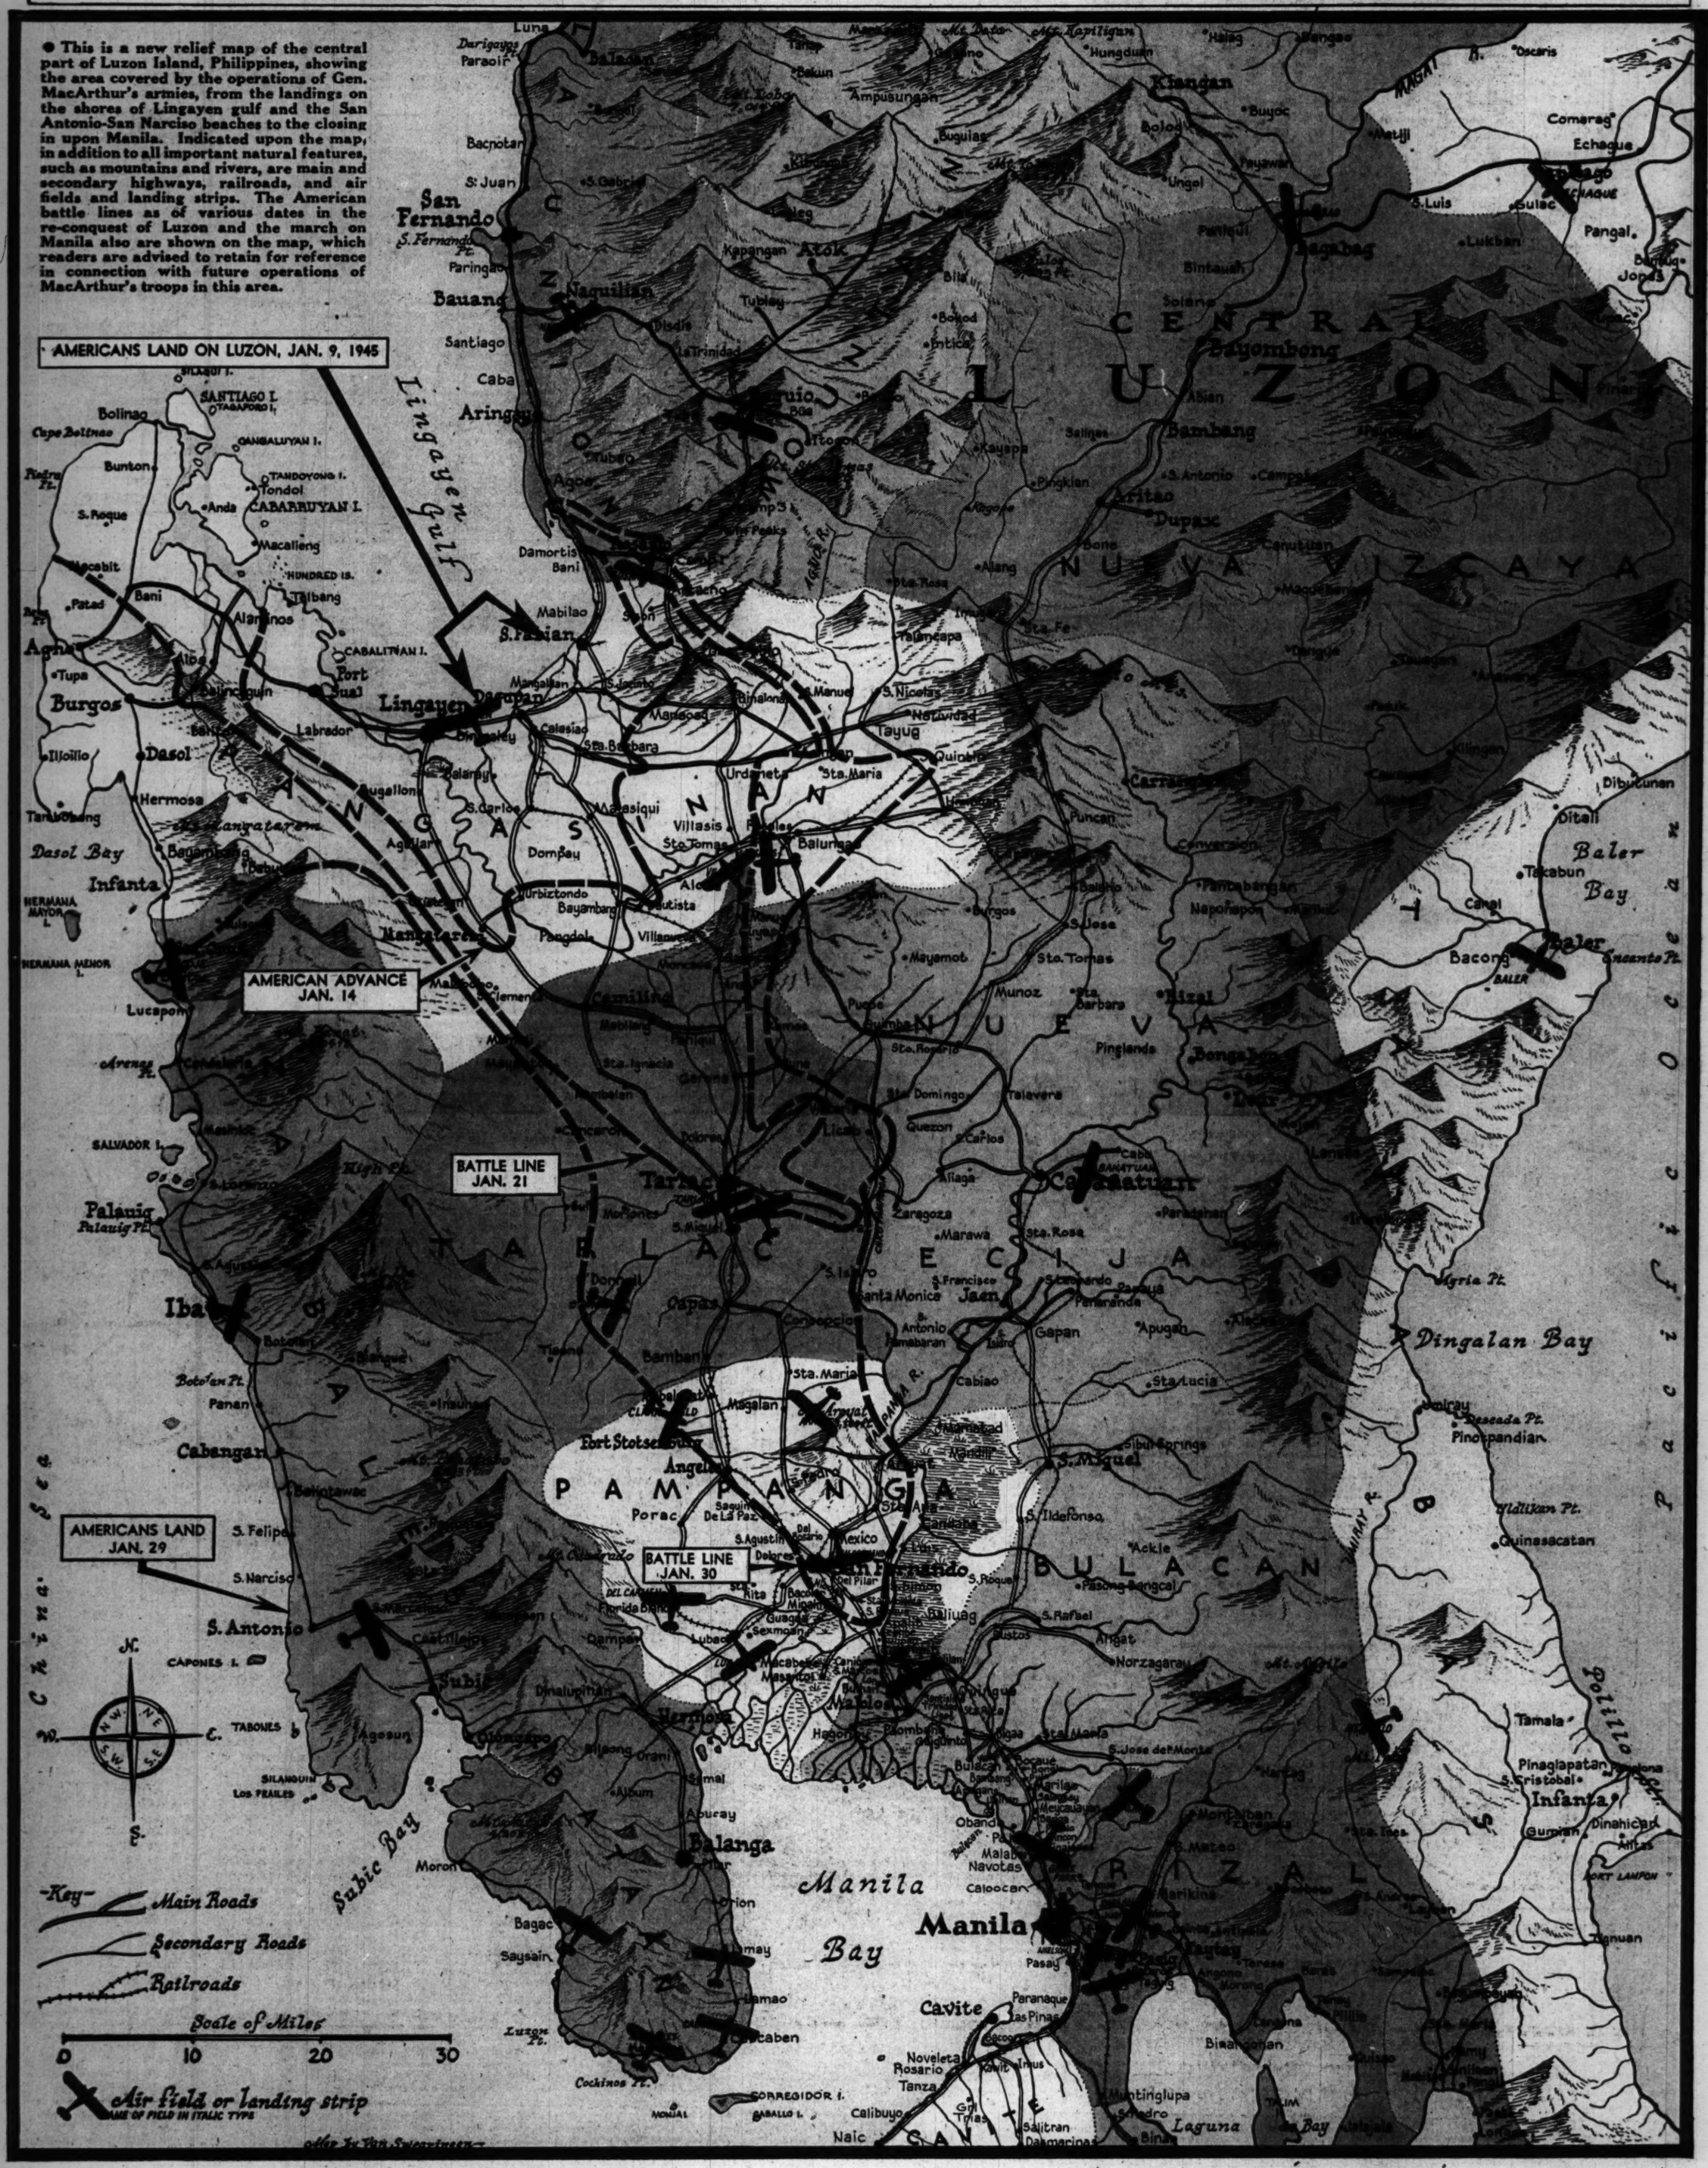
MacARTHUR'S MARCH ON MANILA


● This is a new relief map of the central part of Luzon Island, Philippines, showing the area covered by the operations of Gen. MacArthur's armies, from the landings on the shores of Lingayen gulf and the San Antonio-San Narciso beaches to the closing in upon Manila. Indicated upon the map, in addition to all important natural features, such as mountains and rivers, are main and secondary highways, railroads, and air fields and landing strips. The American battle lines as of various dates in the re-conquest of Luzon and the march on Manila also are shown on the map, which readers are advised to retain for reference in connection with future operations of MacArthur's troops in this area.
